HISTORY and GENEALOGY

of the

LEXINGTON, MASSACHUSETTS

MUNROES

Compiled By

RICHARD S. MUNROE

As many of you know, finishing Richard S. Munroe's work has been a "labor of love." I thank Midge Munroe Carson for allowing me to complete Richard's compilation for the second edition. And, I thank Malcolm Monroe for all his encouragement and help. He has inspired me all along the way.

The work has been interesting and enlightening. If there are any errors (I am sure they will turn up), please forgive me. I am new to the work of genealogy. To the best of my ability and with the resources I had, I tried to include everything that Richard had not completed, plus all the information that was sent to me over the past two years. I could not have finished the work without everyone's help along the way.

We are a huge family from the first ancestor, William Munro, and we are in every state of the Union, representing the Munroes with a goodly number. I have come to know many persons who are now in the second edition, and it has been a pleasure to meet you, even if sometimes it has been only by written word or by voice. I trust you will enjoy reading this edition as much as I have had in completing Richard's work.

To Cousin Malcolm Monroe of Short Hills, New Jersey for his continued assistance, and encouragement.

History and Genealogy of Lexington, Mass., Munroes

The second edition does not supersede the work of the first edition, published in 1966 by R.S. Munroe, but continues it. This has information of earlier generations who missed being in the first edition, and in many cases, carries on from those generations.

The information herein has been collected since 1966 by Richard S. Munroe, who intended to compile it, for this newer edition, during the year of 1978/1979. Unfortunately, Richard passed away suddenly in August 1978, while we were vacationing in California at Moro Bay, after attending the Tenth Annual Gathering of Clan Munro Association, U.S.A., which was held at the Del Coronado Hotel, Coronado, San Diego, California.

This material is now being completed by Ann Monroe Organ, with my best wishes.

INTRODUCTION

Little did I dream four years ago, when my daughter discovered Hudson's History of Lexington in the Forbes Library of Northampton, Mass., and handed me the book saying, "Daddy look at this wonderful book," that I'd be writing this introduction to a work of my own. Previous to this trip to the library, a cousin on my mother's side of the family had me slightly interested in genealogy, it was all new to me. But, very late that same evening when I came across my great grand-father's name, Benjamin Sweetzer Munroe, in the genealogical section of Hudson's work, I began to dream about how nice it would be if one could bring all this material up to date.

Now after over four years of anticipation, this genealogy of the Monro, Monroe, Munro and Munroes of Lexington, Massachusetts has become a reality. Although the main effort has been to search out the male line, whenever information or knowledge of the female lines were offered, they were included.

No excuse is offered for errors that may be found as they are inherent in an undertaking of this nature. But, all information has been carefully checked to the best of my ability. To all our kinsmen, all that I ask is that this volume will be accepted with the good faith in which it was undertaken. My most sincere appreciation is extended to the many Munroes and Munroe descendants who have come forth with information that has helped to weave together these eleven generations. The main design of this effort is to preserve our family history for our posterity, recording facts known to-day, so that in the future they will not become clouded with tradition.

Many miles of travel have been spent in gathering information and records, vital statistic books have been carefully gleaned, histories of Massachusetts towns studied for clues and records, as well as those of other states; correspondence has been far reaching and rewarding.

While gathering the information for this memorial, to those past and present, and particularly to those of our family that have gone to that bourne of no return; has been likened to a travel through the pages of our American History, with our ancestors acting as guides.

Although we open our genealogy with our first ancestor in this country, William[1] Munroe, it must be clearly understood that we are not sure of his origin. Even though the statements made about him, such as the place of his birth, his arrival in this country, and his participation at the battle of Worcester, as they appear in this work, are some-what on the border of tradition. But of one thing we are sure, and that is he is our first American ancestor. Following this introduction is a letter from the Hon. Editor of the Clan Munro Magazine of Scotland. This letter will bear out that of which I have just spoken, in regard to William[1] Munroe.

In conclusion to my humble efforts, I say to you, let us be proud, and guided by our ancestry and family heritage, being ever mindful to be humble. We are judged by our own deeds, efforts and compassion and not by those of our forbears.

Richard S. Munroe

THE SCOTTISH DESCENT OF OUR FIRST AMERICAN ANCESTOR

(A Letter to the Compiler from the Hon. Editor, Clan Munro Magazine, October 1965)

It was perhaps rather rash of me to offer some comments on the Scottish descent of your first American ancestor, as a preface to the detailed study which you have been making of his descendants. But I have read all that I could lay hands on about the subject, in books published on both sides of the Atlantic, and in addition I have access to an unpublished manuscript (compiled 1734) which is the foundation of most Munro genealogy in Scotland; and I believe it is worth setting down the facts as far as they are known, even if the evidence on some points is shown not to be as strong as we could have wished. In a case like this, too, I feel it is important that genealogists should realize just what part of the evidence is from American sources, and what from Scottish: otherwise we may confuse ourselves and each other by believing that facts established on one side are confirmed by independent sources on the other when in fact they are not.

Please do not get me wrong over this. I am no debunker of cherished beliefs, and I am all for strengthening the bonds of clanship throughout the world. That, in fact, is what our Clan Munro (Association), through nine issues of the Clan Munro Magazine and otherwise, has been trying to do for nearly thirty years. If this letter shakes some of the certainty about your family descent, that does not mean that our cousinship is in any way impaired, but simply that we must look elsewhere for proof of it, or be content with knowing that the link must be there even if its exact detail has been forgotten.

The key figure linking Scotland and America, for you and your many cousins, is of course William, ancestor of the Lexington Munroes, who first appears in America (I understand) as "William Row" in the town records of Cambridge, Mass., in 1657, and who died on 27 January 1717, aged 92. The basic information about him has been in print for more than a century: it was given by John G. Locke, member of the New England Historic-Genealogical Society, in his Book of the Lockes, reprinted in The Munroe Genealogy (Boston and Cambridge, 1853), pages 2 to 5, and by Charles Hudson in his History of the Town of Lexington (Boston, 1868), pages 147 to 148.

Regarding William's origin, several suppostions have been made, and they were apparently communicated by, or at any rate accepted in the family. Locke "supposed" him to have been one of the four Scottish prisoners named Munrow—Robert, John, Hugh, "and one other whose first name is obliterated by time"—who were recorded at Boston on 13 May 1652 as having been consigned to Thomas Kemble there from London on 11 November 1651 by John Reex, Robert Rich, and William Greene in the "John and Sara" (John Greene, master); these prisoners, Locke believed, were probably taken at the battle of Worcester, fought on 3 September 1651. Hudson also wrote that this prisoner was "supposed to be William, the ancestor of the Lexington Munroes," and he added that William was born in Scotland in 1625.

So much for American sources; and it will be noted that neither Locke nor Hudson have any information about William's parentage. Now let us look at the matter from this side of the Atlantic.

Alexander MacKenzie (1838-98), an Inverness business man, journalist and publisher, produced as the last of a series on the Scottish clans a History of the Munros, which was published shortly after his death. Much of the genealogical matter is based on earlier (and partly unpublished) collections made by Major-General Alexander Stewart Allan (1822) and Alexander Ross (c. 1847-90), of whose work I wrote in the Clan Munro Magazine for 1955 (v. 14-16). Ross had some information about the American branches of the clan, and while his book was in preparation MacKenzie corresponded with James Phinney Munroe (1862-1929), of Boston, who—"with little time and still less experience in matters genealogical," as he admitted, but an acquaintance with Locke's and Hudson's books—secured the inclusion in the History of "as many of the American branches of the Munro Clan as the limited time before publication would permit us to follow up" (J.P. Munroe, A Sketch of The Munro Clan, Boston 1900, p.5).

MacKenzie was I believe the first writer to give William Munro (died 1717) a place in the family tree. According to his History (pp. 347, 559), Robert Munro of Aldie, near Tain in Ross-shire, who belonged to the Coul and Balconie family and was the fifth in descent from George Munro of Foulis (died 1452) by a younger son, married—his wife's name is not stated—and had four sons "all of whom fought in the battle of Worcester"—(1) Robert, (2) George, (3) William, "who was born in 1625, and fought in the battle of Worcester, was taken prisoner, and banished by Cromwell to Boston, Mass., along with several others", &c., (4) Sir Benedict, Baron of Meikle Dorfe in Germany, to which he escaped after Worcester, and where he subsequently settled; and a daughter, (5) Elizabeth.

In a preface written by his son, MacKenzie's indebtedness to Stewart Allan and Ross was acknowledged, rather inadequately. The author himself, in the body of the work (pp.560-61), acknowledges James Phinney Munroe's help. In my own view it is quite clear that MacKenzie's acceptance of the fourth "Munrow" on the"John and Sara" as the Lexington family's ancestor William rests solely on Locke's genealogy quoted above. His Massachusetts collaborator repeated it with complete approval (Munro Clan, pp. 19, 21), and added that the brothers Robert, George, William and Benedict "came into the world between 1615 and 1630," although like MacKenzie he did not know their mother's name. He even accepted MacKenzie's published statement that William was born in 1625 as Scottish evidence supporting the identification, whereas I believe it is simply based on his age at death given by Locke and other U.S. sources.

Without MacKenzie's History, Munro genealogy would be much the poorer, but while paying tribute to his diligence it is well to appreciate his limitations. His work can be shown to contain errors attributable to the miscopying or misconstruing of material, either by himself or others. One such error led him to believe the Munros of Kiltearn to be extinct in the male line, which was actually continued by a famous Irish family of Monroes who still flourish (MacKenzie, pp. 380-81; Horace Monroe, Foulis Castle and the Monroes of Lower Iveagh, pp. 5, 27, &c.; Who's Who; cf. 1734 MS., M/72; Calendar of Writs of Munro of Foulis, ed. McInnes, nos. 266, 311, 326; R.W.M. in Ross-shire Journal, 5 January 1951). His account of the Assynt family seems to be a confused version of the 1734 MS., but he does not explain (apart from a similarity of names, and the fact that one of them was at Worcester) why he identifies three of its members as the other prisoners on the "John and Sara" (MacKenzie, pp. 466, 560; 1734 MS., Q/38). And to take another American example, the suggested descent of President James Monroe from another banished clansman, Andrew Munro of the Katewell family (whose brother John was minister of Pomunkie Neck in Virginia), to which MacKenzie gave currency, has not stood up to closer examination (MacKenzie, pp. 480-81; 1734 MS. pedigree, Q/47-8; Clan Munro Magazine, vi. 14-17).

I have been working for some time on MacKenzie's sources, and I do not know any authority for his statement on the parentage of William, or that he and his brothers fought at Worcester. It is certainly not taken from the only earlier account of the Aldie family which I know—the unpublished MS pedigree compiled in 1734 and described in the Clan Munro Magazine for 1961 (vii. 39-41), on a copy of which most of MacKenzie's genealogical framework is obviously based. The writing in the original is not always easy to decipher, but the son of John Munro of Aldie appears as "Robert married at Nurremberge Daniel_____s daughter and had George William Benedict and (?) Eliza." The next entry is "Sir Benedict Baron of Meilke Dorfe in Germany": there is no word here of Robert as the eldest son (1734 MS., M/24-5).

Briefly, then, I would sum as follows regarding your first American ancestor:—It may now be impossible to find exact proof of the origin of Wiliam Munroe, who died in 1717 aged 92, but he was probably descended from the Munros of Foulis, Chiefs of the Clan in Scotland, and shipped to America as a political prisoner. He was supposed by John G. Locke, author of The Munro Genealogy (Boston, 1853), to be the Munrow whose Christian name is obliterated in the list of "servants" sent from London to Boston on Board the "John and Sara" at the end of 1651, soon after the battle of Worcester; and by Alexander MacKenzie, author of the History of the Munros (Inverness, 1898), to be the son of Robert Munro of Aldie, near Tain in Ross-shire, fifth in descent from George Munro of Foulis (died 1452). Nothing has been found to contradict these statements, but proof of them is at present lacking.

As James Phinney Munroe wrote (Munro Clan, p. 48):—"Since there is no doubt that old William Munro, of Lexington, was a Scotchman, and since , being so, he must have been of the Clan Munro, the question of his exact descent is really now of minor consequence. Even should it be disproved that he was one of th sons of Robert of Aldie, it would still be beyond dispute that he was a descendant, through one of the many lines, from some of the Barons of Foulis."

I am quite happy to leave the last word to one of your own branch, and to assure you and your innumerable cousins in the States that a warm welcome awaits any who manage to come over and visit the cradle of your race in Scotland.

A NOTE ON MUNROS AT THE BATTLE OF WORCESTER (1651)

It may be of interest to mention that at least two Munro officers were killed at Worcester, and several other clansmen are known to have fought in the battle. All were on the King's side, but the Clan does not seem to have acted as a unit in this campaign. The Chief, Sir Hector, was then a boy of 15, who was to die before the year was out; his cousin Sir George was a leading Royalist general, but the Tutor of Foulis was Sir George's elder brother, Colonel Robert Munro of Obsdale, who was "of different principles" and favored Cromwell's Commonwealth.

Some particulars of those at Worcester can be gathered together from various sources, of which the principle is the MS. pedigree of 1734. David Munro, Lieut.-Colonel in the Earl of Kellie's Regiment of Foot, who was a brother of Sir Alexander Monro of Bearcrofts, fell "in desperately retarding the pursuit after the King" (1734 MS., L/46; MacKenzie, p. 309; Prof. Alex. Monro's "Autobiography" in University of Edinburgh Journal, xvii. 80). The other officer killed was John Monro of Delny, Major in General Thomas Dalyell's Regiment of Foot (1734 MS., L/104; MacKenzie, p. 301, also says a cousin Hugh was "supposed to have fought at the battle of Worcester," p. 300).

Major Hector Monro of Coul, who had been in the German wars under Gustavus Adolphus and was wounded at Oldenburg in 1627, intended to march with the expedition gathering in April 1651 and may have done so (1734 MS., M/44; MacKenzie, pp. 385, 386; R. Munro's Expedition, i 18,23; Inverness and Dingwall Presbytery Records, p. 210). John of the Assynt branch, "went to the Armie to Worcester 1651" (1734 MS., Q/41; MacKenzie, p. 466, says also brother Hugh and uncle Robert); Hector, of the Kilmorack branch "was sent from Worcester to Barbadoes" (1734 MS., L/113; MacKenzie, P. 291).

The compiler of the 1734 pedigree, it will be seen, knew about most of the Munros whose names have survived as participants at Worcester; but he includes no William among them, and has nothing to say of the son of Robert Aldie who bore that name.

PROOF THAT WILLIAM[1] MUNROE OF LEXINGTON, MASS. WAS ONE OF THE SCOTTISH PRISONERS ABOARD THE JOHN AND SARAH

For well over fifty years people have been questioning the truth of the statements made by John G. Locke and Charles Hudson that William[1] Munroe of Lexington, Mass., was one of the prisoners of war, sent to the colonies by Oliver Cromwell, aboard the John and Sarah. The 133rd name on the passenger list is a Munrow, whose christian name has been torn.

A

First, let us take into consideration the Book of the Lockes by John G. Locke published in 1853. Mr. Locke makes the statement that William[1] Munroe was aboard the John and Sarah as one of Cromwell's prisoners of war. Locke must have known quite a bit about the Munroe family because of the many marriages between these two families. It is quite possible that this was a known fact, passed on by word of mouth from father to son, and so on. In those days it was not considered as necessary, as it is to-day, to prove what were known facts, hence Mr. Locke may have been of this same opinion.

The book pages next referred to in the following five paragraphs are in the History and Genealogy of the Lexington, Mass. Munroes, published in 1966 by Richard S. Munroe.

Now let's take another analysis, on page 14, Jonas[3] Munroe, family no. 11-8, third generation, married Joanna Locke. This Jonas[3] was born in 1707, lived in Lexington, and was 17 at the time of his grandfather William[1] Munroe died. Hence it is very possible that he heard the story direct from his grandfather, and Mrs. Munroe being a Locke could have passed it on to others on the paternal side of her family.

Next, on page 20, William[3] Munroe, family no. 14-1, married a Locke. Again we have an opportunity for the John and Sarah story to be passed on in the Locke family. This William[3] Munroe was also 17 years old when his grandfather died, lived in Lexington, and could have heard the story direct from his grandfather and/or his father.

The above William[3] Munroe had a daughter Hannah[4], family no. 14-18, see pages 20 and 51. On p. 51 we find that Hannah[4] Munroe married William Porter and they had a daughter Hannah[5] Porter, family no. 14-18-5. Hannah[5] married William Locke, and here again is another avenue for the story of William[1] Munroe to be carred on in the Locke family.

Abigail[5] Munroe, page 80, family no. 13-31-5, married Joseph Locke and again the John and Sarah story has another chance to propagate into the Locke family lore. Her grandfather William[3] Munroe was 14 years old at the time of William[1] Munore's death, and he too could have come by the story first hand, or even known it from his own father.

The last argument in this series takes into account Thaddeus[5] Munroe, page 97, family no. 14-51-2. Thaddeus too could have acquired the above knowledge from his father George[4] Munroe page 53, who in turn could have received it from his father George[3] Munroe page 20. George[3] Munroe was 10 years old when William[1] Munroe died. It is stated in Hudson's History of Lexington, that the original grant to William[1] Munroe was in the possession of this branch of the Family. It is highly probable that Thaddeus[5] must have known about his grandfather's entry into this country, whereby this family had the original grant. He married Rebecca Locke and again is another doorway for the story to become a part of the Locke family knowledge about William[1] Munroe.

B

We can now offer further evidence to establish the fact that William[1] Munroe was one of the Scottish prisoners of war aboard the John and Sarah. The folowing information was just uncovered by Mrs. Philip E. Wait on 26 Oct. 1966, in the Ancestry of Frances Webster Fish, at the New England Historical Genealogical Society's library at Boston, Mass. Their book call no. G-Fis-78.

Frances W. Fish includes the following testimony of William[1] Munroe, in her genealogy.

"Wm[11] Munroe evidence"

Frances W. Fish makes note that the above paper was discovered by a Mr. George S. Stewart.

Mrs. Philip E. Wait has tried to locate the original copy of the above testimony of William[1] Munroe and as yet it hasn't been located. There can be no doubt that it did exist, because Frances Fish would have had nothing to gain by invention, Munroe was only a collateral line in her ancestry.

But! Mrs. Wait did locate an earlier deposition of William[1] Munroe, that causes challenge to anyone's disbelief of the above paper no. 5. She has had photostats made of this original, which is now included here for our judges. It reads —

"The testimony of William Munroe aged 56 years or thereabout testfyeth & sayth that he hath known ye land which now Cutter posseth 40 years & occupied ye land a considerable time, & it was ye usual watering place for ye people at ye upper end of Manattomy to water ye cattle, both in ye Mill pond & at ye Mill Brook without molestation to his knowledge.

Should anyone question why William's age is stated as 56 on the June 2nd deposition and 57 on paper no. 5, let him consider the possibility that William's birthday may have fallen between these two events. We can now establish that he must have been born in 1635 not 1625 and that he was 82 years old at the time of his death not 92 as shown on his gravestone. Dates on gravestones are not always correct.

Upon examination of the "Town and Selectman's Records of Newtowne and Cambridge 1630 to 1703," page 50 in the original records, we find the following information.

"17th 7th mo 1657

The Townsmen do grant liberty unto Richard Jackson to fell timber on the Coman for reparaccon of his fences.-

The Townsmen do Order that the high way into Pine Swamp feild, begining at Edw: Halls house, shall be continued where it hath formrly used for divers years past, to ly about one pole in breadth fo as two carts may meet wthout damage each to other.

Whereas the Conftables of this towne are put to great trouble and expence of their time by seur all perfons that either obftinately refufe or carefly neglect to pay their refpective fines or rates haveing ben lawfully demanded. The Townsmen do therefore Oreder and hereby impower the Confstable or any other perfon impowered for receiving such fines or rates to levy the same be difterefs, vppon th' estate of fuch ferfon fo refufeing or neglecting, and wth the fame for his paynes and travell two fhillings, for each rate or fine so taken by distrefs.----

Enf: Edw: Winship informed the Townfmen of thefe feurall perfons vnder written, for breach of the town orders, whofe fines according to the towne order are as followeth

Jn° Swan	00-19-09
Jn° Adams	00-01--06
Wm Bull	00-00-03
Tho Gleifon	00-05-09
Wm Munrow	00-00-06
Wm Rufsell	00-02-06
Rich: Cutter	00-00-03
ffra: Whitmore	00-00-09"

Note that in the above the names of three people that had to pay fines; William Bull, mentioned in paper no. 5; William Munroe, mentioned in paper no. 5 and the May 18th deposition; John Adams, in paper no. 5, this may be the Adams to whom William was a servant; and finally Richard Cutter, who may have been a relative to William Cutter of paper no. 5.

Summarizing part B of this dissertation these are the pertinent facts to be considered.

1. The May 18th deposition mentions a Cutter and so does paper no. 5, there is no doubt this is one and the same person, William Cutter and the same deponent.
2. The Wm Bull deceased in paper no. 5 must be the same Wm Bull fined along with William[1] Munroe, above.
3. There is too much coincidence in all the foregoing to have it be anything but fact.

From all the previous information presented here in parts A and B; William[1] Munroe of Lexington Mass., who died 27 Jan. 1717/18, must have been the 133rd name on the list of passengers aboard the John and Sarah, whose given name (William) has been torn.

SCOTCH PRISONERS SENT TO MASSACHUSETTS IN 1652, BY ORDER OF THE ENGLISH GOVERNMENT.

(From the first volume of the Registry of Deeds, Boston, County of Suffolk).

(The following extract from Hutchinson's Collection of Original papers doubtless has reference to some Prisoner Passengers in the same situation as those whose names are here given. The extract is from a letter of Mr. John Cotton, minister of Boston, to Lord General Cromwell, dated "Boston, N. Eng., 28 of the 5th, 1651." This letter having been written before the arrival of these prisoners, could not refer to them, although they may have been among those taken at Dunbar. That battle was fought Sept. 3, 1650.

"The Scots, whom God delivered into your hands at Dunbarre, and whereof sundry were sent hither, we have been desirous (as we could) to make their yoke easy. Such as were sick of the scurvy or other diseases have not wanted physick or chyrurgery. They have not been sold for slaves to perpetual servitude, but for 6 or 7 or 8 yeares, as we do our owne; and he that bought the most of them (I heare) buildeth houses for them, for every four an house, layeth some acres of ground thereto, which he giveth them as their owne, requiring 3 dayes in the weeke to worke for him (by turnes) and 4 dayes for them themselves, and promiseth, as soone as they can repay him the money he layed out for them, he will set them at liberty.")

EXPLANATION OF THE NUMBERING SYSTEM USED IN THIS BOOK

In the following explanation the lineage of the compiler's daughter will be used as an example. Her family number is, 14-19-32-42-11, Lee Parker Munroe. Birth, marriage, death dates and all vital statistics are left out in this explanation for expediency.

Starting with William[1] Munroe, his family number is "1" shown before his name in generation one. His children were: 1 John, 2 Martha, 3 William, 4 George, 5 Daniel, 6 Hannah, 7 Elizabeth, 8 Mary, 9 David, 10 Eleanor, 11, Sarah, 12 Joseph, 13 Benjamin, 14 Susanna.

The next ancestor is George[2] Munroe, in italics above, he is the fourth child of William[1] Munroe, so George's family number becomes 14. The digit one for his father William, and the digit four because George is William's fourth child. George[2] Munroe is found in generations one and two, with the number 14 before his name. His children were: 1 William, 2 Sarah, 3 Dorothy, 4 Lydia, 5 George, 6 Robert, 7 Samuel, 8 Andrew, 9 Lucy.

Now then the next ancestor is William[3] Munroe, in italics above, his is the first child of George[2] Munroe, so William's family number becomes 14-1. The number 14 for his father George, and the digit one because William is the first child of George. It should be noted right here that after every pair of digits a hyphen is used, the reason for this will be explained later. William[3] Munroe is found in generations two and three, with the number 14-1 before his name. His children were: 1 James, 2 Isaac, 3 Asa, 4 Rebecca, 5 Lydia, 6 Amos, 7 Mary, 8 Hannah, 9 Philemon, 10 William.

This brings forth the next ancestor Philemon[4] Munroe, in italics above, he is the ninth child of William[3] Munroe, so Philemon's family number becomes 14-19. The number 14-1 for his father William, and the digit nine because Philemon is the ninth child of William. Philemon[4] Munroe is found in generations three and four, with the number 14-19 before his name.

In the explanation thus far we have italicized the ancestors of Lee Parker Munroe, and will continue on in like manner to her place in this genealogy. As you now follow each step it should be self-explanatory.

The children of Philemon were: 1 Thomas, 2 Elizabeth, 3 Edwin, 4 Josiah, 5 Catherine, 6 Parnel, 7 Charles, 8 Harrison Gray Otis.

Edwin[5] Munroe family number 14-19-3. His children were: 1 Edwin, 2 Benjamin Sweetzer, 3 Eliza Ann, 4 Martha Fowle, 5 Henry Fowle, 6 Emeline Reed, 7 Henry Fowle, 8 Faustina. Edwin[5] Munroe is found in generations four and five.

Benjamin[6] Sweetzer Munroe family number 14-19-32. His children were: 1 Hannah Annette, 2 Annie Sargent, 3 George Arthur, 4 Herbert Sweetzer. Benjamin[6] Sweetzer Munroe is found in generations five and six.

Herbert[7] Sweetzer Munroe family number 14-19-32-4. His children were: 1 Edith Frances, 2 Herbert Chester. Herbert[7] Sweetzer Munroe is found in generations six and seven.

Herbert[8] Chester Munroe family number 14-19-32-42. His child is: 1 Richard Stanley Munroe. Herbert[8] Chester Munroe is found in generations seven and eight.

Richard[9] Stanley Munroe family number 14-19-32-42-1. His child is 1 Lee[10] Parker Munroe. Richard[9] Stanley Munroe is found in generations eight and nine.

Lee[10] Parker Munroe family number 14-19-32-42-11. Lee[10] Parker Munroe is found in generation nine.

The reason for the hyphen between each pair of digits is explained as follows. William[1] Munroe had 14 children, if we want to express the number for his twelfth child Joseph, and wrote it thusly 112, it would have three digits, one, one and two. Now let's express it in this manner 1/12, the slash line indicating that any two digit number to its left or right is to be considered as a digit, hence the 12 at the right of the slash line is considered a digit, like the numbers one to nine. Now then we need the hyphen between each pair of digits, so that a number such as this can be distinguished, 1/12-41-11/, this number represents five generations, each digit represents a generation, in this example the number 12 at the right of the slash line counts as a single digit in like manner, hence this number has five digits, one for each generation. The fourth generation of this number is 1/12-41, the third generation is 1/12-4 and the second generation 1/12. These numbers can be found in this book, 1/12 Joseph2 Munroe is found in generations one and two, 1/12-4 Joshua Munroe is found in generations two and three, 1/12-41 Thaddeus Munroe is found in generations three and four, 1/12-41-11/ Jeptha Munroe is found in generations four and five.

A Letter from the Hon. Historian
Clan Munro (Association), Scotland

Mr. R.W. Munro still holds the views expressed in his letter of 1965, but asks that the following notes may be added:

(1, p. v.) The Munro genealogy referred to in the letter as the "1734 MS" is now in print, having been published at Edinburgh in 1978 with the generous support of a group of subscribers in the U.S.A., gathered by my friend Richard S. Munroe, author of this book.

(2, p. v.) William Munroe died on 17 January 1717, "aged about 92 years," according to his tombstone at Lexington; documents located by Mrs. Philip E. Wait since I wrote, indicating that he may have been born nearer 1635 than 1625, as in depositions of 1691 he is described as about 56 or 57.

(3, p. v.) The first name of the fourth "Munrow" prisoner, thought to have been William, seems to have been worn or perhaps torn off rather than "obliterated" (as Locke and Hudson stated) in the list of passengers on the John and Sara, drawn up in London on 11 Nov. 1651 and recorded at Boston on 13 May 1652 (list printed in The New England Historical and Genealogical Register, Vol. 1, Boston, pp. 377-80; photocopy of original obtained per Mrs. Wait in 1967 from George S. Stewart Collection, New England Historical and Genealogical Society Archives, Boston, from original in Suffolk County Deeds, Book 1, pp. 5-6, in Middlesex County Courthouse, Mass.; Estelle W. Wait, The Ancestors and Descendants of Albert Nelson Monroe, Newton Centre, Mass., 1958, p. 2).

(4, p. vi) In the note on Munros at Worcester, it should be stated that Alexander Munro of Bearcrofts, Stirlingshire, was also in the battle, in which his brother Lieut.-Colonel David was killed.

1 WILLIAM MUNROE

[William Munroe is referred to in the Cambridge records in 1657, when he and Thomas Rose were fined for not having rings in the noses of their swine. He was the first of the Munroes in Lexington, Massachusetts.

William, with several of his relatives, was taken prisoner by Cromwell in the battle of Worcester and banished to Boston, Massachusetts along with several others. They were shipped from London on 11 November, 1651, by Jo. Reex, Robert Rich, and William Greene, in the "John and Sarah," John Greene, master, and consigned to Mr. Thomas Kemble of Boston. Those banished and listed on board this vessel were recorded on 13 May, 1652, the list contains four of the name Munroe, viz.: Robert, John, Hugh, and one other whose first name is obliterated by time. This name is supposed to have been William, the undoubted progenitor of the family of the Munroes of Lexington, Massachusetts.

A curious note about these Munroes, being banished from their native land for fighting in the King's interest, Charles I, is that their descendants were the first to make a stand and fire the first shot on the morning of 19 April, 1775 in the American Revolution.

If William was sold as an apprentice when he first arrived here, it must have been rather short for those days, because he must have been his own man about 1657. Around 1660 he settled in the northeasterly part of Cambridge Farms, now known as Lexington, near the Woburn line. In those days this part of the towm was called "Scotland." He was made freeman in 1690 and on 1 February, 1699 was received into Communion of the church. In 1694 he was a selectman of Cambridge and later his name appears in connection with several other important parish offices. In his will, dated 14 November, 1716, he mentions his sons, John, William, George, Daniel, Joseph and Benjamin, and daughters Eleanor Burgess, to whom he gave the sole use of his house, Martha Comee, Hannah Pierce, Elizabeth Rugg, and Mary Fassett.

At first, several of his sons lived with him or not far from him, and it was said by his great-granddaughter, Mrs. Mary Sanderson, who died in 1852, aged 104 years, that his old house looked like a rope walk, so many additions had been made to it to accommodate his sons, as they settled in life. By adopting the custom of the Scottish clans, he, in a sense, confined the Munroes together, and made them for some time, a distinct people.

William's first wife, Martha George, was the daughter of John George of Charlestown, a prominent Baptist, who was fined, imprisoned, and finally ordered out of town for heresy.]

GENERATION 2

11 JOHN MUNROE

[John Munroe was admitted to the church 1 February 1699, together with his father, and sisters Martha Commee, Elizabeth Rugg and Hannah pierce. He was a subscriber for the meeting-house in 1692, and was taxed for the purchase of ministerial land in 1693. He was one of the assessors in 1699, 1714 and 1720; constable in 1700, selectman in 1718, 1719 and 1726; also treasurer in 1718, 1719 and 1720. He was employed several years to ring the bell and sweep out the meeting-house, which shows that he did not consider it derogatory to perform any honest labor. He also illustrated the truth of the old ballad, that "there are sweepers in the high life as well as in low;" for in addtion to sweeping the meeting-house, he filled most of the important offices in the town.

In consequence of the number of Munroes in Lexington, and the repetition of the names William, John, George, Mary, Hannah and Sarah it was difficult to distinguish between them; this difficulty was felt by them and their contemporaries so they used certain other designations. A specimen is shown in the following couplet, preserved by one of the descendants.

"Lieutenant John and Ensign Roe, Sergeant George and Corporal Joe."

From the above titles it can be seen that the family, true to their instincts, were given to the military, and that John was honored with the office of Lieutenant. John Munroe along with others had nine hundred acres of land granted to them in 1735, for services rendered in the Indian fight at Lamprey River, 6 June 1690.]

In the History of Cambridge, Mass. 1630 to 1877, by Lucius R. Paige, on page 613, Mr. Paige says, "I suspect that John the father had two wives; and that the second, married probably in 1700 was Hannah, daughter of John Marrett, whose first husband, Samuel Hastings, Jr., d. 28 Sept. 1699."

The compiler of this Genealogy of the Munroes of Lexington has good reason to believe that Hannah was John Munroe's first wife, for the following reasons.

[In the book of Lexington Epitaphs by Francis H. Brown, M.D. published by the Lexington Historical Society in 1905, on page 85, is the epitaph of Hannah Munroo and reads as follows: here lyes the body of Hannah Munroo wife to John Munroo aged 42 years 4 months and 19 days died April ye 14th 1716.]

The first child of John Munroe and his wife was John, bap. 1 Jan. 1698/99 and the last child Marrett was b. 6 Dec. 1713; this shows that all ten of John the father's children were born in the life span of Hannah Munroo, who d. 14 April 1716, the vital records of Lexington also show this death date for Hannah. The History of Cambridge, by Paige, page 482, shows her birth to be 17 Aug. 1668. There is a five year discrepancy of her age on her grave stone but this was possibly an error, actually she was 47 years 7 months and 27 days old at the time of her death.

The second wife must have been Rachel without any doubt, because of a conveyance from Rachel Munroe to her daughter-in-law Deliverance Munroe. In October 1964, Mrs. Carrol M. Johnson of Antrim, N.H., (family no. 11-10/5-63-12-3) loaned me this will dated, 18 August 1737. This conveyance mentions in part, "unto my beloved daughter in law Deliverance Munore the wife of Marrett Munroe, etc." Since this is dated in 1737, Rachel must have been the second wife of John Munroe. Lexington, vital records show Rachel d. 29 May 1741.

Hence Mr. Paige was right that John Munroe the father had two wives, but the first was Hannah and the second Rachel. Another strong point in this favor is the first daughter was named Hannah and the last child was named Marrett.

Here follows the conveyance of Rachel Munroe to Deliverance Munroe:

Rachel Munroe

Conveyance to

Deliverance Munroe

"To all people to whom these presents shall come greetings

Know yee that whereas John Munroe of Lexington in the County of Middlesex and the Province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England Govt. hath by a certain instrument bearing date January 7th 1734/5 among other things given unto Rachel his wife the whole of her goods and chattel she brought with her at her marriage to him, to be by her taken into possession at his decease that in such of them as are then in being and in case the said Rachel deceases first he have given power to her heirs or assigns to demand and recover the same. Now I the said Rachel Munroe do as these presents give consent convey and confirm the same the whole thereof, bed and bedding, chests, chairs, tabby, glasses, milk vessels, both wooden and earthen and any other particular not mentioned, excepting a finale brass kettle which I reserve for my daughter Butterfield, unto my Beloved Daughter in Law Deliverance Munroe the wife of Marrett Munroe in case that she recovers to health after the birth of her first child and survives me, to be by her taken into possession immediately at my said husbands and my decease, and to be at her own disposal forever but in case she could not survive the birth of her first child, or should decease before me, then this conveyance is to become void —. But upon no other condition shall it be lawfull for any other person what ever to hinder her, her heirs or assigns from taking the same at the time above mentioned, and peacibly possessing or dispossessing, of them. In witness whereof I the said Rachel Munroe have here unto putt my hand and seal this 18th of August AD:1737 and in the eleventh year of his Majesty's Reign."

19 DAVID MUNROE

The following account is taken from the New England Historical and Genealogical Register, Vol. C, 1946.

David Munroe, b. in Cambridge Farms, now Lexington, Mass., 6 Oct. 1680, d. in Canterbury, Windham County, Conn., 19 June 1755. He m. Deborah How, b. 19 Oct. 1685, d. in Canterbury 1 Sept. 1748, dau. of Samuel and Mary (Nutting) How of Concord, Mass.

The Lexington records mention only the birth of David Munroe, but Conn. was then being settled by emigrants from the colonies of Plymouth and Mass. Bay, and in April 1705 he and his wife are found in Canterbury, when their first child was born.

The town of Canterbury contained but ten families when it was endowed with town privileges in 1703. In 1714 Samuel Adams and Obadiah Johnson conveyed a farm of 136 acres to David Munroe, by deed recorded in Canterbury. In 1722 David and Deborah joined the church in Canterbury. In 1723 a division of common lands was made among those residents of Canterbury "who were settled inhabitants and paid to ye building of ye meeting-house and minister's home" which were completed in 1711. In this allotment David received one and one-half shares. In 1743 a controversy arose among the members of Canterbury church over a sermon by its minister which did not meet the views of many of them. A committee recommended the minister's dismissal, David and five others made written protest against the committee's report, severely criticising its motives. The committee retaliated by recommending that David and his associates be expelled from the church. The matter was finally settled by dismissal of the minister, with David and the other protestants remaining in the Church.

The identity of David Munroe of Canterbury as the son of William Munroe of Cambridge Farms was questioned by one writer upon the ground that not being mentioned in William's will it indicated that David probably died young. Later, however, Rev. Mr. Northrup and Dr. Will S. Munroe, author and prominent educator, for many years professor of psychology in Montclair, N.J., State Normal School, in their preparation of the "Genealogy of Josiah Munroe," after much careful research became convinced, and so stated in their publication, that David of Canterbury was, without a doubt, the son of William of Cambridge Farms.

Their conclusions were based upon the following, among other circumstances: David, appearing as he did, among the early settlers of Canterbury, must have emigrated there from some other place, but the records of emigrants to New England prior to that time and the published vital statistics of Mass., Rhode Island and Conn. disclosed no one bearing that name who could have been identified with him other than William's son David; between the time of his baptism in Lexington in 1699 and the birth of his first child in Canterbury in 1705, he was of the age when one might expect him to marry and establish a home in a new community; there was a family tradition that he came from Cambridge; his grandson, John Munroe, who lived and died in Canterbury, left a written family record which passed to John's granddaughter, Mary Munroe Collins, who retained it until it was destroyed by a fire which burned the Collins home in 1890, but she well remembered its contents which told of the coming of William from Scotland to Mass. and the settlement of his son, David, in Canterbury, all of which she related to Doctor Monroe when he visited Canterbury in 1912 collecting material for their work. Moreover, it appeared that four of David's seven daughters, viz., Mary, Eleanor, Elizabeth and Sarah bore the given name of his grandfather and his uncle. It would be quite unreasonable to presume that such a coincidence of names would occur except in immediately related families. In addition to all this Mrs. Collins told Doctor Monroe, and after her death, her son informed him of this sketch that his mother had told him that David's wife came from Concord, Mass. A search of the Concord vital records disclosed only one woman named Deborah, born there of marriageable age for David, viz., Deborah How, daughter of Samuel and Mary How. Upon further search it was found that Samuel How had joined the tide of emigration to Conn. According to the "Howe Genealogies" published by the New England Historical and Genealogical Society, he resided in Concord until shortly after 1700 when he moved to Plainfield, a new town in Windham County, Conn. It is also there stated that his daughter Deborah married David Monroe and the Probate Records of Plainfield, where he died, show that David Monroe in 1725 receipted for his wife's share of Samuel How's estate. The same records show the distribution of the estate of Mary How who died in 1727 and refer to Deborah Monroe as her daughter.

If David Munroe had died in Lexington, his death would have been recorded in the vital statistics of that town and his remains would have rested in the family burying ground with a tombstone marking his grave as do those of his mother and father. The absence of these is further corroborative proof of the correctness of Rev. Mr. Northrup's conclusion as to the identity of David Munroe of Canterbury as William's son of that name. In 1913 the Lexington Historical Society published a revised edition of Hudson's "History of Lexington" in which David Munroe was shown as a son of William. The correction relating to him, appearing in Vo. II, after the index at page 6 of Additions and Corrections, read as follows: "Before Joseph no. 6 on page 461 insert; David[2] Munroe (William[1]) b. 6 Oct. 1680; d. 19 June 1755. He removed to Canterbury, Conn. and bought land 22 Feb. 1715. In 1723, received 1½ shares of land, as one who paid towards the meeting-house and minister's house, which were completed in 1711. His will was probated 8 Sept. 1755."

13-8 PHILIP MUNROE

The History of Surry, N.H., 1769 to 1922 by Frank Burnside Kingsbury, shows Philip[3] Munroe and mentions that he m. Abigail _____, that they are both buried in Surry and had the following children: Philip, b. about 1753, Isaac, b. 1767, Abel, b. 1775, Sally, b. about 1778 and Jonas; also that there were probably others.

The first four children of Philip[3] and his first wife Mary and his mother Johanna had all died by 23 Dec. 1749, as can be seen in Hudson's History of Lexington, Mass. and the Lexington vital records, the children were, Mary, Lois, Johanna and Prudence; at this time Philip[3] was 31 years old. He must have married his second wife, Abigail, between 1749 and 1753. From the 35th to 60th year of his age, 11 more children were born to him and Abigail, she was about 22 when the first was born and 47 at the birth of their last child.

In communication with Mr. Hiram Harlow an historian of Shrewsbury, in 1963, to gain more information about Philip[3] Munroe and his family, Mr. Hiram Harlow furnished the following information establishing Philip[3] Munroe of Lexington, Shrewsbury and Surry N.H. as one and the same person.

Philip[3] was of Shrewsbury, Boylston and Rutland, Mass. had a son Philip[4] Munroe, Jr. The first Shrewsbury deeds call Philip[3] Munroe of Lexington, Mass. a little later he was called of Shrewsbury. There are 18 land transfers of places that he bought and sold, he lived on one of the places called the 'Roe farm, which was still standing in 1963.

He was living on the "Hill" in what is now Boylston and in his time was Shrewsbury North Precinct. Two of his children were baptised in the church of the North Precinct or Second Parish, Isaac and Jacob on the same day, 2 Nov. 1769. Philip[3] Munroe started acquiring land in Shrewsbury Area about 1763, he sold 5 acres to Jonathan Weelock in Shrewsbury in 1763, and in 1765 he purchased a piece of land from Benjamin Tainter. In the deeds he is called "Philip Munro a labourer." Today he would be called a land speculator. Most of the deeds call him of Shrewsbury, two call him of Rutland. Two deeds establish his connection to Surry, N.H., they were to Philip[4] Munro of Surry, in the county of Cheshire in N.H.; Philip[4] Munro is called a physician, the first deed is dated 22 Dec. 1789 and the second 29 Dec. 1789 and these pieces he sold to his son for what he paid for them. The last two deeds of Philip[3] Munroe were to Philip Munro, Jun., book 107 page 531 and book 108 page 246.

Dr. Philip[4] Munro sold one of the following year to Jonathan Smith 1790, Philip[4] Munro, Jr. had established himself of Surry, N.H. about 1783.

The above information shows that both Dr. Philip[4] and Dr. Isaac[4] Munro were both sons of Philip[3] Munroe; and the Philip[3] of Surry, N.H. is The Philip[3] of Lexington & Shrewsbury, Mass.

14-6 ROBERT MUNROE

[Robert Munroe was a soldier in the French War, was the standard bearer at the taking of Louisburg, in 1758, he was also in the service in 1762. Having served the colonies against the French and Indians, it is natural to expect that he would be true to the family instinct, and the call of patriotism to defend the colonies against any other enemy. And so he was. He was the ensign of Captain Parker's company, and was on the Common on the 19th of April 1775, and stood at his post; and fell, one of the first victims of British oppression, on the very field where he was posted by his gallant commander. He was 64 years old at the time of his death.]

19-8 SAMUEL MONROE

Samuel Monroe was of Canterbury, and Willington, Conn., he died while serving with the Conn. troops in the Revolutionary War.

Abigail (Read) Monroe was admitted to the First Church of Christ of Canterbury in May 1745, upon a letter of recommendation and later was admitted to the church at Willington, upon a letter from the church at Canterbury.

Samuel Monroe served in the French and Indian War in the company commanded by Captain Jedediah Fay of Ashford, Conn., from 10 Apr. to 3 Sept. 1758, and in the campaign of 1759 under Captain Slap of Mansfield, Conn. In the Revolutionary War he served in the fourth company, eighth Regiment of Conn. Volunteers, from 8 July to 30 Nov. 1775 and re-enlisted 14 May 1776 for one year in Captain Oziah Pettibone's company of Colonel Ward's Regiment. He died in the service 15 Jan. 1777, as shown by a certificate filed in the Archives in the Conn. State Library.

His widow Abigail Monroe was appointed administratrix of his estate in Aug. 1777. She filed claims for his clothing and accoutrements which is also on file in the archives and was allowed 12lb 11s 6d 7 Mar. 1778.

Afterwards she and her sons Isaac, Leonard and William moved to Chenango County, N.Y., where she died and was buried beside her son William. The headstone marking her grave bears this inscription: "In memory of Widow Abigail Monroe, d. 4 June 1817 in the 95 year of her age."

19-11/ JOSIAH MUNRO(E)

Josiah (No. 43), a son of David and Deborah Munroe (No. 28) was born at Canterbury, Connecticut, September 11, 1728.

A record of his baptism conflicts with that of his birth. Two records of his marriage conflict with each other, and both are probably erroneous. Certain it is, that he married at Canterbury, Sarah Hyde, near the beginning of the year 1752. He inherited in 1755, a portion of his father's estate, and may have lived upon it.

Nothing further is known of his life until the breaking out of the Revolutionary War. As the news of the battle of Lexingtion spread, the local militia everywhere fell in, in large numbers under their own officers, and, without waiting for orders or authority, marched for the scene of conflict. This action was afterwards legalized and lists made of the soldiers who went. The spontaneous character of the service is indicated by the language used; and Josiah Munroe was one of those who from Canterbury, "Marched for the relief of Boston in the Lexington alarm." On this occasion he held the rank of sergeant and was in the service eight days, in April, 1775.

July 11, 1775, he enlisted as a private in the 7th company of the 8th regiment, afterwards adopted into the Continental Army. In September his regiment was ordered to Boston, where it remained till the expiration of the term of service, and Josiah was discharged December 15, 1775.

The following year Captain Timothy Bachus organized in Canterbury a company of "Independent Veterans" of which Josiah was a member. This company did duty at New London in September, and in October at West Chester, N.Y.

April 14, 1777, he enlisted "to serve during the war" in Captain Elisha Lee's company of the 4th Connecticut regiment of the Continent Line, commanded by Col John Durkee. His regiment went into camp at Peekskill. In September it joined Washington's army in Pennsylvania and "marched in the Connecticut Brigade" under General McDougal. At Germantown, October 4, they fought on the left flank. Later his regiment was assigned to Varnum's Brigade and engaged in the desperate defense of Fort Mifflin, November 12 to 16. They wintered at Valley Forge where Josiah died in camp February 19, 1778.

A constant tradition of his death in camp in the service of the Continental Army has come down among the descendants of his son, David; and his death in February, 1778, is recorded in a little memorandum kept during her lifetime by his daughter, Sarah, and now in the possession of Mrs. Daniel T. Bennett, of Marilla, N.Y.

The record of Josiah's last enlistment and death was obtained from the War Department in the following letter.

1843890 WAR DEPARTMENT
The Adjutant General's Office
Washington, November 2, 1911

Respectfully returned to Mr. B.A. Dunn.
801 N. County St.
Waukegan, Illinois.

The records of this office show that one Josiah Munroe served as private in Captain Elisha Lee's Company, 4th Connecticut Regiment, commanded by Colonel John Durkee, Revolutionary war. He enlisted April 14, 1777, to serve during the war, and died February 19, 1778. Nothing further relative to him has been found of record.

F.C. Ainsworth,
The Adjutant General
Per 4.

The record of Josiah's previous service in the Connecticut Militia was obtained principally from the published volume, Connecticut Men in the Revolution. I have been particular to give the above letter from the war department, because in this volume, on page 188 is found exactly the same record, but the first name is Joseph instead of Josiah. Inasmuch as there was but one Joseph Munroe from Connecticut in the Revolutionary war, whose record I also have from the Adjutant General's office at Hartford, Connecticut, and who survived the war; and since the record referred to on page 188 of Connecticut Men in the Revolution actually is the record of Josiah and not of Joseph, I assume that the name Joseph is there an error, and should have been Josiah.

In Volume XII of the publication of the Connecticut Historical Society, Josiah's name is found on page 64 in a list from Canterbury of "men died in the service hired for three years and during the war."

Apparently Josiah died intestate; and no inventory of his estate is to be found on the probate records. But at a session of the Probate court for the district of Plainfield held July 6, 1779, "the widow Sarah Munrow, administratrix of the estate of Mr. Josiah Munrow, late of Canterbury, deceased, exhibited into Court on account of Sundry Debts and Costs found to be due" an order, "for the distribution of said estate to be paid by the several heirs as follows — to rates paid Mr. Gordon, 4, 4, 1; to the distributors, 14, 8, 1; to the Court of Probate, 4, 4, 0 in Continental money." The figures were for pounds, shillings and pence.

The widow, Sarah Munroe, was born September 12, 1733. She married Deacon Jonas Bond of Canterbury, March 18, 1793, and died, probably at Canterbury, February 13, 1794.

11-55 BRIDGET (MUNROE) MAXWELL

b. 27 Apr. 1735 at Lexington, Mass.
d. Heath, Mass.
m. Hugh Maxwell of Bedford, Mass. on 4 Nov. 1760. She was also of Bedford at the time of their marriage.
b. 27 Apr. 1733 at Minterburn, Tyrone County, Ireland. He was the s. of Hugh and Sarah Corbet Maxwell and a descendant in the fourteenth generation of Robert Maxwell of Selkirk, 1355. d. 14/15 Oct. 1799 buried at sea.

Hugh Maxwell (Colonel) and his two brothers and four sisters were brought up by their mother and had no advantages of school when they were young. Their father having died suddenly in 1759, his body was found in the road supposed to have been killed by falling from his horse. Their mother with only her Bible and some other religious books taught them the elements of knowledge that prepared them for usefulness and respectability, some of them occupying positions of trust.

Colonel Hugh was an ardent lover of his country, his first public service was in the French War which broke out in 1755. He was in the battle near Lake George in 1755 and in Fort William Henry when it was surrendered to the French in 1756. As one of the prisoners of the Indians, who caught him and stripped him of everything except his pantaloons, slipped from their capture, seized a gun, and ran for his life toward Fort Edward, which he reached in safety. Gov. Pownal of Mass. appointed him an Ensign in Brigadier Ruggle's Regiment on 31 Mar. 1759.

He had spent a few weeks in school to learn the surveyor's art so at the close of the war in 1759, he returned home to take up his plough and surveyor's instruments.

In 1773 he moved to Charlemont, Hampshire County, Mass., but by the division of both town and county it is now Heath, Franklin County.

He was elected a member to the first Provincial Congress which convened at Salem, 7 Oct. 1774. When he came home he assisted in raising an army and Oliver Avery was chosen Captain and Hugh Maxwell Lieutenant. Made Captain in the regiment of Colonel Wm. Prescott at Cambridge 26 May 1775. Was wounded at Bunker Hill on 17 June 1775, a ball passed through his right shoulder. He was in the operations of Long Island in the vicinity of New York, in Aug. and Sept. 1776, and was in the battle of Trenton and Princeton and Burgoyne, he also saw service at Stillwater and Saratoga.

Having joined the southern army in November he shared the hardships of Valley Forge, was at the battle of Monmouth in June 1778. In 1779 was appointed to the rank of Major, and placed under the command of Major General William Heath, with whom he remained for three years. In Aug. 1783 he received a commission as Lieutenant Colonel in the Mass. line to take rank 12 Oct. 1782, this rank he held to the close of the war.

He was next honored as a member of the Society of the Cincinnati and this document given to him was signed by H. Knox Sec. and G. Washington, President.

Leaving home on the 29th of Dec. 1794 he went to Philadelphia to make a personal application to Congress for a pension as an invalid, but it came to no avail and he returned home with a pocket emptied by the expense of the trip.

Feeling that if he could raise a few hundred dollars it would greatly help in his declining years, he struck upon a new plan. He bought some horses, left home in July 1799 and sailed from Hartford for the West Indies. He had a good and prosperous voyage and just three days before his vessel was to arrive in port, homeward bound, he was taken with a fever on 14 Oct., died and was buried at sea.

11-86 EBENEZER MUNROE

[He was a member of the Lexington minute men, ready to do battle on the 19th of April in freedom's cause. He was wounded in the elbow in the morning, but mounted his horse riding from town to town, alarming the people and rousing them into action, until too exhausted by the loss of blood. He claimed to have fired the first gun on the American side. The testimony of others proved that he did return the fire. He performed other duties in the Revolution, being one of those who joined the campaign in the Jersey's in 1776.

At the close of the war he moved to Ashburnham, Mass., where he was a lieutenant and a respectable citizen. His widow married John Adams, as his second wife. Ebenezer Munroe was half brother to Mr. Adams' first wife.

Mr. Adams spent his youth in West Cambridge, went to Ashburnham previous to the Revolution, lived there until he was nearly 100, the then went to live with a son in Penna., and died there in 1849, aged 104 years, 1 month and 5 days. He retained his faculties to the last, and it is said that he made a pair of shoes the day he was 104.

Here follows the deposition of Ebenezer Munroe, made 2 April 1825:

I, Ebenezer Munroe, of Ashburnham, in the county of Worcester and the commonwealth of Massachusetts, in the seventy-third year of my age, on oath depose and say, that I was an inhabitant of Lexington in the county of Middlesex in the year 1775; that, during the night of the 18th of April of that year, I was alarmed by one Micah Nagles, who stated that the British troops were on their march from Boston, and that Lieutenant Tidd requested myself and others to meet on the common as soon as possible. I accordingly repaired to the common, the usual place of parade, where I found Captain Parker, and, I should think, about forty of the company had collected. The weather being rather chilly, after calling the roll, we were dismissed, but ordered to remain within call of the drum. The men generally went into the tavern adjoining the common. In the mean time, persons were sent towards Boston to get some intelligence, if possible, of the regulars. The last person sent was Thaddeus Bowman, who returned between day-light and sun-rise, and informed Captain Parker, that the British troops were within a mile of the meeting-house. Captain Parker immediately ordered the drum beat to arms. I was the first that followed the drum. I took my station on the right of our line, which was formed from six to ten rods back to the meeting-house, facing south. About seventy of our company had assembled when the British troops appeared. Some of our men went into the meeting-house, where the town's powder was kept, for the purpose of replenishing their stock of ammunition. When the regulars arrived within eighty or one hundred rods, they hearing our drum beat, halted, charged their guns, and doubled their ranks, and marched up at quick step. Captain Parker ordered his men to stand their ground, and not to molest the regulars, unless they meddled with us. The British troops came up directly in our front. The commanding officer advanced within a few rods of us, and exclaimed "Disperse, you damned rebels! you dogs, run! Rush on my boys!" and fired his pistol. The fire from their front ranks soon followed. After the first fire, I received a wound in my arm, and then, as I turned to run, I discharged my gun into the main body of the enemy. As I fired, my face being toward them, on ball cut off a part of my ear locks, which was then pinned up. Another ball passed between my arm and body, and just marked my clothes. The first fire of the British was regular; after that, they fired promiscuously. As we retreated one of our company, Benjamin Sampson, I believe, who was running with me, turned his piece and fired. When I fired, I perfectly well recollect taking aim at the regulars. The smoke, however, prevented my being able to see many of them. The balls flew so thick, I thought there was no chance for escape, and that I might as well fire my gun as stand still and do nothing. I am confident, that it was the determination of most of our company, in case they were fired upon, to return fire. I did not hear Captain Parker's orders to his company to disperse. When the British came up in front of the meeting-house, Joshua Simonds was in the upper gallery, an open cask of gunpowder standing near him, and he afterward told me, that he cocked his gun and placed the muzzle of it close to the cask of powder, and determined to "touch it off," in case the troops had come into the gallery. After our company had all dispersed, and the British troops had done firing, they gave three cheers. After they had marched off for Concord, we took two prisoners who were considerably in the rear of the main body. I carried their arms into Buckman's tavern, and they were taken by some of our men, who had none of their own. I believed at the time, that some of our shots must have done execution. I was afterward confirmed in this opinion, by the observations of some prisoners, whom we took in the afternoon, who stated, that one of their soldiers was wounded in the thigh, and that another received a shot through his hand.

11-10/5 NATHAN MUNROE

[He was a member of Captain Parker's minute men, and took part in the battle of Lexington in 1775. He lived on Monument Street, his house received several balls, which were taken out subsequently, when the house was repaired.] A chest of drawers in Nathan's house was hit by a stray ball which penetrated the front panel of the third drawer down, from the top of the chest. It pierced the panel a bit to the right of the center and tore out a large section of the wood on the inside of the drawer. This chest is still in possession of one of the family in 1964, with the bullet hole still remaining.

Here follows the deposition of Nathan Munroe, made 22 December 1824.

[I, Nathan Munroe, in the county of Middlesex and state of Massachusetts, do testify and say, that I was enrolled as a soldier in the company commmanded by Captain Parker of said Lexington, in the year 1775; and, knowing that several British officers went up the road towards Concord in the evening of the 18th of April of said year, I, with Benjamin Tidd, at the request of my captain, went to Bedford in the evening, and notified the inhabitants through the town, to the great road at Merriam's Corner, so called, in Concord, and then returned to Lexington. When arrived at the common, the bell was ringing, and the company collecting. I immediately got my arms and went to the parade. Captain Parker gave orders to us to load our guns, but not to fire unless we were fired upon first. About five o'clock in the morning, the British made their appearance at the east end of the meeting-house, near where our men were, and immediately commenced firing on us. I got over the wall into Buckman's land, about six rods from the British, and then turned and fired at them. About the middle of the forenoon, Captain Parker, having collected part of his company, marched them towards Concord, I being with them. We met the regbulars in the bounds of Lincoln, about noon, retreating towards Boston. We fired on them, and continued to do so until they met their reinforcement in Lexington.

13-31 EDMUND MUNROE

[Edmund Munroe's wife, Rebecca Harrington, was the sister of Jonathan Harrington, who d. 1854, the last survivor of the battle of Lexington. Edmund Munroe was distinguished as a military man. Entering the provincial service at an early age, promoted to an ensign in a corps of Major Rogers rangers, and saw service in French War. He was acting adjutant in Colonel Hoar's regiment at Crown Point in 1761, received a commission from Governor Bernard in 1762, as lieutenant in His Majesty's service, he continued with the troops at Crown Point, Ticonderoga, and vicinity, until the peace of 1763. His kinsmen Robert and Abraham were officers in the same service with him. Besides serving in the French and Indian war, he was enrolled in the company of the Lexington minute men and was with them on the 19th of April. He further served in the Revolution under Rogers and Hoar. Commissioned lieutenant 12 July 1776 in Captain Mile's company and Colonel Reed's regiment. The 16th of the same month he was made quartermaster and destined to the northern frontier. In a letter to his wife, of 5 Aug. 1776 from Charlestown, N.H., he says, "I have been used very well by the field officers of the regiment. We shall march from this place for Ticonderoga this day."

The first of January 1777, he received his commission of Captain in Colonel Bigelow's regiment. He was in the northern army under Gates, at Stillwater, Saratoga and Benington; and so distinguished himself that after the capture of Burgoyne he was presented by his superior officers a pair of candle-sticks, that were a part of General Burgoyne's traveling equipment or tent ornaments.

After the capture of Burgoyne, Captain Munroe went to the Jerseys, and joined the army under Washington, where, on 28 June 1778 he was slain on the field of Freehold, more commonly called the Battle of Monmouth. The same cannon ball that killed him also took the life of his kinsman George Munroe, and maimed Joseph Cox of Lexington for the rest of his life. The candle-sticks mentioned above, a sword, a curious beaded Indian powder horn, several head belts, pistols and so forth used by Captain Munroe in the French war, were left by his widow, in 1834 to her son Edmund.

Fifteen men from Lexington were in his company in the continental line, they were: Nehemiah Estabrook, David Fiske, Pomp Blackman, Samuel Crafts, Jupiter Tree, Thaddeus Munroe, Amos Russell, George Munroe, Joseph Cox, David Simonds, Ebenezer Hadley, James Fowle, Thomas Hadley, Levi Mead and Seth Read.

One of his original papers left in the family is the oath of office, bearing his signature and that of Baron de Kalb. It reads as follows:

I, Edmund Munroe, Captain in Colonel Bigelow's regiment, do acknowledge the United States of America to be free, Independent, and Sovereign States, and declare that the people thereof owe no allegiance to George, the Third, King of Great Britain; and I renounce and abjure any allegiance or obedience to him; and I do swear that I will to the utmost of my power support, maintain, and defend the said United States against the said King George the Third, his heirs and successors, and his or their abettors, assistants, and adherents; and will serve the said United States in the office of Captain, which I now hold, with fidelity, according to the best of my ability, skill and understanding.

(signed) Edmund Munro Capt.

Sworn to, camp at Valley Forge, 18 May 1778.

(signed) The Baron de Kalb
Major General

Captain Munroe was very brave, without enthusiasm. Some of his letters show this coolness. In a letter to his wife from Valley Forge, 17 May 1778, he says, "I am going on command to-morrow morning down to the enemy lines. There are two thousand going on the command. I am of the mind, we will have a dispute with them before we return." At the time of his death he was forty-two years old. Like most of the men of his day who devoted themselves to public service, he was comparatively poor. He left a widow and four children, the oldest nine years old and the youngest three. His widow moved to West Cambridge, where she died 6 April 1834, aged 83. Honorable mention was made of her in an obituary notice, in the Boston Daily Advertiser of 11 April 1834, a part of which reads as follows: "The worthy lady who is the subject of this notice, with other families in Lexington, fled on the 19th of April, 1775 with their children, to the woods, while their husbands were engaged with the enemy, and their houses were sacked or involved in flames. Her husband was killed at Monmouth in New Jersey, 28 June 1778. On his bereaved partner, in the midst of discouragement, sorrows, and the privations of the times, devolved the task of rearing an infant family. The long life of this venerable lady was a pattern of domestic duties and virtue."]

"The following letter is in the possession of Mrs. Oscar J. Raeder, family no. 13-31-51-63-1, as of 4 Dec. 1964."

My dear

I received one letter from you this day & one yesterday. I rejoyce to hear of your welfare. I am glad to hear you have the harvesting so near done. I am under great obligation to you & hope to make you full satisfaction for all your trouble.

I am sorry to hear that you have lost a cow but misfortunes will happen. I don't doubt but you took as much care of her as I could myself. I received a letter yesterday from Brother Nehemiah. He informs me of your conduct which makes me believe that you are one of the best wives.

We are ordered to march tomorrow by the way of Albany. We expect to be at home in about twelve days from this time. If you could send a horse to meet me I should be glad. We expect to march the post road from Albany to Boston. If you send him as far as Worcester it will be a great help to me. Hire some boy to take him to Sterns Tavern & if I don't meet him leave him. I am well & in high spirits as are all Lexington men being in great (torn). Permit me to close wishing you and the little ones the best of Blessings, I am my dear your most affectionate Husband

Edm. Munro

13-34 WILLIAM MUNROE

[William Munroe was orderly sergeant in Captain Parker's company in 1775; it was under his direction that a guard was posted at Mr. Clarke's house, on the evening of the 18th of April, 1775; and he paraded the men on the common the next morning, in the very face of the British troops.

The services that he performed at the opening of the Revolution, were followed up by services during the progress of the war. He was a lieutenant in the northern army at the capture of Burgoyne, in 1777. He was a prominent citizen, and filled important town offices. For nine years he was a selectman, and represented the town two years. He marched towards Springfield during Shay's Rebellion and was a Colonel in the militia. He kept the public house, long known as the Munroe Tavern. Here the British regaled themselves, and committed many outrages on the 19th of April; here they shot down John Raymond who was leaving the house. In 1789, George Washington dined in the Munroe Tavern, on his visit to Lexington's battle field of Revolution.

Here follows the deposition of William Munroe made 7 March 1825:

I, William Munroe, of Lexington, on oath do testify, that I acted as orderly sergeant in the company commanded by Captain Parker, on the 19th of April, 1775; that early in the evening of the 18th of the same April, I was informed by Solomon Brown, who had just returned from Boston, that he had seen nine British officers on the road, traveling leisurely, sometimes before and sometimes behind him; that he had discovered, by the occasional blowing aside of their top coats that they were armed. On learning this, I supposed they had some design upon Hancock and Adams, who were then at the house of the Reverend Mr. Clarke, and immediately assembled a guard of eight men, with their arms to guard the house. About midnight, Colonel Paul Revere rode up the road and requested admittance. I told him that the family had just retired, and had requested, that they might not be disturbed by any noise about the house. "Noise!" said he, "you'll have noise enough before long. The regulars are coming out." We then permitted him to pass. Soon after, Mr. Lincoln came. These gentlemen came different routes, Revere came over the ferry to Charlestown, and Lincoln over the neck through Roxbury; and both brought letters from Dr. Warren in Boston to Hancock and Adams, stating that a large body of British troops had left Boston, and were on their march to Lexington. On this, it was thought advisable, that Hancock and Adams should withdraw to some distant part of the town. To this Hancock consented with great reluctance, and said, as he went off. "If I had my musket, I would never turn my back upon these troops." I however conducted them to the north part of town, and then returned to the meeting-house, where I arrived at about two o'clock on the morning of the 19th. On the arrival of Colonel Paul Revere, the alarm had been given, and, on my return, I found Captain Parker and his militia company paraded on the common, a little in the rear of the meeting-house. About this time, one of our messengers, who had been sent toward Cambridge to get information of the movement of the regulars, returned and reported, that he could not learn, that there were any troops on the road from Boston to Lexington, which raised some doubt as to their coming, and Captain Parker dismissed his company, with orders to assemble again at the beat of the drum. Between day-light and sun-rise Captain Thaddeus Bowman rode up and informed , that the regulars were near. The drum was then ordered to be beat, and I was commanded by Captain Parker to parade the company, which I accordingly did, in two ranks, a few rods northerly of the meeting-house.

When the British troops had arrived within about a hundred rods of the meeting-house, as I was afterwards told by a prisoner, which we took, "they heard our drum, and supposing it to be a challenge, they were ordered to load their muskets, and to move at double quick time." They came up almost upon a run. Colonel Smith and Major Pitcairn rode up some rods in advance of their troops, and within a few rods of our company, and exclaimed, "Lay down your arms, you rebels, and disperse!" and immediately fired his pistol. Pitcairn then advanced with his troops, and finding we did not disperse, they being within four rods of us, he brought his sword down with great force, and said to his men, "Fire, damn you, fire!" The front platoon, consisting of eight or nine, then fired, without killing or wounding any of our men. They immediately gave a second fire, when our company began to retreat, and as I left that field, I saw a person firing at the British troops from Buckman's back door, which was near our left, where I was parading the men when I retreated. I was afterward told, of the truth of which I have no doubt, that same person after firing from the back door, went to the front of Buckman's house, and fired there. How many of our company fired before they retreated, I can not say; but I am confident some of them did. When the British troops came up, I saw Jonas Parker standing in the ranks, with his balls and flints in his hat, on the ground, between his feet, and heard him declare, that he would never run. He was shot down at the second fire of the British, and, when I left, I saw him struggling on the ground, attempting to load his gun, which I have no doubt he had once discharged at the British. As he lay on the ground, they ran him through with the bayonet. In the course of the day, I was on the ground where the British troops were when they first heard our drum beat, which was one hundred rods below the meeting-house, and saw the ends of a large number, I should judge two hundred, of cartridges which they had dropped, when they charged their pieces. About noon I was at the north part of the town, at the house of Mr. Simmonds, where I saw the late Colonel Baldwin, who informed me, that he had the custody of some prisoners, that had been put under his charge, and requested to know of me what should be done with them. I gave my opinion, that they should be sent to that part of Woburn, now Burlington, or to Chelmsford. On the return of the British troops from Concord, they stopped at my tavern house in Lexington, and dressed their wounds. I had left my house in care of a lame man, by the name of Raymond, who supplied them with whatever the house afforded, and afterwards, when he was leaving the house, he was shot by the regulars, and found dead within a few rods of the house.

Daniel Spooner removed from Petersham, Mass to Vermont and purchased a large tract of land at Hartland, Vt., where he resided. He was a model farmer, accumulated considerable property. Mr. Spooner served in the militia of Mass. during the Revolution, hence it is probable that he didn't go to Hartland until after the war was over.

During the Revolution he volunteered in the Continental Army and became a Lieutenant.

Daniel Spooner was a man of much prominence in the early history of Hartland, energetic, determined, and at all times active and alive to the true interests of the town. Mr. Spooner served a long series of years in the town offices, as Justice of Peace, Selectman, and Representative to the State Legislature.

13-36 NEHEMIAH MUNROE

The home of Deacon Munroe was a large three-story frame building and was for over half a century his residence. It was beyond Vernon Street. He was a known citizen, a cabinet maker by trade. It had been at one time the residence of James Orr, a blacksmith who bought it from Edmund Weld. Vernon Street is in Roxbury, Mass.

"Deacon Roe" as he was called was an odd fish, and something of a humorist, as well as a deacon of Dr. Porter's church. Standing in his doorway one morning, soon after the Universalist Church was built, he was accosted by a stranger, who asked him if he had seen a stray white horse passing that way. "No," was the reply. "Where had I better look for him?" queried the stranger. "Oh well!" said the deacon, "p'r'aps you'd better go to the Universalist grounds, 'bout everything fetches up there nowadays."

Land was purchased from Deacon Nehemiah Munroe for the Dudley Street Baptist Church, the first building, of wood. It was raised 10 May 1820.

Huge boulders of conglomerate were strewn about near his farm and one of them called "Rocking Stone" was a famous natural curiosity, and was located on the Munroe Farm, in the northwest corner of Mr. J.P. Townsend's estate, on Townsend Street.

The Munroe farm of 22 acres, between Munroe and Townsend Streets was bought by the town in 1829.

13-47 DR. EPHRAIM MUNROE

Although the Lancaster, Mass vital records show the marriage of Ephraim Munroe and Mrs. Mary Atherton, the compiler of this genealogy believes his wife to be Mercy Atherton, for the following reasons: Harvard, Mass. vital records list her in the births of her children as Mercy, her death in the Harvard, Mass. vital records also shows her as Mercy, one of her children is named Atherton; the Harvard vital records shows her intention of marriage as Mercy and there are no records of her ever being married before her marriage to Ephraim Munroe, hence she must have been Mercy Atherton, not Mrs. Mary Atherton. This would make her parents, Peter and Experience and her birth date 11 April 1753. Another Mary Atherton married Elijah Ward and they had children as late as 1783 so this excludes the aforementioned Mercy.

13-87 LEMUEL MONROE

Lemuel Monroe was closely associated with General George Washington in the Revolutionary War. He was a dispatch carrier. He is buried at Lakeside Cemetery, three miles west of Howell, Mich. The D.A.R. replaced the crumbled monument with stone which reads, "Lemuel Monroe, 1759-1857 Soldier of the Revolution."

He was a farmer, shoe, and boot maker. He enlisted in the Revolutionary War in 1776 age 17 years, participated in the battle of Bunker Hill, was at Burgoyne's surrender and many other engagements. The records of the War of 1812 show he was a private, Capt. Abraham Matison's Company of Col. Philetus Swift's (Ontario County) Regiment N.Y. State Militia, served from 12 May 1812 to 12 July 1812. There is a stone marker on his grave and at one time there was a D.A.R. marker. He also served in Sullivan's Campaign in Rhode Island under Capt. Thomas Baker, was allowed a pension in 1832.

13-8/11 ISAAC MONROE, DR.

Isaac Monroe was born in 1767, the son of Philip Monroe and his second wife Abigail Parker, in Shrewsbury, Mass. Like his eldest brother Philip, Isaac studied medicine. There is a family tradition that he attended the University of Edinburgh medical school in Scotland. A search of the medical records in 1984 showed no trace of Isaac, but many medical medical students we are told attended lectures of the famous Doctor Alexander Monro without actually being enrolled in the medical school. During Isaac's time it would have been Alexander Secundus 1733-1817.

Isaac married Mary Sweetser in May 1787 when he was twenty and she fifteen. Mary was a sixth generation American. Her emigrant name-bearing ancestor Seth Sweetser was born in Tring, Hertfordshire, England, in 1606. He and his wife Bethea Cook settled in Charlestown, Mass., in 1637.

Mary and Isaac lived in Mary's hometown of Wendell, Mass., until 1793 when they moved to Westmoreland, New Hampshire. In 1801 they settled in Surry, N.H., where their eighth child and third son, Jay R. Monroe, was born in 1806. In 1816 Dr. Isaac Monroe moved his family to Hamilton, New York. To date (1985) efforts to find his grave have been unsuccessful. He is said to have died in 1826.

14-52 TIMOTHY MUNROE

He marched with the Danvers company on the 19th of April 1775, met the British at West Cambridge. He settled in Lynnfield, Mass., where he was selectman for several years, his house was still standing about 1912.

On 19 April 1775, the British troops were coming down the road, and Timothy Munroe was standing behind a house with Daniel Townsend. (This was probably in West Cambridge). They were firing at the British as they retreated towards Boston. Townsend had just fired, and exclaimed, "There is another redcoat down," when Munroe, looking around, saw, to his astonishment, that they were completely hemmed in by the flank guard of the British army, who were coming down through the fields behind them. They immediately ran into the house, and looked for the cellar; but there was none. They looked for a closet, but there was none. All this time, which was indeed but a moment, the balls were pouring through the back windows, making havoc of the glass. Townsend leaped through the end window, carrying the sash and all with him, and instantly fell dead. Munroe followed, and ran for his life. He passed for a long distance between both parties, many of whom fired at him. As he passed the last soldier, who stopped to fire, he heard the redcoat exclaim, "Damn the Yankee! he is bullet proof—let him go!" Mr. Munroe had one ball through his leg, and thirty-two bullet holes through his clothes and hat. Even the metal buttons on his waistcoat were shot off. He kept his clothes until he was tired of showing them.

14-65 JOHN MUNROE

[John Munroe was a minute-man, and saw service on 19 April 1775. He lived on Woburn Street. Here follows his deposition.

I, John Munroe, of Lexington, a collector of tolls for the Middlesex Turnpike, being in the seventy-seventh year of my age, on oath do depose and say, that I was a corporal in the Lexington Company of Militia, which was commanded by the late Captain John Parker, in the year 1775; that, for some weeks previous to the 19th of April of that year, the company was frequently called out for exercise, and desired to furnish ourselves with arms and ammunition, and to be in constant readiness for action.

On the morning of the 19th, at about two o'clock, as near as I can recollect, Francis Brown, who was sergeant in the same company, called me out of bed, and said, the British troops had left Boston, and were on their march to Lexington. I immediately repaired to the place of parade, which was the common, adjoining the meeting-house, where sixty or seventy of the company had assembled in arms. Captain Parker ordered the roll to be called, and every man to load his piece with powder and ball. After remaining on parade some time, and there being no further accounts of the approach of the regulars, we were dismissed, but ordered to remain within call of the drum. About daylight, Captain Parker had information, that a regiment of British troops were near, and immediately ordered the drum beat to arms. I took my station on the right. While the company were collecting, Captain Parker, then left, gave orders for every man to stand ground until he should order them to leave. Many of the company had withdrawn to a considerable distance, and, by the time sixty or seventy of them had collected, the drum still beating to arms, the front ranks of British troops appeared within twelve or fifteen rods of our line. They continued their march within about eight rods of us, when an officer on horseback, Lieutenant Colonel Smith, who rode in front of the troops, exclaimed, "Lay down your arms and disperse you rebels!" Finding our company kept their ground, Colonel Smith ordered his troops to fire. This order not being obeyed, he then said to them, "G-d damn you, fire!" The front platoon then discharged their pieces, and, another order being given to fire, there was a general discharge from the front ranks. After the first fire of the regulars, I thought, and so stated Ebenezer Munroe, Jun. who stood next to me on the left, that they had fired nothing but powder; but, on the second firing, Munroe said, they had fired something more than powder, for he had just received a wound in his arm; and now, said he, to use his own words, "I'll give them the guts of my gun." We then both took aim at the main body of the British troops—the smoke preventing our seeing anything but the heads of some of their horses—and discharged our pieces. After the second firing from the British troops, I distinctly saw Jonas Parker struggling on the ground, with his gun in hand, apparently attempting to load it. In this situation the British came up, run him through with his bayonet, and killed him on the spot. After I fired the first time, I retreated about ten rods, and then loaded my gun a second time, with two balls, and on firing at the British, the strength of the charge took off about a foot of my gun barrel.

Such was the general confusion, and so much firing on the part of the British, that it was impossible for me to know the number of our men, who fired immediately on receiving the second fire from the British troops; but that some of them fired, besides Ebenezer Munroe and myself, I am very confident. The regulars kept up a fire in all directions, as long as they could see a man of our company in arms. Isaac Muzzy, Jonathan Harrington, and my father Robert Munroe, were found dead near the place where our line was formed. Samuel Hadley and John Brown were killed after they had gotten off the common. Asahel Porter, of Woburn, who had been taken a prisoner by the British on their march to Lexington, attempted to make his escape, and was shot within a few rods of the common. Caleb Harrington was shot down on attempting to leave the meeting-house, where he and some others had gone, before the British soldiers came up, for the purpose of removing a quantity of powder that was stored there.

On the morning of the 19th, two of the British soldiers, who were in the rear of the main body of their troops, were taken prisoners and disarmed by our men, and, a little after sun-rise, they were put under the care of Thomas R. Willard and myself, with orders to march them to Woburn Precinct, now Burlington. We conducted them as far as Captain Read's where they were put into the custody of some other persons, but whom I do not now recollect.

14-82 ISHMAEL MUNRO(E)

[Ishmael Munro(e), b. after the death of his father. He was the second posthumous child his mother had, one by each husband.]

In the death record of Burlington, Mass., Ishmael Munroe is noted as Captain and the record shows him to be 81 years, 10 months, and 14 days, old at death. This does not exactly agree with other records.

In the History of Woburn, by Samuel Sewall, it says, Ishmael Munroe, had copies of an incident whereby a Rev. Mr. Jackson was named by a Mrs. Keziah Henshaw, (or Hincher, as the name was commonly pronounced), as the father of her baby. This was certified by the midwife under her hand. Mrs. Keziah Henshaw was the widow of Thomsa Henshaw, who died in 1747.

The Reverend Josiah Cotton took sides with widow Henshaw and then Rev. Jackson commenced libel action against Rev. Cotton. Finally the case was brought before the court of Common Pleas at Concord, in Sept. 1752. It was finally decided by that court that Rev. Mr. Jackson should recover against the Rev. Mr. Cotton the sum One Thousand Pounds, damage.

The Rev. Mr. Cotton took the case to the next Superior Court of the Province, held at Charlestown, 30 Jan. 1753. This court reversed the decision of the first court and decided that the Rev. Mr. Cotton should recover Costs of Courts against the Rev. Mr. Jackson.

Next a council of churches and ministerial brethren was convened, either just at this time, or at a little earlier period of this difficulty, to consider and advise upon the affairs of the Rev. Mr. Jackson. The result of this council, it is understood, was published at the time, and a copy long preserved in the house of the late Captain Ishmael Munroe, of Burlington, deceased. But several years before his death, this copy was lost; and as no other is known to exist, the object and doings of the council referred to can only by conjectured.

In the Woburn History mentioned above, Mr. Munroe's house is mentioned as follows: It stood where the road from the precinct meeting-house to Lexington intersects the ancient road from Woburn Centre to Hodge Hole Meadows in Burlington.

[Ishmael Munroe was a Captain of the militia, 27 Feb. 1794.]

19-81 ISAAC MONROE

He was born in Conn. and died at the home of his son Dan Monroe, in Plymouth, N.Y. His wife through her mother was a descendant of the pioneer families of Bushnell and Leffingwell.

Isaac Monroe, was residing in Pomfret from 1768 until after 1785, in Brooklyn, in 1800 and in Greene, Chenango County, N.Y. in 1818.

Was a soldier in the Revolutionary War, first in 1775. When the Lexington Alarm sounded he responded and served with the militia near Boston for twenty days, afterwards he enlisted in Pomfret, 1 Jan. 1776, and served one year in Captain Grosvenor's company of Colonel John Durkee's regiment.

In May 1798 he purchased a fulling mill in Lebanon, Conn., from his son Dan and sold it to James Sexton the following year by deed witnessed by his son Dan and daughter Lucy.

In 1818 he applied for a pension which was granted in 1820. He was a soldier by trade. His application was supported by affidavit of his brother William and his comrade in arms, Jonathan Crane. His own affidavit, sworn to in 1820, states that he was a saddler by trade, with no family, unable to labor, in indigent circumstances and residing with and supported by his son Joseph in Greene.

His name appears on the records in Pomfret and Brooklyn and on the index to the deeds in Lebanon as Isaac Row. In the body of the Lebanon deeds his surname is spelled Mon Row and Munrow. The latter spelling of his surname appears in his signature, also in that of his son Dan and daughter Lucy, witnessing the deeds to James Sexton. Notwithstanding these discrepancies in spelling his surname upon the records, his identity is amply proven by the affidavit of his brother William Monroe, stating that he and Isaac were brothers, also by existing family records, among which are his son Joseph's family Bible in the possession of E.L. Monroe in Columbus, Pa. stating that Joseph was born 25 Sept. 1776 and separate family records prepared by each of his grandsons, Dyer Monroe, and James Sexton Monroe, the former now in the possession of Dyer's grandmother, Mrs. Estella Hughes in Plymouth, N.Y., the latter with James Sexton's daughter, Mrs. Ella M. Axline of Ada, Ohio, until her death in 1930. Each of these two records state that their father, Dan, son of Isaac Monroe, was born in Pomfret 22 Aug. 1774. These dates exactly correspond with the dates shown by the Pomfret records when sons Joseph and Dan were born to Isaac Row.

19-83 LEONARD MONROE

Leonard Monroe appears to have been a widower in Nov. 1807 when he conveyed land by deed recorded in book 1, page 556, Delaware County Deed Records, containing no mention of a wife, while the deeds subsequently made by him in 1814 and 1815 recorded in Book 3, pages 185 and 512 were signed by his wife Hannah Monroe.

He enlisted as a private in Captain Ball's Company, Colonel Samuel B. Webb's Fourth Conn. Regiment in East Windsor, Conn., 14 March 1777, was later transferred to Captain Whitney's Company, same regiment, where he was appointed sergeant. He remained in the service until honorably discharged in Morristown, N.J., 17 March 1780. Later he, his mother and his brothers Isaac and William, his uncle David Welch, and David's sons, John, Aaron and Ebenezer Welch moved to Chenango County, N.Y. While Leonard Monroe was commissioned lieutenant in the State Militia in 1793 and Captain in 1798. He was placed on the Revolutionary soldier's pension roll 21 June 1819. His application states that he was a tailor by trade.

In 1804 he and John, Aaron and Ebenezer Welch moved to Liberty Township, then in Franklin, now in Delaware County, Ohio. The Monroe and Welch families were closely related by marriage. David Welch married Amitty Read, sister of Samuel Monroe's wife Abigail. John married his cousin, Deborah Monroe, sister of Leonard.

19-84 WILLIAM MONROE

He served nearly four years as a soldier in the Revolutionary War, first from 6 April to 23 May 1777 under Captain Edward Griswold in Colonel Thomas Bilding's regiment, Conn. Volunteers, when he was discharged in Peekskill, N.Y. He next enlisted for three years in Captain Harmon's company of Colonel John Durkee's Fourth Regiment of Conn. Volunteers from which he was honorably discharged in 1780 in Morristown, N.J. During his first year he served as a private, then was transferred to Captain Seth Phillip's company of the same regiment, in which he served as a fifer for two years. He engaged in the battles of Germantown, Fort Mifflin, Monmouth and Stoney Point. After his discharge in 1780 he served for six months as orderly sergeant to his old Colonel John Durkee. Later he served a three month's term on a sloop in New York. His interest in military affairs did not abate with the revolution.

He subsequently moved in 1792 from Windsor, Conn. to Chenango County, N.Y., and settled there on the tract on which the court house in the city of Norwich now stands. He there joined the State Militia, serving as ensign, lieutenant, major, and lieutenant colonel between 1797 and 1809. By reason of this service he became generally known as Colonel Monroe.

Later William Monroe moved to a farm in the nearby town of Plymouth, N.Y., where he built a log house and lived until he died. He, his mother and other members of the Monroe family were buried in a cemetery on his farm between Norwich and the village of Plymouth.

He served three terms as sheriff of Chenango County and as the member of the Assembly from that county during the session of 1816.

19-11/9 DAVID MUNROE

David Munroe also migrated to Pawlet, Vt., a few years later than his Josiah (2nd) and his sister Lydia. David married Anna Andrus on 16 June 1768 at Pawlet, Vt. Soon after his marriage, he settled at Cooperstown, N.Y. About 1800 he moved to Penfield, N.Y. In 1836 he sold his farm and with his children came to Pittsford, Michigan. Here he established a new homestead in Pittsford Township Sec. 28. David was a large man and his strength was said to have been equal to that of any two of his neighbors. For many years he served as a deacon in the Baptist Church in Penfield. His granddaughter described him as "a noble man of Scot Descent, of generous impulse, and strong religious convictions."

David and his children overwintered the first year in a temporary shelter built into the side of a hill. The following year a cabin was built. A lilac bush stood by the front door and a snowball bush at the northwest corner of the home. David died that year, July 31, 1827. His will bequeathed to his son Lester, "the farm on which he now lives" designated as the west half of the N.E. quarter of Section 32 in Pittsford Township. To Linus he bequeathed the plot on which Clare Edwin Monroe now lives, being the west half of the N.W. quarter of Section 28, Pittsford Township. To Philenda he gave all the household furniture and the lot of land 50A adjoining on the east.

The history of the family shows that Lester moved about considerably, living in Branch Co., Ottawa Co. and Eaton Co., Michigan. He was an avid Christian worker and was instrumental in the organizing of many of the Baptist churches in southern and western Michigan. His daughter Mary married Jabez Smith Northrup. We find many of the descendents in Branch, Ottawa, Eaton, Clinton, and Grand Traverse counties.

1/12-12 HANNAH P. (MUNROE) OBER

Hannah and William Ober were possible early settlers in Sedgwick, Maine. In a list of early settlers, dated 1784, William Ober had been settled there for 17 years, giving a settling date of 1767. However, since his daughter Elizabeth was born or baptized in January 1768, this may be a year or so off, although perhaps he settled and brought his family later.

1/12-35 JONATHAN MUNROE

Jonathan Munroe left Spencer, Mass. and went to Plainfield, Mass., where he had eight children by his first wife. Then he returned to Spencer with all his children, except the two oldest, and purchased the farm formerly owned by David and Robert Griffin and later in part owned by his son Jonathan. He was in Plainfield, Mass. before 1780. At a legal meeting of the inhabitants of the District of Plainfield, in the home of Mr. Simon Burroughs, on Monday, 25 July 1785 Mr. Munroe was chosen one of the Surveyors of Highways. The next eight meetings were held at the home of Jonathan Munroe, whose house then stood where that of the late Lewis Shaw house stood. In Plainfield he bought numerous pieces of land, the records of these purchases are in the Registry of Deeds at Northampton, Mass.

The compiler of this genealogy visited Plainfield, Mass. on 26 April 1964 and found the home of Jonathan Munroe still standing and in fine condition, it is now owned by Mr. Edward Bloom.

When Jonathan Munroe returned to Spencer from Plainfield, he purchased a farm in North Spencer, where he and his son Jonathan lived for many years. He lived in a long low house on the east side of the road, and it was in this house that his son Jonathan was born. The son and mother lived in this house after the death of the father until the son built a new house on the west side of the road.

A daughter Clarissa was born to Jonathan Munroe, the father, and Sally Coggswell, before he married her. This child was brought up in his family. She was always known to the family as Aunt Kent and was a very estimable woman.

Jonathan Munroe was a great hunter, and used to go to Kentucky to hunt, where he hunted with Daniel Boone.

Amos Munroe (1/12-34) brother of Jonathan, came to Spencer and bought a farm in 1768. Jonathan came to Spencer about that time.

1/12-41 THADDEUS MUNROE

During the American Revolution he served in Captain Hale's company, Colonel Gerrish's regiment which joined the Northern Continental army in Sept. 1777. In the returns his name was given as Rowe. He was also in the Battle of Bunker Hill.

Thaddeus Munroe was among the early settlers of Hillsborough, N.H. arriving there shortly after the Battle of Lexington, Mass. His house which he built must have been erected between 1775 and 1781. It is a fine two story structure, built of red bricks which were cast on the property. This house is still standing in 1966 and in good condition and occupied by Mr. George Edwards and his wife, Mrs. Edwards was born in it. The compiler of this genealogy visited Mr. Edwards on 11 June 1966 along with Mrs. Orin A Stevens of Fargo, N.D. (Family no. 1/12-41-10/8-7) and the Rev. Roy J. Honeywell (Family no. 1/12-41-10/2-14).

Milton David Ray (Family no. 1/12-41-51-44), states in July 1966 that the brick part of the house spoken of above, was definitely built by Hiram Monroe (Family no. 1/12-41-10/) the son of Thaddeus. The wooden part seems to be a part of the house Thaddeus built, and there are traces of an ell which probably was removed when the brick structure was erected.

The Rev. Roy J. Honeywell (Family no. 1/12-41-10/2-14) muses as follows. "Thaddeus had been in Hillsborough about three years when he married Hannah on her 19th birthday and can scarcely have cleared much more of his farm than would yield fundamental crops nor built more of a house than a simple wooden structure which could be enlarged. Tax lists show him paying a medium tax or less, but that brick house in those early times would have put the owner in the wealthy group. Hiram might have qualified after he was established in business and politics, but I doubt if Thaddeus ever would. Years ago I read some tax lists (whether school or church I am not sure) which assessed Thaddeus a definitely small tax but Hiram several times as much as was charged his father. This makes me think Milton is right."

It has been written that Thaddeus Munroe was tall, broad-shouldered, stern and firm as the rock-ribbed hills of Concord End, Hillsborough, N.H. He was a man of few words and could always be counted on where a good man was needed. He was one of the leading politicians of the town.

Besides being a farmer, he was also noted as a good bridge builder. These bridges were built of stone, dry construction, arched and earth filled, some of which are still in use to-day.

When he was 71 years old he was invited, with twenty-one others, all who served in the Revolution, to the home of Benjamin Pierce on 26 Dec. 1825, this was Benjamin Pierce's sixty-seventh birthday.

1/13-45 ABIJAH MUNROE

b. 10 June 1755 at Lincoln, Mass.
d. 1823
m. A daughter of Benjamin Park, who at that time lived on what was called the Pullen place.

Abijah's lot was no. 47 and is the south-east part of Bartlett's Corner. The house stood on the east side of the road, about half way between Bartlett's Corner and where the present house stands. It was called a tavern and maintained as such by Abijah as long as he lived. In 1833 it was taken down and moved to the "Intervale," and became a part of the house owned by Myron A. Eames.

They had no children and are buried in the yard near Robert H. Boothby's. Rev. Paul Coffin in his diary of Aug. 30, 1798, speaks of stopping with him and adds that Munro and his wife were "sensible and agreeable." No doubt that Coffin esteemed them such, for they joined him in criticising the Baptists which, at that time, were becoming the most numerous and powerful religious society in town. Abijah and his brothers, John, and Abel, were strong methodists and the writer (Ira Thompson Monroe) well remembers hearing Uncle Abel "Exhort," after the regular sermon at the old church at Livermore Centre.

1/13-49 JOHN MUNROE

He was in the Revolutionary service on board a privateer, and in 1790 came from Boston in a sloop as far as Falmouth, Maine and then walked to Livermore, Maine. He told his children that when he reached Livermore, only a King's shilling was in his purse. His lot, no. 39, was just east of Abel's and he built a log house near a spring of water in the orchard, northeast of the present buildings (1928?), which were erected in 1801.

1/13-4/11 ABEL MONROE (MUNROE)

He settled on lot 48, just west of John's and adjoining Sander's or Bartlett's Corner, where he built a house but later erected the buildings on top of the hill, now owned by Mrs. Dana H. Richmond (1928). Not far from the southeast corner of this farm, could be seen the stone fireplace that Nathan Bartlett built and used when he by night watched a coalpit, the charcoal of which he used on the forge of his blacksmith shop.

Ichabod Fessendon was a miller by trade; "Stephen Cutter, miller, sold a certain grist mill in Cambridge with all and singular the dam, flooms, mill pond, etc., together with all other property to Ichabod Fessenden in 1795, specifying a house, barn and gristmill, dams, flooms, etc. (Middlesex Registry, cxxv 27, 28). This property was sold by Ichabod Fessenden to John Perry and Stephen Locke, millers, in 1809." He is also listed as having paid $139 for pew No. 73 in the meeting house, Second Precinct, Cambridge, and as having been one of the assessors in 1803 and 1804. Ichabod Fessenden was a member of the Northeast Parish of Cambridge Singing Society, serving as treasurer in 1805 and 1806. It became the West Cambridge Musical Society in October 1807; Ichabod Fessenden (with clarinet) was one of the subscribers to the constitution.

In 1816 he built a mill at the J.C. Hobbs privilege as it was still called in 1907, though Deacon Hobbs had been dead several years. Another enterprise strikingly different was the making of machine knives which made Ichabod famous was carried on at the brick factory he erected on the Hobbs property.

13-41-2 THOMAS MONRO

Thomas Monro was baptized at St. Michael's Church by the first Rev. John Usher, on 12 May 1765. He lived for a time on what was known as the Herreshoff farm on Poppasush, Bristol, R.I., then on the main road of Bristol leading to the ferry. In Oct. 1823 he moved to Columbia, Pa. (Sylvania P.O.) taking the younger members of his family, where he lived until his death, which was in Bradford County. In his youth he learned the tailor's trade but later became a farmer. From records of his family, it is shown that some of his older children who married in R.I., followed him later to Penna.

13-41-5 EPHRAIM MONRO

He was a blacksmith, he bought the farm on Crooked Lane, Bristol, R.I., which he called "Mt. Ephraim." This is still standing on the now Bayview Ave., but about 1944 it was divided; the ell moved about 75 feet to the south to make another house.

All the following members of Ephraim Monro's family are buried in Juniper Hill Cemetery, which is at the end of Sherry Ave., off Bayview Ave. (Crooked Lane). William Pearse Monro surveyed and laid out Juniper Hill about 1840. Many families as well as his, moved old graves to Juniper Hill from the Old East Burying Ground near the Common in Bristol, R.I. Among these are the graves of William Pearse and his wife Lydia, parents of Dr. Thomas Monro. These of Ephraim and William Pearse Monro's lots are together well within the grounds to the northeast, George Brownell Monro's lot is the first seen from the entrance gate.

Juniper Hill now contains many of Bristol's most well known and oldest families.

ABEL MUNROE

Abel[5] appeared in Surry as early as 1795, and is thought to have lived first in house No. 22 which stood on land bought in 1790 by Dr. Philip[4] Munroe, son of Philip[3] and Abigail. It was torn down before 1799 so that its timbers could be used for the second story of house No. 23 which Dr. Munroe opened that year as a tavern. Abel, as we have seen, married Bethany Barron at Keene on 22 Sept. 1796. She was a daughter of William Barron and Tabitha Williams. William Barron was of Scottish descent and came to New England from Northern Ireland. He was at Concord, Mass. before settling at Westmoreland, now Surry, N.H. in 1762, where he occupied house No. 16. He married Tabitha Williams, the second of his three wives, on 7 Aug. 1770, made his will on 29 Feb. 1796 and died on 19 May 1797.

In 1799 we find Abel Munroe carrying on the farm for Widow Brockway after the death of her husband John. On 18 Jan. 1800 Abel took out a license to keep tavern at Widow Brockway's and he continued there until 21 June 1805 when the place burned down. In 1803 Abel paid a salary tax of 50 cents. In the census taken during the summer of 1806 he appears as 31 years old, with wife Bethany aged 33, and five children: William aged 9, James 7, Abel 5, John 3, and Rebecca 1. On 12 Oct. 1808 his name is 34th on a list of 51 soldiers who "did military duty with the 4th Co., 20th Regt., the 11th of this instant." On 9 Dec. 1811 he took out a license at the Col. Bond house, and that is our last glimpse of him in Surry. He and Bethany had seven children, some born at Keene, some at Surry, but all recorded at Surry.

Sometime between 1811 and 1818 Abel[5] appears to have removed with his family to Boston, Mass., for the Boston Directory of 1818 shows an Abel Munroe, laborer, living on a small street in the North End called Henchman Lane. I believe that Abel[5] and Abel the laborer were identical because subsequent Directories show Abel the laborer at the same addresses as men bearing the names of Abel[5]'s sons. In 1823 Able lived on Lynn Street; William Munroe was on Lynn Street in 1822. From 1830 to 1832 Abel was on Battery Street, where Jotham Munroe was in 1830. In 1835 Abel was on Tileston Street; William and Abel (Jr.) were on Tileston in 1831 and later James, John and Jotham all lived there. After 1835 Abel the laborer is no longer listed.

13-85-3 HOLLIS MUNRO

Dr. Hollis Monroe arrived in Belfast, Me., to settle between 1815 and 1817. He resided in the house built by Wiggins Merrill. He sang in the choir of the Congregational Church and also lectured for the Belfast Lyceum on Botany July 9, 15, and 22, of 1830.

Dr. Hollis Monroe, the oldest son of Dr. Philip Monroe, of Surry, N.H. was b. in Dec. 1789, and received his medical diploma from Yale College in 1819. He came here immediately after graduating, not with a view to permanent settlement, but to afford temporary aid to an established physician in a time of prevailing sickness. But this place proved to be the scene of his long career of activity and usefulness. Such was the beginning of his professional life, which was protracted to over forty years. He soon became widely known, and always enjoyed the confidence and esteem both of the community and of his medical brethren. His naturally vigorous and inquiring mind prompted him to keep pace with scientific discoveries, and made him learner through life. He assiduously cultivated all the branches of natural history, and his love of botany continued unabated to the last. He possessed no inconsiderable share of mechanical ingenuity, of which he availed himself, with useful results, in dentistry and surgical practice.

He was a singularly sincere man, simple in manner, straightforward and plain in speech. Of social nature, he loved to talk, and out of the stores of a well-furnished mind his conversation was always instructive and profitable. The rules of health and the right modes of living were a favorite topic with him. Many of his wise and timely suggestions were long remembered, and produced incalculable good. He taught temperance in all things, by example as well as precept; for his own mode of living was plain, simple, self-denying, and almost ascetic.

As an example of professional enthusiasm, of single-hearted devotion to the purpose of his calling, he stood eminent. His profession occupied the place of domestic relations. His patients were his family. He refused no call for his services, however poor might be the applicant (not so to-day by our Drs. of 1967-RSM) and however distant his abode; but in cold and stormy nights, and over difficult roads, he would repair to the dwelling on humble poverty, remaining as long as his presence was needed, and sharing the discomforts of the situation.

Dr. Monroe was a member of the Maine Medical Society, formed in 1821, and also of the Maine Medical Association, subsequently instituted. He was also a member of the American Medical Association. His death occured, of congestion of the lungs, 21 June 1861, the age of 71. At his funeral from the Unitarian Church, on the following Sunday, an address was delivered by Rev. Dr. Palfrey. The large concourse of attached friends and sincere mourners, who followed his remains to the grave, bore testimony to the esteem in which he was held by the whole community.

In 1820, after the separation of Maine from Mass., a new arrangement of the militia was made. Belfast became included in the Third Division, First Brigade, and Second Regiment. Dr. Hollis Monroe was Surgeon's Mate.

On 23 May 1850 a barn on the Lincolnville road, containing 25 tons of hay, both owned by Dr. Hollis Monroe, was burnt. Loss $500.00.

13-85-11/ NAHUM PARKER MONROE

Dr. Nahum Parker Monroe, son of Dr. Philip Monroe, of Surry, N.H., was born in Surry, N.H. 4 Jan. 1808. He studied medicine with his brother, Dr. Hollis Monroe, and established himself here in 1839, soon after graduating at the Albany Medical College. He immediately acquired an extensive practice, which continued until 1871, when he removed to Baltimore. His death took place in that city, 23 April 1873, at the age of 65 years.

Dr. Monroe ranked with the best of his associates of the profession, as one who upheld the dignity and honor of the physician, and he was by them elevated to the position of President of the Maine Medical Association. He was for a long time Trustee of the Maine Insane Asylum. In 1865 and 1867, he represented the city of Belfast in the Maine Legislature. At the breaking out of the war of the Rebellion, Dr. Monroe was tendered and accepted the position of Surgeon of the Twentieth Maine Regiment, and entered upon the active duties of the campaign. He was present at the battles of Fredricksburg, Chancellorsville, and United States Ford, at all of which his acknowledged skill as a surgeon was of great value to those who were torn by shot and shell in those terrible battles. After a year's service, by which his health was impaired, he resigned his commission, and returned to the practice of his profession in Belfast. He was a man of great physical powers, and of manners, so genial that he won the affection as well as the confidence of his patients. But, though rigid in his requirements of others, he was careless of himself, and constant exposure in severe weather of our climate broke down his health. Thousands who experienced his skill and care in sickness and suffering will recall in health as well as in sickness the memory of one whose best days were given to the relief of the unfortunate and distressed, and who left a record every way honorable as a citizen.

Dr. Monroe married Ann Sarah, daughter of Hon. Alfred Johnson, in 1843. His only son, Alfred J., a graduate at Bowdoin College in 1871, survived him but a short time, dying in Pau, France, 3 Jan. 1875, aged 25.

On 30 July 1872, at midnight, an old unoccupied house at the junction of the Lincolnville and old Stanley roads, near the "muckhole," owned by Dr. N.P. Monroe, was consumed by fire. Loss, about $400.00 Partially insured.

13-87-13/ FRANCIS MILLER MONROE

On Nov. 6, 1834 he purchased section 28—southeast corner— near Howell, Livingston Co., Mich., from the U.S. Government. Francis Miller Monroe served as president of the Livingston Co. Agriculture Society and was one of the Board who first organized the Central Fair in Lansing, Mich.

Francis Monroe was one of the earliest settlers of Livingston County, Michigan. He passed through what is now known as the village of Howell before a building had been erected there. His father, Lemuel Monroe, was one of the heroes of the Revolutionary War. He served through that memorable war; participated in the battle of Bunker Hill; was present as Burgoyne's surrender and in many other engagements. He also served in the War of 1812. Was three times married, and was the father of eighteen children, seventeen of whom grew to maturity. In his old age he came to Howell, Michigan and made his home with his son, Francis, at whose residence he died at the advanced age of ninety-seven years and two months.

Francis Monroe was the eldest of six children by the third wife of his father. She resided at Mendon, New York, when her husband was serving in the War of 1812, and for several years thereafter. There Francis was born August 8, 1813. When a lad he was indentured until he was twenty-one years of age, at which time he received the customary one hundred dollars and two suits of clothes. This important event occurred August 8, 1834, and on the 18th day of September of that year, he was married to Miss Luana Hicks of Bristol, New York. Her father had died, and from his estate she received one hundred dollars upon her marriage. Mr. and Mrs. Monroe then had a joint capitol of two hundred dollars, and plans were soon matured for securing a home. They resolved to go to the territory of Michigan, and within a week, Mr. Monroe started a tour westward.

After prospecting through Eastern Michigan, he located on the southwest quarter of section 28, now the town of Howell, Michigan. Returning to Bristol, New York he worked by the month some two years, and in the spring of 1837 with his wife and two children, moved on to his land, and commenced the task of erecting a home from the unbroken forest.

With limited means and few neighbors, he was thrown upon his own resources to procure the necessaries of life. He worked by the day. The first fall after his arrival he went twelve miles to dig potatoes (for one LaGrange, in Unadilla), receiving in payment a bushel of potatoes for a day's work; Money was a thing almost unknown. To pay taxes and the twenty-five cents postage on a letter from the east, were grave questions to the pioneer. Wolves were plenty, and soon a bounty of seventeen dollars was offered for their scalps. This was most fortunate for Mr. Monroe, who gave them considerable attention; he took as many as three in a week, which rendered him material financial relief.

The progress of the pioneer under these adverse circumstances was consequently slow; but after the log house was built, the clearing continued. Year by year improvements were made and other lands aquired, the small clearing expanded to broad and fertile fields, and the log house has long since given place to a large commodious brick residence, with such surroundings as indicate the thrifty farmer.

13-8/11-8 JAY RANDOLPH MONROE

Jay Randolph Monroe was the eighth child of Dr. Isaac Monroe and his wife Mary Sweetser. When Jay Randolph was ten years old in 1816, Dr. Monroe moved his family from Surry, N.H., to Hamilton, N.Y. This was the year made famous in New England annals as "eighteen hundred and froze to death." A huge volcanic eruption of Mount Tambora on the island of Sumbawa in Indonesia in April, 1815, caused such disruption in the world weather pattern that northern New England had no summer. The crops failed, causing widespread distress. Like the Monroes of Surry, thousands of other Yankees left New England for the lands beyond the Hudson River, made available for white settlement by the defeat of the Iroquois who were allies of Great Britain during the Revolutionary War.

Unfortunately Dr. Isaac Monroe was not in a position to provide higher education to all of his numerous children. After finishing the local school at Hamilton, N.Y., Jay Randolph was apprenticed to a stonemason. At age twenty in 1826, Jay, like many other young men of the time, took off for the west. He traveled on the newly completed Erie Canal to Buffalo, N.Y., where he continued on by lake schooner to Detroit, Mich. He supported himself at first as a stonemason, but his ability and force of character were soon discovered and his services were solicited for more adventurous and ambitious employment. Mr. Campeau engaged him to go with a part of his men on a circuit of the lakes in the interest of his fur trade. After his return he passed two years in the employ of Mr. Campeau and General Cass in locating lands for incoming settlers. He then made a trip to his old home in New York state. In 1830 he returned to Michigan and located at Prairie Ronde, but the greater part of his time was occupied in traveling over the territory of Michigan locating lands for others, as before. He was thrifty and frugal and applied his commissions in the purchase of lands for himself.

His wandering showed him much of the territory in its state of primeval wilderness. He was the first white man to pass over the site where South Haven now stands. In 1833 he built the first house within the limits of the present city. He was unmarried at the time, and a family by the name of Thomas occupied his house soon after it was first occupied. This was the first birth and death in the history of South Haven.

Jay R. Monroe made a plat of the village, and the plat was embraced in Hannah's plat of 1852, and has been a part of every one that has been made since. Along with other wise provisions, the plan required the reservation of a lot for a schoolhouse, and this was shown on the plat made by Mr. Monroe.

In 1835, in association with Charles U. Cross, he laid out a road between South Haven and Paw Paw, and what remains of that highway now is still known as the "Munroe road." He had previously laid out a road between South Haven and Prairie Ronde. Thus he was a potential force in the great work of opening the country to settlement, and in bringing settlers in to occupy and improve it. The excellent results that followed his activity in these respects proved his general intelligence, sound judgment and comprehensive grasp of the situation that required his attention.

Jay R. Monroe was married on September 10, 1836, to Miss Fanny Rawson who had come to Michigan with her parents from Massachusetts in 1830. Fanny Rawson was a seventh-generation American. Her earliest emigrant ancestor, John Wilson, arrived in Boston in 1630. Besides Edward Rawson who settled in Newbury, Mass., in 1636, she was descended, among others, from Rev. Thomas Hooker, the founder of Hartford, Conn.

Fanny was probably unaware of her famous ancestors. There is no record that she ever mentioned them.

For some months after their marriage Fanny and Jay boarded in Kalamazoo. In 1837 they settled on the land owned by Jay in Lawrence township. It seemed probable at the time that the county seat would be located near his farm. The prize of being the center of government in the county was won by Paw Paw, but Mr. Monroe continued to reside on his land in Lawrence township and improved a portion of a farm of nine hundred acres. He also continued to act as land agent, and in time he became one of the most extensive landholders in that part of the country, being at one period the possessor of eighty eighty-acre tracts, or six thousand four hundred acres in all, an expanse equal in extent to ten square miles.

Under the territorial government of Michigan Jay R. Monroe was appointed a judge, and from then to the end of his life he was always known and spoken of as Judge Monroe. He was a man of benign disposition, his administration of the law always tempered justice with mercy. He was a friend and adviser of the early settlers. He served as commissioner of the poor in Van Buren County for more than twenty-five years. He was earnest in his interest and active in his support of all public undertakings for the good of the state. He helped to organize the State Agricultural Society.

In the early history of the county and those who made it, he always manifested the deepest interest. He was one of the founders of the Van Buren County Pioneers' Society, and to the end of his life one of its most active members. In politics he was a life-long Democrat. In spiritual matters he was a firm believer in the Christian religion, but not connected by membership with any church organization. His death occurred in South Haven on October 30, 1876, soon after his return from a visit to the Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia. His widow survived him one day over thirty-one years, her death coming on October 31, 1907.

Mrs. Jay R. Monroe died at the age of ninety-two. She was universally beloved throughout the city of South Haven. She well deserved the veneration of the community which she so fully enjoyed. Her pastor, who had been long associated with her in church relations, said in his address at her funeral: "She was a woman whom Lincoln would have loved, and Roosevelt would have praised," and her heroic character fully justified this eulogy. The first forty years of her life after her marriage were passed on a farm in Lawrence township which was remote from other human dwellings. The nearest neighbor lived about a mile distant, twenty years elapsed before the woods were cut away so that another house could be seen from her home.

Most of her years on this farm were very busy ones for "Mother Monroe," as she was affectionately called by the whole community. Here her nine children were born. In addition to the innumerable cares incident to rearing and providing for so large a family, she did all the writing and figuring required by her husband's business, including his land agency. As the home was located in about the center of the county, it became a sort of halfway house for strangers and travelers. There were almost always extra persons to provide for with meals and lodging. Her isolation from society and church privileges, and her burden of work and care imposed great hardships on her. She bore them all bravely, patiently and cheerfully. She was a woman of extraordinary vitality. She knew no higher claim on her attention than the voice of duty, which she always heard with reverence and obeyed with fidelity.

After Judge Monroe's death in 1876 Fanny Rawson Monroe stayed with her only surviving daughter Eunice Moore in South Haven. At the time Eunice had a three-year-old daughter, Fannie, who later married Channing Hale. While Fanny was living with her daughter Eunice, Lyman Monroe, Fanny's fourth son, built a house on the Lake Michigan shore next door to the Moore's house. Fanny thus had a joy of being present at the birth of four more grandchildren. Mabel Monroe was born in 1878, Arthur Moore in 1880, Mary Louise Monroe in 1881, and Jay R. Monroe III in 1883.

Of her nineteen grandchildren she had five right underfoot, eight more living in South Haven, and six in nearby Lawrence where her third son Isaac took over the old homestead after his father's death.

"Mother Monroe" outlived four of her nine children and her son-in-law David Moore. She lived to see nine of her great-grandchildren; seventeen more were born after her death. She was a great lady. Her descendants are proud of Judge Jay Randolph Monroe and his wife Fanny Rawson.

15-21-2 NATHANIEL MUNROE

[Mr. Munroe settled in Baltimore, Maryland, where he was a jeweler.]

Munroe, Nathaniel: 1777-1861, Concord, Mass. Apprenticed to Abel Hutchins. With brother Daniel (15-21-1) 1800-1807. Clocks and brass founding. With Samuel Whiting 1808-1817 as Munroe and Whiting. Large business, using mostly brass 8-day movements. "Mostly hand made," seven or eight apprentices; in two-story building, 30' front, 15' deep. Small brass foundry "on other side of dam," wheels and other brass parts, also bells. Industrious, genial. Most of his business with the south. To Baltimore in 1817. (Coupled with activities of Lemuel Curtis, at this time a number of fine clocks were made in Concord, Mass. - not to be confused with Concord, N.H., also a center of fine clock making.)

Nathaniel Munroe became a member of the Social Circle in 1812 (Concord, Mass.), and resigned on his removal to Baltimore in 1817, where he died 8 May 1861, in his eighty-fourth year. He was born in Roxbury, Mass. in June 1777. He was the second son of Daniel Munroe, a descendant in the fourth generation from William Munroe, the first settler and progenitor of the family of that name in Lexington, Mass.

We learn nothing of Nathaniel's early life. His parents were people of pious character and respectable connection. He served his apprenticeship with a Mr. Hutchins, clockmaker in Concord, N.H. In the year 1800 he was in business with his older brother Daniel in Concord, Mass., both clockmakers. In that year they were joined by their younger brother William, who passed his life in this town. Their shop stood on the site of the late William Whiting's house, and was the old L part of that house, removed a few years since to give place to a more sightly structure. They planted the large buttonwoood-trees (sycamores) now standing near those premises. Nothing can be learned of the extent of their business. Daniel removed to Boston in 1808, about which time Nathaniel removed to the mill-dam, into a building then standing next east of the present site of the post-office. He remained in that spot, doing a considerable business as a clockmaker, part of the time in partnership with Samuel Whiting, under the firm of "Munroe and Whiting," 'till his removal to Baltimore in 1817. During the latter part of this time a large trade was done in clockmaking on the mill-dam. Besides making clocks, Mr. Munroe had a considerable brass foundry where, besides clock movements, he made sleigh-bells and some other articles.

Mr. Munroe was a man of about five feet seven inches, compactly built, dark complexion, black eyes and hair, quick in his movements and speech, full of fun and life, his bright eyes sparkling with laughter much oftener than saddened by hard thought. He was as he acknowledged, at least as fond of play as work, and never more in his element than in his frequent excursions to the seashore with his heavy ducking gun. His friends thought his removal to Baltimore was not a little influenced by the canvas-backs that so abound in the Chesapeake Bay. His avowed inducement was the favorable report of the trade and the climate of Maryland which were sent him by his neighbor, Benjamin K. Hager, mathematical-instrument maker, who left Concord about two years before him.

Mr. Munroe was three times married. In 1803 he married Sally, daughter of Jonas Lee, by whom he had one son, now not living. In 1807 he married Mary C., daughter of William Ballard, of Framingham, by whom he had four sons and two daughters. One of each now survives. In 1826 he married Mary Ann Hagar, at Baltimore, by whom he had three daughters, all living in 1869.

In Baltimore he followed his pursuit of clockmaking, but rather as a repairer and as a dealer in watches and jewelry, for more than thirty years, gaining in the process quite a handsome property.

He continued all his life in the same easy, good-natured, and good-tempered man, fond of his friends and social enjoyments, liking to the last the out-of-doors sports that had been the delight of his earlier days. The last days of his life were grieved by the atrocities committed on our Northern troops as they passed through Baltimore to the defense of Washington, and he did not live long enough to see any compensation for those doings. He retained his faculties and, generally, good health 'till old age.

The above account was written by William Munroe, Jr., family no. 15-21-31, 19 Oct. 1869.

15-21-3 WILLIAM MONROE

Mr. William Monroe began the manufacture of lead pencils in Concord, Mass., in 1812, when articles made abroad were very scarce and expensive owing to the war with Great Britain, and the resulting interruption of imports. William's method of making pencils was his own invention and he claimed to have no instruction from any one on their manufacture. He made the lead for his first pencil grinding the materials with a hammer head, which was mixed in a common spoon, this pencil was sold to Benjamin Andrews in Boston.

His grandson, Ralph Middleton Munroe, said the first of these pencils sold for a shilling each. In "The Commodore's Story," (1930), Ralph Middleton Munroe tells how his grandfather went into business in earnest: "Quantity production involved new troubles, but perseverance conquered them, and the vital steps remained secret to himself and his wife, performed by their own hands. This phase of the business prospered until the war cut off supplies of black lead. After the war, it was resumed, and in a short time grandfather had made a capital quite respectable for that period. In 1814 he produced 1212 gross, for which he received $5946. He now had to compete with the imported article, and his crude product was at first out-classed. Nevertheless he kept on, and in 1819 decided that he would concentrate on them. He sold his cabinet shop, taking pencil woods as pay, and shortly found himself established as not only the first, but the best of American pencil makers. Improvements continued until 1830, when the trade sought him, rather than he the trade. He made as high as four thousand gross a year, of such quality that they readily outsold the imported ones and were eventually counterfeited by foreign makers...His wife remained his only confidante, and was a most efficient helpmate; many a gross of pencils were stamped, wrapped, labelled, and packed by her after a long day's work in the care of her large family."

Our country grew so fast that it was difficult to keep track of such things, and several leading manufacturers have claimed the honour which belongs to William Monroe. He is given the credit by Josephine Swayne in "The Story of Concord," (1923), in Kane's book "Famous Firsts," in an article in The Scientific American for 4 Jan. 1879 (refuting another claim in Scribner's Magazine for April 1878), and in several books of reference.

Mr. Monroe's son Francis, carried on the pencil business until 1849 or later.

Mr. Munroe descended from the Lexington family of that name, the progenitor of which was William, who arrived in Boston May, 1652, one of a party of Scotch prisoners of war, taken by Cromwell at the memorable battle of Worcester in 1651, and banished to America. The forces of Charles Second having been dispersed at that battle, and he having escaped to Holland, General George Munroe, who had commanded his kinsman and friends on that occasion, joined Charles in retreat. Returning with his King to London on the restoration in 1660, he was made commander-in-chief of Scotland.

William Munroe, the exile, was at that date settled in Lexington, on the road to and near Woburn. As he soon became a man of respectable substance and position among the settlers in Lexington, it seems probable that he received assistance from his old friends, as General George, now having power and influence, was not likely to forget those who were exiled for having fought under him for the now reigning sovereign, particularly those of his own clan.

Jedediah, grandson of the first William and grandfather of our Mr. William, was, with another of the family, killed at the battle of Lexington, April 19, 1775. Many others of the name served, and some fell in later battles of the Revolution, sustaining the reputation of the family name, which Dr. Doddridge, in his short history of the family, written in 1746, say, was that of a talented, brave, and patriotic race. Daniel, the father of our William, and the oldest son of Jedediah, was born in 1744. He lived with his father until of age. He afterwards married a daughter of one of the Parkers of Parker Hill, Roxbury. Near this he occupied a farm, called the Seaver Farm, for a few years. But ill health, which had caused his discharge from the Continental Army after a short service, also compelled him to abandon farming for the less laborious life of a trader. He experienced the varying fortunes which attend trade, brought up a large family in the light of a pious example, lived to a good old age, and left behind him the name of a perfectly reliable, honest, upright man and consistent Christian.

William Munroe, the subject of this sketch, was the third son of Daniel Munroe, and was of the fifth generation from William, the first settler of that name in Lexington, Mass. He was born in Dec., 1778, on the Seaver Farm, Roxbury, about the time his father's broken health compelled him to abandon farming. His infancy and youth shared the most severe trials of his father's humble fortunes. He was not a strong boy, and he had but very irregular advantages of event the little school education within the reach of the boy of that day. Some notes left by him state that many difficulties were encountered when striving to lay a foundation upon which he build what he himself considered the frail materials of imperfect education and moderate capacity into a structure of solid and respectable manhood. At thirteen years he was for a while at his grandfather Parker's as a boy, on a farm in Roxbury. Though feeling at home there, he did not like farming well enough to stay, as he desired to learn a trade. At fourteen he was for a short time with a wheelwright; but there he thought he had a hard fare and hard usage. Leaving this place, he was next with a cabinetmaker, where he found but little chance of properly learning the trade and left. And it was not until he was about seventeen that he found a place where he had good treatment and an opportunity to do himself credit. This was with Deacon Nehemiah Munroe, a cabinetmaker on the Main Street, Roxbury. Among his notes some incidents are related, showing the character of those times, his associates, and employers. They present a strong contrast with the habits and practices of today. Boys then had to submit to be thought boys, whose rights as well as duties were to be defined by the masters, and with no little strictness. They, however, did sometimes rebel a little, and undertake to make laws themselves. As an instance: when he was about nineteen years old, the apprentices decided that some of the domestic practices must be reformed. The first related to the customs at meal times. It appears that each apprentice, in order to get his dinner, had, beginning with the eldest, to leave the separate table at which they dined in the same room with the deacon's family, and present his plate at the deacon's table for his dinner. This was settled by giving the apprentices a table with their own milk both morning and evening, every day except Sunday, when they had chocolate in the morning, they should have chocolate every morning. This was opposed. But a small rebellion secured that demand also. The apprentices were allowed to go to Boston to the theatre one a year only. The deacon was no supporter of the theatre. One night a bright fire was seen in Boston, and, as was the deacon's practice, he mounted his horse and galloped towards the town to see what was burning. Citizens followed on foot. But before getting to the town they met the old gentleman slowly coming back. "Where's the fire, deacon?" was the cry. "Theatre," said the deacon, contemptuously, and he passed on, saying not another word.

In that cabinetmaker's shop young Munroe soon showed that he had capacity, and, before leaving it, stood at the head, as the best workman in it; the finest and most difficult work being entrusted to his hands. Before finishing his apprenticeship, he had felt conscious of having powers that were cramped, whenever he thought out new modes of making or ornamenting his work. But the rules of the shop were imperative and did not permit innovations. On one occasion, however, he defied them, by proceeding quietly, and, as he thought, unobserved, to hang a table leaf by its hinges on a plan not known to the rules. He got started pretty well, when some tell-tale informed the deacon. A breeze was soon raised that was nearly serious, but on begging to be allowed to finish what he had started, he, with many admonitions, was allowed to go on. The result was such that no other way of hanging a table leaf but his was the rule of the shop from that time. After arriving of age, he remained with the deacon about six months as a journeyman, earning the means of buying as humble outfit and some tools which he needed. He left Roxbury for Concord June 1, 1800, on the invitation of his older brothers, Daniel and Nathaniel, who had already established themselves as clockmakers, and wished him to make clock-cases for them. He was thus employed part of the time as partner with them (i.e., till 1804). Their shop was a one-story building of the late Colonel William Whiting's residence, and was the L part of that residence, lately taken down to give place to a more sightly building.

In September, 1805, he married Patty, daughter of Captain John Stone, whose widow, with a considerable family, lived on the farm lying easterly of Barrett's Mill. Captain Stone had been a trader in York, Maine, where he made a good property. Dying not long after his removal to Concord, he left his family in comfortable circumstances. He was the architect of the First Charles River bridge between Charlestown and Boston. Its construction was considered a great achievement, as nothing of such magnitude had then been attempted in this part of the world. His wife was from the family of the Greenoughs of Jamaica Plain, and well connected. The grandfather Horatio Greenough, the celebrated sculptor, was her brother.

After this marriage with Miss Stone, Mr. Munroe took up his residence in a part of the brick house, lately the county house, near Middlesex Hotel. Here their first child was born. About two years after this, on the solicitation of the Widow Stone, he removed to the neighborhood of Barrett's Mills, having his shop in a part of the house standing east of the Mill Brook. He was employed making clockcases and timepiece-cases, and a few showcases, for his brothers, and in some articles of furniture, which he took to Boston for sale.

In 1810, he made a voyage to Norfolk, Va., with clocks taken in payment for the cases which he had made. He sold his clocks, invested the proceeds in corn and flour, and came back with them in mid-winter, barely escaping shipwreck on the voyage. He sold most of th flour to Abel Prescott, a baker of Concord. Instead of the cash, which he could not collect from Prescott, a round-about trade was made, by which he obtained the shop on the Mill-Dam, which he for several years owned and occupied. It was the building burned a few years since on the spot now occupied by John Brown's store and the adjoining tenement.

In 1811, he removed from Barrett's Mills to the village, into the small house south of the meeting-house, now and for several years occupied by Mr. White. Living there, and working in the shop on the Mill-Dam, he made the attempt to get a support as a regular cabinetmaker. He says, "In this I continued about a year, when, finding that I could make with my own hands more furniture than I could sell, business of every kind being dull, and my family expenses increasing, I found that, unless I could make money faster, I should in a few years at most, even if I should have my health, be poor. I was worth a few hundred dollars, and that not in cash." This was at the beginning of the war with England. Non-intercourse, non-importation, and embargo laws were in force, and business of nearly every kind much depressed.

The demand for articles that hitherto had only been made abroad was, however, an exception. For these, non-importation created a scarcity; consequently invention in that direction was encouraged and well rewarded. This, then, was his field. The first article he attempted to produce was cabinetmakers' squares. In this he succeeded without difficulty, and readily sold all that he made at a good profit. This, however, did not satisfy him, as the demand was necessarily limited and competitions easy. And seeing what a high price had to be paid for a leadpencil, and that the article could hardly be procured at all, he said to himself, "If I can but make leadpencils I shall have less fear of competition, and can accomplish something." He acted upon this idea at once, dropped his tools and procured a few lumps of black lead. This he pulverized with a hammer and separated the fine portions by their suspension in water in a tumbler. From this he made his first experimental mixture in a spoon. And from this was his first attempt to make a pencil. The result was not very encouraging. He continued to make a few squares and do the little cabinet business that offered, for this was his only means of living. But his mind was principally occupied for two or three months in devising ways of making leadpencils; having access to no information which could assist him, fearing to consult his friends on the subject, and sometimes getting discouraged with repeated failures. But finally, securing some better lead, and picking up a little cedar wood of wholly unsuitable quality from the neighboring hills, he was able, on the second day of July, 1812, to proceed to Boston with a modest sample of about thirty leadpencils, the first of American make, and naturally not of very good quality. These he sold to Benjamin Andrews, a hardware dealer in Union Street, to whom he had sold the cabinetmaker's squares. This Andrews was an active, enterprising man, who encouraged all such novelties, and he advised going on with leadpencils. This advice suited his intentions, and on the 14th of July he went to Boston with three gross of pencils. These, also, were readily taken by Andrews, who then made a contract, agreeing to take all that should be made up to a certain time at a fixed price.

The clouds of anxiety that had surrounded him now vanished in presence of a promising future, and he went to work in earnest, preparing for the new business. He had great difficulty in procuring the required materials, and lost some time in devising proper methods of performing the various processes on a larger scale than his experiments required. But encouragement stimulated his energies, developed his faculties of invention, and soon enabled him to overcome all difficulties. All the mixing of the lead and putting it into pencils was done entirely by his own hands in a small room of his dwelling-house, thoroughly protected from curious eyes; no one but his wife being permitted to know anything of his secret methods. The processes of pulverizing the crude lead, and preparing the woodwork, were performed by assistants in his shop on the Mill-Dam, the finishing being completed by himself, or within the family, at home.

This profitable business of pencil-making continued about eighteen months only, when, owing to the great difficulty of procuring black lead, it had to set aside. During the short period he found that he had made a profit that, for him and in those days, was quite a capital for future use. Looking about for something else worthy of his attention, he started the making of tooth-brushes and watchmakers' brushes on the strong recommedations of the watch and clockmakers, on the Mill-Dam. He prepared the necessary tools and machinery, and made a few brushes. But he did not push the business, finding that the demand and returns were small. This, and such cabinet work as offered itself, occupied his time to the close of the war, when, being again able to procure the necessary materials, he make a few leadpencils. But, as he had feared and predicted, the importation of a better article seriously interfered with him, and he began to think he should make nothing further in that business. He, however, did not forget or neglect the subject, but made himself master of what little information he could gather about foreign methods of preparing the lead; but as little information of value could be got from books, and none elsewhere, his experiments, occasionally making a few pencils for sale of not quite satisfactory quality. All this time he had journeymen in his shop, and made some little furniture, and largely of clock-cases and timepiece cases for the clockmakers, who were then doing a pretty large business on the Mill-Dam. This continued until 1819, when, having prepared himself with better experimental results, and obtaining better lead and cedar timber, he decided to abandon the cabinetmaking part of his business, and to devote himself wholly to the manufacture of leadpencils. He therefore sold out his cabinet-shop materials, and part of his tools, to his journeymen Ebenezer Wood and James Adams, who engaged to do such of the wood-work of pencil-making as he required. He hired the old building near his residence that not long before had been occupied as a hat manufactory. There all the processes of preparing and filling the lead were performed. It was not without a struggle that his reputation as a manufacturer of leadpencils was established and recognized; not until more than ten years of persistency in pushing the sale of his goods, and of study in improving their quality, that he was able to say, "that purchasers were at length as ready to seek him as he had hitherto been to seek them." From that time, so long as he was in business, he stood before the public as the best and pricipal maker of leadpencils, as he had been the first, supplying a large part of the demand for that article.

In 1820, the family beehive had got to be rather crowded with growing-up children, and a move was necessary. He had long owned the farm near Barrett's Mills, where he had married his wife, and now he decided to make it his home. The old dwelling-house was thoroughly renovated, and additions made to accomodate his business, and to this place the family removed in April, 1821. The residence on the farm was a happy part of his life, surrounded as he was with a large share of that which makes life pleasant. He paid but little attention to the affairs of the farm, which was of but little importance compared with his regular business. The only originality he displayed was in the cultivation of teasel. It was a novelty that paid a good profit, and was worthy on imitation by his townsmen, and there were no secrets or trade marks in the way of their honestly doing so; but it was not done. After a residence there of twenty-three years he began to tire of even the little attention the farm required, and of the distance from the village. He then took advantage of an opportunity to sell, and purchased a place where he could be near the railroad that was nearly opened to the city. To the new residence he removed in November, 1844, and here he passed the remainder of his life. All through his long life Mr. Munroe was essentially a practical man. He used to say that industry and perservance alone secured the material success of his life. But we must add, what his modesty would not have done, that he had more than average capacity, and great resources in a talent for mechanics, which enabled him readily to contrive the means of doing whatever was required in any process of his business by inexpensive methods that had directness and simplicity. He also possessed those powerful aids to success in business, good, sound common sense and unwavering integrity. His exactness and method in all matters of business were very marked, and accompanied by the nicest sense of what was due from an honest man to those who confided in him, even in the minutest things. He therefore not only won the confidence but the esteem of those who had business transactions with him. Under more favoring circumstances, those excellent practical qualities would probably have enabled him on some larger field to leave a much stronger mark on his times. But his sphere was narrow, and he had no leisure to seek better opportunities in a wider one. His duty and his love compelled him to labor for his family, and when the struggle to find a means of living during the hard times of an impending war ended in pencil-making, the profit of that pursuit during the war commanded all his attention, and fixed the habits of his business life. He therefore was little tempted with that desire for new triumphs which so often ruins men of inventive minds.

Beyond the immediate circle of his personal and business friends, Mr. Munroe was comparatively little known, and he took but little part in public affairs, and so far from having any ambition to do so, shrank from notoriety. But once only did he permit the use of his name in connection with public office. It was during the political anti-Masonic exicitement of 1835, when, having been nominated for state senator, he accepted the nomination. Failing of election, as he predicted he should do so, he felt that he had escaped a position that would have been painful to him. Distrustful of his ability to manage the affairs of others, though confident enough about his own, he preferred to assist in the selection of men of greater aptitude for public affairs than himself, and he accepted with great reluctance the responsibilities which were occasionally put upon him, even in the local matter of his little country town. Though not highly estimating his own capacities, the success of his early struggles built up in him a strong self-reliance, and he held his carefully formed opinions with great tenacity. His habit of mind was conservative, receiving new views with great caution, and presenting his own with a modesty that indicated settled convictions rather than a desire to convince others.

In politics he called himself a Federalist of the old school, and a Whig even afterwards, greatly admiring the political character and views of Daniel Webster. Mr. Munroe was of quiet and retiring manners, more fond of his home and family than of society elsewhere. Habitually without frivolity, yet liking play as well as others, he enjoyed an innocent game, a hearty laugh, or a good joke. Cards or dice were never seen in his house, where he encouraged only games of skill, not those of chance. He was fond of music, and an excellant singer. It was as leader of the choir in church that he found among the singers there was a young woman who became his wife. Music was one of the great delights of his life, quite to its close. In his family he was a gentle but pretty strict disciplinarian, devoted unceasingly to its welfare, and succeeding in securing obediance, love, and reverence in return. His manner of speech was simple unpretending, and straightforward, always to the point. No slang, no prevarication, no impure or irreverent expression was even heard on from his lips, or permitted in his presence unrebuked. On the temperance question he declined to join any public action, or to join those who thought base appetites can be controlled by pledges of laws, preferring to be a law unto himself, and to influence others only through his own temperate example. He would have no drinker about him, if he could avoid it, and in 1835 refused to employ any man who took his "toddy" at lunch time, as was then the practice. He was among the first to discontenance the use of wine at the meetings of the Social Circle, and was in strong opposition to those practices when there was little thought of abolishing them.

In religious matters Mr. Munroe was all his mature life a consistant Christian, but little demonstrative, though devout and reverent. He joined the church with his wife soon after his marriage, and was chosen deacon in the year 1837. However, for reasons personal to himself, he declined to serve, though strongly urged by Dr. Ripley and friends. His creed was the simple one of the church of his choice, but he could not accept the dogmas then current through the teachings of the Assembly's Catechism. He preffered the plain rules of duty for his creed, leaving the independent judgement free in its interpretation of details of belief. His own he found in the teachings of the Bible, for which his reverence was unbounded, and with which he was very familiar. Mr. Munroe was never a robust man. His health was at times feeble, yet, till past sixty years of age, he appeared young for his years.

At about seventy, a chronic trouble, which had hitherto given him but slight suffering, developed itself more seriously. From that time his health gradually failed. After a few years he was confined to his house, and was finally oblidged to keep his room. He preserved his mental powers, though much enfeebled, to the last, but had to submit to some years of slowly but steadily decreasing bodily powers, which would have made life a burden to him, but for the love and care which watched over him.

Long before his release, he had surrendered all thoughts of the cares of this life, and put on the armor of a beautiful, cheerful, loving submission to his lot. He passed away to his rest, March 6, 1861, aged 82 years, 3 months.

19-81-4 DAN MONROE

His first business venture, of which there is an account, was the purchase of a fulling mill in Lebanon, Conn., which he operated until he sold it to his father in May 1798. He remained in Lebanon until near the close of 1800, when he moved to Berkshire County, Mass., where he remained until 1816, residing first in Pittsfield, next in Sandisfield and lastly in Tyringham. At Pittsfield, he bought in 1800, from Valentine Rathburn, Sr., an antiquated fulling mill which Rathburn had owned since 1770, of which it is said in Smith's "History of Pittsfield," "It was none of your newfangled German inventions, but an old fashioned, double-action crank-mill, driven by a three-foot, open-bucket water wheel, only warranteed to run in a high freshet or a long spell of weather." He equipped the mill with new and improved machinery and sold it to Daniel Stearns in 1801. In 1816 he and his family moved to Plymouth, N.Y., where he built and resided in a log house, one of the first dwellings in the town. 19-11/9-2 PHILENDA (MUNROE) PHILLIPS

Philenda, the oldest daughter of David, did not marry until after her father's death. David's will made it evident that she was the housekeeper after her mother's death. His will gave her a part of the homestead on the east side of the property. The balance of the homestead went to Linus. Clare Monroe, a great-grandson of Linus, now lives on the homestead at 11131 Union Road, Pittsford, Mich.

19-11/9-4 LINUS MONROE

He was a tanner and currier by trade and operated a boot and shoe store along with his other trade. His was a prosperous business near Rochester, N.Y., which he had to sell because of failing health. In August 1836 he came to the wilds of Michigan with his father and their families, one brother and a sister had preceded them a year before. Linus settled on land which he inherited from his father, in Pittsford, Hillsdale County, where he continued to reside until his death, and which remained in possession of his descendants. He became a farmer when he removed to Michigan.

It has been noted that he never talked to his children about his childhood, and that he regretted going to Michigan and leaving his good home. Linus and his wife are buried in the Goodrich Cemetery.

The Pottawawattamie Indians lived at Squawfield about two miles from the Linus Monroe home, during the last months before the Indians were moved west of the Mississippi. It is said that Chief Baw Beese had a thorne in his foot which was festering and causing him pain. Linus Monroe treated it with poltices and won the Chief's lasting gratitude.

Recorded in the Hillsdale County History 1879, it relates that one day Mrs. Monroe had killed a six foot snake, and that day Chief Baw Beese came to the house. On seeing the snake he said, "Him bite, no cure." The snake was a Michigan rattle snake.

19-11/9-5 MARY (MUNROE) THORN

Mary Munroe came with her father David from Penfield, N.Y., to Pittsford, Mich., in 1836. In October of that year she married James H. Thorn. "James Henry Thorn was one of the early settlers of Hillsdale Co., was very influential in shaping its affairs. His ripe judgement and keen intellectual powers made him a leader among men." According to a history of Lenawee Co. James was born in Dutchess Co., N.Y., 20 Jan. 1816. At the age of eighteen he decided to move to some western territory. He arrived in Michigan in 1834. He stopped for a while in Detroit. From there he went to Ypsilanti. Later he taught school in Farmington, then moved west and explored Bean Creek Valley. He decided to settle in Jefferson Township, Hillsdale Co. He walked some ninety miles to Monroe, Mich., to enter his location with the land office. After paying his registration fee, he had only ten cents left. Undaunted by his lack of funds, his small coin was spent for cheese and crackers. His walk to Tecumseh was only an incident to one of the conquerors of the wilderness.

b. Circa 1797
d. 1886 aged 89.

He and his brothers, Hastings, were both in the "Aroostook War." The Major told Ira T. Monroe that after they got back to Augusta, the officers all make themselves heroes. It was here that the Major smoked his first cigar with direful result, and never again did he hanker for the weed. He lived on the Sam Boothby farm near Bartlett's Corner, when he was married, but soon removed to Brettun's Mills, where he lived in several places. He kept the "Tavern" for many years and its hall was used for balls, levees, town meetings, court trials, shows and religious meetings.

11-86-16 IVERS MUNROE

Mr. Munroe lived in Ashburnham, Mass., until 1846, he then moved to Camden, N.Y., where he entered the law office of Stephen Cromwell as a student. He found Mr. Cromwell to be an able instructor and a generous friend. After he was admitted to the bar in 1848, a partnership was immediately formed, as the business of the office increased it was ably handled by Cromwell and Munroe for the next twenty years. These years of labor were crowned by a fitting measure of success. During the Civil War, Ivers Munroe was commissioner of drafts and enrollment of the twentieth District of New York. He next went to Iowa, and from 1842 to 1862 he actively practiced his profession, first at Sidney in Tremont County and next at Clinton, the shire of Clinton County. In this field he was at once recognized as a faithful attorney and a man of character and integrity. In Clinton, he was alderman for several years, and held a prominent position in professional, public affairs and business. About 1882 he resided in Oneida, N.Y. in impaired health.

The following is his obituary at Oneida, N.Y.

"Ivers Munroe
Descendant of Him who fired the shot Heard Round the World.

Oneida, July 7, 1899—The funeral of Ivers Munroe was held at 11 o'clock to-day at his home, no. 6 Seneca Street, the services being conducted by the Rev. Louis H. Holden, assistant pastor of the first Presbyterian church, and at noon the body was taken to Camden for burial...The bearers were E. Eugene Coon, Allen S. Whitman, Hiram L. Rockwell, Roswell B. Downing, James B. Jenkins and E. Emmons Coe.

Ivers Munroe was highly respected and his memory will be long cherished on account of his good deeds. He was born at Ashburnham, Mass., in 1822. Twenty-four years later he moved to Camden, where he studied law in the office of Attorney Stephen Cromwell and was admitted to practice in 1848. He formed a partnership with Mr. Cromwell, which lasted for a period of more than twenty years. During his residence at Camden Mr. Munroe was elected Justice of the Peace, and from 1862 to 1865 he was Commissioner of Drafts for the twentieth district. His commission was signed by Secretary Stanton, and his office was at that of the Provost Marshall at Utica.

Mr. Munroe removed to Iowa in 1868, first locating at Sidney and afterward at Clinton where he practiced his profession. While at Clinton he was elected to represent his ward in the Board of Aldermen. Coming here in 1882, he resumed his practice, and became a trustee of, and the attorney for the Oneida Savings bank. Owing to failing health, he resigned those offices last winter. He was an attendant of the First Presbyterian church, although not embraced in its membership.

Lieut. Ebenezer Munroe, credited by historians with having fired the first gun for the American side in the war of independence, and was one of the first patriots wounded in the first battle of Lexington, was the grandsire of the deceased. Besides a widow, one daughter, Mrs. Homer Chapin of this place, and a son Charles Munroe of Hacketstown, N.J., the deceased is survived by one brother, Loring Munroe, a venerable resident of Broad Street. He was the son of Charles Munroe, a soldier during the second war with England in 1812, serving with the Ashburnham Light Infantry."

Children:

The History of Ashburnham, Mass. by Ezra Stearns, 1887, says that Ivers Munroe had seven children, and that only two were living in 1887. This must by erroneous for the obituary above mentions a Charles Munroe. It is the compiler's belief that the above Mrs. Homer Chapin was a daughter by his third wife's previous marriage.

Another child of Ivers Munroe, was Frank Munroe, b. circa 1849 and d. 30 Sept. 1881; as proven by the following obituary, in an Oneida, N.Y. newspaper.

"Munroe—In this city at 11 a.m. Sept. 30, 1881, of consumption, Frank Munroe, son of Ivers Munroe, aged 32 years.

Deceased had been in a decline for several years, and confined to his room for several weeks and to his bed for ten days. He passed into an unconsious condition at seven o'clock in the morning and died peacefully four hours later, surrounded by the saddened household.

Mr. Munroe came here from Syracuse, N.Y. three years ago joining his fathers family here. He spent the following summer in the Red River country, but derived no perceptible benefit from his sojourn there.

The deceased was a member of the Episcopal church and was universally esteemed as a worthy young man.

Funeral services will be held at the house on Fifth Avenue at 7:30 tomorrow (Saturday) morning, and the remains will go east by the express at nine o'clock for burial at Camden, N.Y., the parents accompanying."

11-86-17 LORING MUNROE

Loring Munroe, left Ashburnham, Mass., when he was twenty years old and settled in Cleveland, N.Y. In Cleveland he became interested in the manufacture of glass, in which he was to become successful. For several years he owned an interest in the American Glass Co., at Bernhard's Bay. He and his father-in-law, George Cowarden owned the Dunbarton Glass Works in Dunbarton, N.Y. Dunbarton, was a village that once stood on the Erie Canal between State Bridge and Higginsville, but which has long since disappeared. About 1861, after Mr. George Cowarden's death Mr. Loring Munroe was sole owner of the Glass Works. Mr. Munroe's sons also assisted in the operation of the Glass Works.

For several of his later years Mr. Loring Munroe resided in Oneida, N.Y. in the county of Madison. He was a trustee of the Oneida Savings Bank and an active member of the banking house of Barnes, Stark and Munroe. He was greatly interested in the prosperity of the town, which is attested by the Munroe Block, and of the Opera House of which he was joint owner with Mr. Barnes. He occupied several positions of trust and was held in high esteem by his associates.

(The following write-up appeared some 70 years ago in Oneida, N.Y. Dispatch).

Loring Munroe will build chapel for Glenwood Cemetery

Plans prepared by Wellington Taber of Syracuse for a handsome stone structure—Donor a valued citizen

Glenwood, one of the most beautiful cemeteries in Central New York and this village's principal place of burial, is lacking in but one detail of perfect appointment. That is a chapel. Ant that is to be supplied by a man ever identified with the interests of the town, a large contributor to everything that has a tendency to advance the interests of the community, whose charitable impulses, industry and enterprise will long by remembered after he shall have bidden farewell to earthly things—Loring Munroe.

Mr. Munroe has already contracted for the erection of the proposed edifice which will adjoin the receiving vault. Plans have been prepared by Wellington Taber, a Syracuse architect and the building will be erected by George Avery. Gothic in style of architecture, the materials will be of enduring stone and brick, with a roof of slate and galvanized iron trim. The measurements are twenty-two by thirty-two feet, with a porte cochere at entrance in front, affording a covered alighting place at the double doorway, above which is to be a large window of artistic design. On the sides there will be three plate glass windows, and in the rear above the doors leading to the vault will be another ornamental window.

On the front of the edifice will be the inscription, "Munroe Memorial Chapel." It is to be heated by furnaces placed in the basement. Work will be commenced just as soon as weather becomes settled.The site selected has been approved by the cemetery association directors,one of whom is Mr. Munroe. The chapel will be a fitting monument of its donor, and a necessity that has long been needed and the munificent gift is sure of being appreciated.

Mr. Munroe has been a resident of this village since 1877. For many years before removing here he lived at Cleveland and Bernhards Bay where he was interested in the manufacture of glass. For sixteen years he was owner of the glass factory at Dunbarton. Before becoming a resident of Oneida, Mr. Munroe was elected a trustee of Oneida Savings Bank. At one time he was a member of the private banking firm of Barnes, Stark & Munroe. He erected the building now occupied by the Farmers & Merchants Bank of which he is president. He has represented the old town of Lenox in the County Board of Supervisors. His philanthropy, something he declines to discuss, is known to be generous and far reaching.

Mr. Munroe was born in 1826 in Ashburnham, Mass. His ancestors figured prominently in the early struggles of the Colonists. He is a grandson of Ebenezer Munroe, credited by historians with having fired the first shot on the American side in the first battle of the Revolutionary war. Loring Munroe has one brother, Ivers, and three sons, George L., Charles I., and Anthony B. all living here.

11-10/5-63 JOSIAH JOHNSON MUNROE

Mr. Munroe resided in Roxbury, Mass. and was a house painter. In a Bible that Josiah Johnson Munroe gave to his son, George Harris Munroe (Family no. 11-10/5-63-1) he wrote the following:

"My Dear Children:

I want to write a few lines in this Book. Not to add to its contents, but that you can look back years from now and say my father wrote that. My father wrote in this Book to me and has taught me to believe in the Spirit of it, this is my desire, that you may believe in the Spirit of this Book, and live in this world as you wish you had when you go to the next. You have started on a voyage through this world (I have got most through it) and as a ship must have a pilot, so must you have one. You may meet with shipwreck and disaster, yet you will come safe into Port if you believe in the Author of the Bible. I would not give up my Faith in God for all the world contains, He is my all, you may take all else, but He remains and I want no more. Oh my dear ones, do trust in Him now while you have health and strength to do it. Trust Him as you trusted me when you were young. I could write a volume to you but this must do, and if, I had all the world to leave you, it would be nothing compaired to the desire, that you may trust in God."

"Your-affct Father
J.J. Munroe"

11-10/5-10/3 GEORGE HARRIS MONROE

He received his preliminary education at Day's Academy at Wrentham, Mass. Mr. Monroe was an ardent reader and while at the Academy, which had a small library, he read every book in it. A more thorough education was soon to begin, but not that of formal schooling. When he was sixteen he went to Boston to learn the printer's trade in the office of Samuel N. Dickinson.

Soon his knowledge broadened and he became a proof reader and because of his love for reading and good literature, he was able to distinguish between good and bad writing. As his accomplishments in literature were inherent within the man, he then went to work at the University Press at Cambridge, Mass., in 1859. Here he became acquainted with some of the tales of Nathaniel Hawthorne before they reached the public, this was a period in which Mr. Hawthorne was at his greatest and best productivity.

In 1849, at the age of twenty-three he was for a short time an editorial writer for the Lawrence Courier. In 1857 he began writing Boston letters for the Dedham Gazette. In 1859 he bought the Norfolk County Journal, which was published weekly, he was sole publisher, editor, reporter and proof-reader. When Roxbury was annexed to Boston he changed the name of the paper to the Suffolk County Journal. He sold this paper sometime after 1866.

As a journalist, Mr. Monroe was noted for his "Templeton" letters to the Hartford Courant, over a period of thirty-five years.

He had two passions outside of the work which gave him his livelihood. He was an omnivorous reader, particularly devoted to fiction, reading almost every new novel as it appeared. Baseball was his strong diversion, being a regular attendant at every professional baseball game in Boston, having his own seat in the grandstand, marked with his name. He knew the capacity and achievements of every prominent player, local or visiting.

He served as Senator to the General Court of Mass., from Suffolk County in 1869. He was a member of the Mass. Historical Society, which has the collection of his writings. Mr. Monroe was proud of one incident in his life when he resided in Dedham, he acted as a conductor of Abraham Lincoln (who at this time had not attained great National importance) from Boston to Dedham, where Lincoln was to make a speech. His daughter told her nieces, Mr. Monroe was embarrassed, because Mr. Lincoln removed his coat and sat in his shirt sleeves on the train trip.

Mr. Monroe became a Republican at the early stages when the party was being formed but was not a strict adherent to party lines.

13-34-51 WILLIAM HENRY MUNROE

b. 2 March 1815.
d. 28 Aug. 1902. Unm.

William Henry Munroe, who died at Lexington, Aug. 28 was born at the Monroe Tavern, March 2 1815, the oldest son of Jonas and Abigail (Smith) Munore. Jonas Munroe, affectionately known to thousands as "Uncle Jonas", and his father. Col. William Munore, orderly sergeant of the Minute-men at the battle of Lexington, successively kept the "Tavern" from before the revolution until the building of the railroad abolished stage-coaches and brought to an end the famous hostelries that had lined the stage-coach routes. As Lexington was on the main thoroughfares from New Hampshire to Boston, the Munroe Tavern was always crowded with guests, while its barn and the sheds that used to join it have often sheltered a hundred horses. As Earl Percy's headquarters and field hospital on the 19th of April, 1775, the house has been for many years an object of interest to the tens of thousands who come to Lexington; and not the least interesting was the courteous and venerable owner who has just passed away.

Educated in the public schools of Lexington and at the Academy, Mr. Munroe, when quite a young man, went out to that part of the "Western Reserve" now known as Ohio in the interest of his uncle, Edward Munroe, who had large enterprises there, making the journey by canal boat, stage and on horseback. For three or four years he was actively engaged in establishing mills, stores, etc., at Munroe Falls, near what is now Akron; but the great financial panic of 1837 put a stop to these enterprises and compelled his return. During this time he was a neighbor and friend of John Brown. Soon after returning from the west he established himself in partnership with his cousin, William Muzzey, as agents, in Philadephia, for the New England Glass Co., at that time and for many years afterwards the leading manufacturers of glass in the United States. He remained in Philadelphia until after the civil war, when he returned to Boston as treasurer of the New England Glass Co., taking up again his residence in the old tavern. When, because of the discover of natural gas, the glass industry was removed to the region where this ideal fuel for glass making is found, the stockholders or the "New England" voted to dissolve the company. The work of closing up the affairs of the concern and of disposing of its properties fell entirely upon Mr. Munroe and occupied him for several years. This work finished, he retired from business and devoted himself to the care of his place and to the entertainment of the hosts of pilgrims to Lexington, to whom he delighted to tell the story of the "Battle" and of the "Tavern." Gradually under the weight of years, he has grown weaker; but he has suffered from neither pain nor disease, and on the afternoon of August 28th he fell asleep, never to wake again on earth.

Always proud of his native town, Mr. Munroe, until feebleness prevented, was faithful in his duties as a citizen, and was a constant attendant upon the First Parish church, of which five generations before him, beginning with the William Munroe who came from Scotland and settled at "Cambridge Farms," had been active members. He was a member of the committee which had charge of the celebration of Ap. 19, 1875, of the committee that placed tablets upon the historic sites in Lexington, and of other committees having to do with the welfare of the town.

The funeral was held at his home on Saturday afternoon, August 30th, at two o'clock, only the relatives and a few close friends being present. The Rev. C. A. Staples officiated, reading appropriate passages from the scriptures and referring with deep feeling to his many years of intimacy with the deceased. He spoke with eloquence of the uprightness, the kindness, the unfailing courtesy of Mr. Munroe, summing up his character as that of a Christian gentleman. The flowers covering the casket were very beautiful. The burial was in the family lot at Mt. Auburn.

Mr. Munroe was never married. He is survived by his only brother Mr. James S. Munroe, by two nephews and by several grand-nephews and grand-nieces.

OLD MUNROE TAVERN.

The fine old Munroe tavern—known always under the name "Old Munroe Tavern"—near which Earl Percy with reinforcements saved the remnants of the British companies after the battle of Lexington and Concord, where George Washington was entertained in 1789, is still occupied by a Munroe—W. H. Munroe, a lineal descendant of the revolutionary soldier of that name.

Though 90 years of age Mr. Munroe takes keen pleasure in showing visitors the hallway in which Washington sat and the room in which the great man was entertained.

Everybody who goes a-sightseeing in Lexington takes in the Munroe Tavern. And every visitor must perforce sit in Washington's chair, "I like," says the venerable owner, "to note the reverence and awe which is apparent on the face of each person as he seats himself in the chair.

"Men frequently say, 'I hardly feel worthy to sit there. I know it is only a chair—but Washington sat in it once.'"

13-34-54 JAMES SMITH MUNROE

[James Smith Munroe spent his entire life in the immediate neighborhood of his birthplace, owning and cultivating an extensive estate known as Munroe Meadows. At one time he was a member of the firm of Sewall and Munroe, hardware dealers in Dock Square, Boston, Mass., and for the firm he undertook the management of a small paper mill, located on Vine Brook at Bedford, Mass. From this experience, and after the mill burned, he started a larger plant at South Lawrence, Mass., which developed into the Munroe Felt and Paper Co., and of which he was the president for many years.

He was a genial, courteous man, proud of Lexington, interested in improving and beautifying it, and a delightful entertainer of friends and visitors. By his will, Mr. Munroe bequeathed to the Lexington Historical Society, on behalf of his brother William (family no. 13-34-51) and himself, that part of his real estate known as "Munroe Tavern" and a parcel of land surrounding it, to be kept for-ever as a token of Colonial and Revolutionary Lexington. He was a trustee of the Lexington Savings Bank.]

13-84A-11 WILLIAM MUNROE

b. 25 May 1797 at Keene, N.H.
d. 8 Sept. 1871 at East Boston, Mass.
m. Eliza Brown at the Old North Church in Boston, Mass. on 3 Oct. 1820, dau. of Francis and Mary ( ) Brown.
b. Circa 1801 at Boston, Mass.
d. 22 June at East Boston, Mass.

The Boston Directory of 1822 lists William Munroe as a grocer at 48 Fish Street, with a house on Lynn. From 1823 to 1827 he lived on Fleet Street and from 1828 to 1848 on Tileston. The 1830 Directory carries the joint listing of Abel and William Munroe, provisions, at 214 Hanover Street. In 1848 William became a constable and continued as such for the rest of his life. He was a junior warden at the Old North Church and had the following children baptized there:

Children: All bap. at the Old North Church.

13-84A-11-1 1 Francis James, bap. 24 Apr. 1825. (C)
13-84A-11-2 2 William Henry, bap. 15 April 1827. (C)
13-84A-11-3 3 Mary Bethania, bap. 3 May 1829. Not mentioned in her father's will, so she probably died before 23 March 1871.
13-84A-11-4 4 Jotham Edward, bap. 22 Oct. 1837. (C)
13-84A-11-5 5 Sarah Catherine, bap. 19 July 1840. She probably d. before 23 March 1871.
13-84A-11-6 6 Rebecca Adams, bap. 4 Dec. 1842. She m. Charles K. Morrison, Jr. on 9 Sept. 1863. He was a machinist of Boston, aged 25, s. of Charles K. and Mary ( ) Morrison, (Mass. marriages 164-81). She was Mr. Knowle's grandmother.

William Munroe's will reveals the existence of a seventh child Samuel T., whose baptism seems to unrecorded. He was probably born in the interval between Mary Bethania and Jotham Edward. He may be the Samuel T. Munroe shown in Directories from 1866 to 1874 as a master maker living on Wesley Street, East Boston. William's will was made on 23 March 1871 and proved on 20 May 1872. It mentions his son Francis J. Munroe and Francis's two children: William Wallace and Isabella Baltimore Munroe; sons William H., Samuel T., and Jotham E. Munroe; daughter Rebecca A. Morrison; and granddaughter Eliza C. W. Lawson. Son Samuel T. Munroe and son-in-law C. K. Morrison are named as executors. William died at 118 Eutaw Street, East Boston on 8 Sept. 1871.

13-84A-12 JAMES MUNROE

He became a provisions dealer in Boston where, in 1838, his business was on Ann Street and his home on Tileston. He may have been married twice, for on 27 Aug. 1839 an Elvira A. Munroe witnessed a deed with him, while the wife who survived him was named Mary. There are several deeds in James' name at the Suffolk County Registry. One of them shows in 1851 he bought a dwelling house on Unity Street in Boston's North End.

On 7 March 1853 James was appointed administrator in the estate of Jotham B. Munroe, "late Supt. of Alien Passengers." James himself died at 335 Hanover Street on 8 March 1864, aged 65 years, 1 month, 10 days. His death record gives his birthplace as Surry, N.H. and his parents Abel Munroe, born at Upton, and Bethenia, born at Surry (Mass. Deaths 176-39). On 21 March 1864 Mary A. Munroe petitioned for the administration of his estate. The Boston Directory of 1866 shows Mrs. Mary A. Munroe, widow, living at 6 Unity Court. In 1873 she was living at 686 Shawmut Avenue and in 1876 at 20 Madison Street. During some of these years she had Jotham B. Munroe's widow Harriet living with her. Also with her were others who may have been her children: Theodore, J. Munroe, hoseman (1869), policeman (1870), clerk (1873); Miss J. Ida Munroe, primary school teacher; and Joanna Munroe, also a primary school teacher (possibly they were identical). Widow Mary A. Munroe dropped out of the Directory in 1877.

Children:

13-84A-13-1 1 Abel B., Jr.
13-84A-13-2 2 Martin A.

Authorities & Sources: Mrs. Estelle E. Wait.

The Boston Directory of 1828 shows Abel Munroe as a provisions dealer at 240 Hanover Street. In 1830 he appears jointly, in provisions, with William Munroe. He seems to have prospered in business for in 1839 a deed calls him "Gentleman." By 1839 he was designating himself as Abel B. Munroe. On 31 March 1831 he bought land on Tileston Street and lived there for over twenty years, when he moved to North Bennett Street, between Salem and Short (not Wiggin) Streets. He owned considerable property in this area and there are numerous deeds in his name at the Suffolk County Registry. Edward G. Porter in his Rambles in Old Boston refers to him as "a wealthy citizen who held many public offices."

Abel Munroe was married three times, first, I believe, to Mary Wadley at Keene, N.H. on 3 May 1820—he being of Boston and she of Keene. On 21 Oct. 1826 the Columbian Centinal reported the death on Oct. 5th of Mrs. Mary Munroe, wife of Abel Munroe and daughter of Jonathan E. Wadley of Albany, N. Y. (Jonathan E. Wadley had been proprietor of the Old Ralston Tavern in Keene from 1817 to 1823 according to S. G. Griffen's History of Keene.) Abel B.'s second wife was Deborah C.—(possibly Johnson?), who died "by accident" at 37 North Bennett Street on 22 April 1874, aged 66 years 8 months. Her death record says she was born in Boston and gives her mother's name as Lucy, born at Scituate (Mass. Deaths 267-82). Abel B.'s third marriage, on 20 Oct. 1874, was to Mrs. Madeline Augusta Sanchez of Boston, aged 35, daughter of William and Mary Ferrar (Mass. Marriages 264-172). She was a widow with one son and had married her first husband, Manual Sanchez, an Cuban cigar trader, on 24 Nov 1865 (ibid. 132-127).

Abel B.'s will, dated 4 Nov. 1876 and proved on 10 Nov. 1876 mentions his wife Madalena A. Munroe and her only child, Robert; several friends and colleagues including his brother, John Munroe; grandson Theodore B. Seavey of Cambridge; daughters Susan D. Little, wife of Omar Little of Chelsea, Sophia B. Polechio, wife of Joseph, and Sarah Jane Parker, wife of George F. Parker; sons Abel B. Munroe, Jr. and Martin A. Munroe. Executors named are his friend William P. Howard, his son Martin A. Munroe and his son-in-law George F. Parker. His inventory, which is a lengthy one, was taken on 8 Jan. 1877. He died at 33 North Bennett Street on 6 Nov. 1876, aged 75 years, 9 months, 13 days. His death record says he was born at Keene, N. H. and that his parents were Abel Munroe, born at Shrewsbury, N. H. (sic) and Bethenia, born at Derry, N. H. (sic) (Mass. Deaths 285-265). As grandson Theodore B. Seavey is the first named of Abel's heirs, his mother must have been born before Abel and Deborah's daughter Susan. She may possibly have been a daughter of Abel's first wife. There is a birth record for a Theodore Bradford Seavey on 13 Nov. 1866, whose parents are given as Theodore B. Seavey, a grocer born in Cambridge, and Mary, born in Philadelphia, Pa. (Mass. Births 187-129).

13-84A-14 JOHN MUNROE

He is probably the John Munroe listed as a laborer in Boston directories from 1839 to 1848, living on Tileston Street or place. He was still alive on 4 Nov. 1876 when he was mentioned in the will of his brother, Abel B. Munroe. He may be the John Munroe whose son, James L. Munroe, died at Chelsea on 1 Feb. 1856, aged 30 years, 3 months, and 25 days, for James' death record says he was in the provisions business and was the son of John and Mary Munroe (Mass. Deaths 104-99). Other children of John and Mary may have been; Francis A., b. circa 1821; Charlotte, b. circa 1829; and Rebecca, b. circa 1831. and d. 1847.

b. 17 Feb. 1803 at Keene, N. H.

13-84A-17 JOTHAM BRADLEY MUNROE

The Boston Directory of 1830 shows him as waterman, living on Battery Street. Later he lived on N. Bennett, Hanover & Tileston Streets until in 1843 he settled on Charter. He was engaged in the provisions business (after a few years as waterman) and in 1840 was a dealer in wood and coal at Bartlett's Wharf. In 1848-49 he became "alien commissioner" at 59 Long Wharf, a position he held until he died of "ship fever" on 11 Feb. 1853. His death record gives his age as 42 years and his birthplace as N. H., but does not name his parents Mass. Deaths (77-11).

On March 1853 administration of the estate of Jotham B. Munroe, "late Supt. of Alien Passengers," was granted to James Munroe of Boston, provisions dealer. The Boston Directory of 1853 shows Mrs. Jotham B. Munroe at 6 Charter Street and she continues to be listed in Directories (sometimes as Harriet T. Munroe, widow) at various addresses for over twenty years. From 1873 to 1875 she lived with her sister-in-law, James Munroe's widow, at 686 Shawmut Ave. In 1876 they were both at 20 Madison Street and Harriet died there on 15 Feb. 1881. Her death record gives her maiden name as Hadley, her age as 60 yrs, her birthplace as Cambridge and her parents as Israel and Sarah, both born Concord, Mass. (Mass. Deaths 330-47). Israel is shown in the list of voters of March 18th, 1822 in the Hist. of Cambridge 1630-1877 by Lucius R. Paige.

13-87-10/4 ROBERT EMMETT MONROE

Mr. Monroe enlisted in the 6th Michigan Cavalry in 1865. Served to the end of the war. A conscripted man could hire another to take his place—Robert E. Monroe was one of these. He was injured by a horse either falling on him or stepping on his foot. Then, while still on crutches, he broke his leg while stopping a team of runaway horses. He was permanently injured from this. He had to wear an especially made boot on that foot. He was farmer and on the School Board for many years. His wife Jane was a nurse in the Civil War. People came to her from all around to get her help—they called her "A Healer." She would pack a wound with a poultice of bread and hot milk. One day she got hold of some mouldy bread for the poultice on a very badly cut leg from a tractor accident—and it healed very quickly. People called it a miracle. (She was using what is now know as penicillin without knowing it before it was discovered.) After that she used mouldy bread all the time.

13-87-15/4 ROSALIA ADELINE (TOTMAN) DARLINGTON

Rosalia Adeline Totman Rhodes (Rhoades) with her daughter Frankie in 1874/75 went by covered wagon from the woods of Wisconsin to Prairie State of Nebraska. They had to cross the Mississippi River in a rowboat. They bought some land and planted it all to crops but the grasshoppers came in droves and destroyed all the crops. They become discouraged and returned to Wisconsin. In 1879 they heard of the new Iowa country where railroads were being built. So with the family and mother, they left for Iowa. Rosalia had gone back to her mother's for the birth of her second child. Again crossing the Mississippi with two small children, they went to Dubuque, Iowa, then to what was then known as Rock Valley. Edwin Rhodes built the first building there and it was then known as "Rhodes Corners." Rosalia was a fine seamstress and milliner. After her husband's death she took a homestead at Phillips. S.D., about two miles out into the country. She walked the two miles in the morning to her place of business and home again at night. She married in 1912.

Foote, Oliver's father, became incapacitated so Oliver went to live with his uncle C. J. Monroe in South Haven. In 1876 at age sixteen, Ollie, as he was called, went to work at his uncle's bank. Charles Jay Monroe, it is said, looked upon his nephew with all the affection of a father. Another uncle, L. S. Monroe, only nine years older than his nephew was also very fond of him. Oliver Foote was said to have been a splendid young man in every respect. Oliver did very well at the Bank of South Haven. His proud uncles were grooming their favorite for a top managerial post there when much to the sorrow of the entire community Oliver R. Foote was drowned in Lake Michigan in July 1882. Oliver was an expert swimmer and boat handler. When the small rowboat in which he had escorted Miss Kittie Underwood, a young lady visitor from Aurora, Illinois, capsized, Oliver went to the rescue of Kittie. When the waves carried the boat beyond their reach, their fate was sealed. Oliver was one of the most popular people in South Haven. His tragic death in the twenty-second year of his life was a bitter blow felt by the whole community. It had a profound effect on the Monroe family for many years.

13-8/11-82 CHARLES JAY MONROE

Hon. Charles Jay Monroe. If the people of Van Buren county were challenged to name an admirable product and high type of their citizenship they might with eminent propriety say: "Here is Hon. Charles Jay Monroe—show us his fellow! Behold the fruit and the representative of our civilization! 'of thorns men do not gather figs, nor of a bramble-bush gather the grapes!'." In every field of duty and his have been numerous, and in every relation of life, Mr. Monroe has exemplified sterling manhood, elevated citizenship, and all the other fine attributes of the genuine American gentleman.

Mr. Monroe is wholly a product of Van Buren county. He was born in the township of Lawrence on 20 Nov. 1839. He obtained his elementary education and first impressions of his relations to his fellow men in the country school near his home. He grew to manhood on his father's farm and did his part of the labor necessary for its cultivation, acquiring therein habits of useful industry, a practical knowledge of farming, and an interest in his native soil that has grown with his years and been intensified by his experience. The activities, aspirations and tendencies of the people of this locality have also been objects of the greatest interest to him at all times, for he has been one of them and fully imbued with their spirit and in sympathy with their desires.

Moreover, he taught their children in the schools, surveyed their land, served them wisely and faithfully in many important public capacities, and in time became, in large measure, their banker. And when, in the pride and power of his young manhood, he bowed beneath the flowery yoke of Eros, he united himself in marriage with one of their most estimable and accomplished young ladies, with whom he walked life's troubled way for over forty years.

Mr. Monroe is of Scottish ancestry on his father's side of the house. His grandfather, Isaac Monroe, was a physician who lived in Surry, New Hampshire. In 1816 he moved to Hamilton, Madison County, New York, where he passed the remainder of his days. He reared a family of eleven children, of whom his son Jay R. Monroe, the father of Charles, Jay, was the eighth in the order of birth, and came into being on April 11, 1806, in Surry, New Hampshire, where the family was then living.

About the time Charles Jay Monroe completed his seventeenth year the State Agricultural College was ready to receive students, and he was one of the first to be enrolled. He was present at its opening session, and remained under its beneficent instructions two years and a half. Then, on account of weakness in his eyes, he was obliged to give up his studies. His father, however, found employmet for him that he was able to attend to by placing him in charge of the land agency busienss he was conducting. In connection with this he taught school eight terms, and also did surveying in Van Buren and Allegan counties, serving as county surveyor for the former two terms, and being in frequent requisition for work in the same line in the latter, both while he was in office and afterward.

In January, 1867, in partnership with S. R. Boardman, Mr. Monroe opened a private bank, which was the first enterprise of the kind in South Haven. In 1871 the First National Bank of South Haven was organized, with Mr. Boardman as president and Mr. Monroe as cashier of the institution. After serving the bank as cashier some four years. Mr. Monroe was elected vice president and the next year president. He held this position until 1889, when the bank was reorganized as the First State Bank of South Haven. He was chosen president.

In 1879 Mr. Monroe pursued a course of instruction in the law department of the University of Michigan, not with any intention of practicing the profession, but to assist him in carrying on his multitudinous business affairs. As he stated the case, he had more business than knowledge, so he quit business for a time to obtain more knowledge. In 1880 (or 1881) he organized the West Michigan Savings Bank of Bangor, and he served as it president until he sold his interest in it He also organized the Kalamazoo Savings Bank, and was its president for some years. In addition, he was president of the Van Buren County Pioneers' Society, and one of the most active men connected with that organization.

In politics Mr. Monroe has given his allegiance steadfastly and continuously to the Republican party, and as its candidate was elected township supervisor for three terms, county surveyor for two terms, and school inspector for many years. In 1883 he was elected state senator for Van Buren and Allegan counties, and to this office he was twice re-elected, serving three consecutive terms in all. In the state senate he was chairman of the committee on banks and banking and a member of other important committees. He is the author of the present state banking law, which he had enacted while he was in the senate. In his last term he was unanimously elected president pro tempore of the senate, and during the term in the chair almost every day.

In a material way the interests of South Haven were of great consequence in his regard, and he did his part in promoting them. He built a number of brick business blocks and other houses, and did valuable work in many ways for the advancement and improvement of the city. He also gave the welfare and progress of the county his careful and helpful attention, looking after its interests in every field of effort, intellectual, moral, social and business affairs. His farm of three hundred and twenty acres is in the country, just outside of South Haven, and has been a source of considerable addition to the mercantile and commercial wealth of the county. Here he carried on for some years an extensive dairy busienss, which was a great convenience to the residents of the city and townships, and on the farm he raised large quantities of fine fruit, of various kinds, her peach orchard alone comprising thirty acres, with the other orchards in proportion. In June, 1911, he was elected president of the Michigan Bankers Assoc.

Mr. Monroe was first married in 1866, to Miss Hattie Morehouse, who was born in Albion, Mich., and was the daughter of Stephen and Lucy (Blackmar) Morehouse. She died June 22, 1903, and her death removed from South Haven its oldest inhabitant in length of continuous residence, she having lived in the locality from 1852 to the end of her life. By her marriage to Mr. Monroe she became the mother of five children: Stephen B. who was president of the Kalamazoo City Savings Bank; George C. found in this volume; Cora J., who died in 1906, and was the wife of William Shakespeare, Jr.; Lucy E. who died in 1905; and Charles O., who was the editor and manager of the Daily Tribuen of South Haven.

On September 16, 1905, Mr. Monroe contracted a second marriage, in which he was united with Mrs. Clara O. (Atkinson) Packard. Fraternal he was Freemason of Royal Arch degree, Van Buren county has never had a citizen whom its people esteemed more highly or more universally, or one who was more worthy of their confidence, and hearty regard and good will. He has the good fortune of being estimated at his real value during his life, which is a rare experience among men, and must have been due to merit made clear and services beyond question.

Andrew H. Monroe was the second son and third child of Judge J.R. Monroe. On reaching age twenty-one, he began to clear and cultivate tracts of farmland. After selling off some of his land to new settlers, he and his bride moved to South Haven, Mich. He continued his farming activity until 1918, when he broke his hip.

Mr. and Mrs. Monroe were married for fifty-six years. Their granddaughter, Mrs. Ira Hawkins, lives in Bronxville, New York, and is the mother of Monroe and Ira Hawkins III, and the late Charles F. Hawkins. Andrew's other granddaughter, Florence Hartman Burge, is survived by a son, Frederick Leon Burge, Jr.

13-8/11-84 ISAAC MONROE

Isaac Monroe was born at the old homestead in Lawrence, Michigan. He was the fourth child and third son of Judge J.R. Monroe and Fanny Rawson. Isaac was reared on his father's farm, received a good education in the home school and attended the Decatur schools for six months. He started out to do for himself by clearing and improving a tract of wild land, which his father had given him and which was located near South Haven. He soon became tired of that kind of work, however, and returned home. At that time he knew nothing about the care of horses, but having a brother who was a great lover of those animals, he became more interested in improving his own stock, and, in 1866, purchased the thoroughbred mare named "Kittie." He did not give much attention, however, to the breeeding of horses at that time, as he was engaged quite extensively in the lumber and charcoal business and in improving the farm. His favorite animal, "Kittie," bred sixteen full standard horses, and it was not until he became the owner of colts that make a record of 2:20, that our subject began to give his attention to stock-breeding. "Free Trade" and "Tariff" were put into the 2:30 list with less than six months' training. Mr. Monroe also owned a valuable mare named "Nellie." "Tariff" and "Free Trade" took the first premium as a foal team in Chicago, in 1890.

Upon the death of his father Judge J.R. Monroe in 1876, Isaac inherited the farm in Lawrence. He was a gentleman who could successfully carry on several different lines of business, being a very prominent farmer, stock-breeder, and lumberman in Van Buren County. He had the misfortune to lose three of his barns by fire in 1890. Both Isaac and his wife loved race horses and she drove the sulkies in many races.

In politics, Mr. Monroe was a firm Democrat, as was his father, and cast his first presidential vote in 1868. Although his township was strongly Republican, he was elected to the office of Supervisor on two occasions. He was a member of the Masonic order, and with his wife was identified with the Baptist Church in Lawrence.

Eunice E. Monroe, second daughter of the Judge J.R. and Fanny Monroe, married David F. Moore. David operated a hardware store. There were two children: Fannie, the eldest, married Channing Hale, son of George N. Hale who ran the famous clothing store which is one of the oldest business establishments in South Haven. It is still thriving in 1984, operated by George Hale's great-grandson.

David Moore died tragically at age 46. He was delivering a large heavy stove in his horsedrawn vehicle when the horses shied. The wagon overturned and the stove landed on David and crushed him to death.

13-8/11-87 LYMAN SYLVESTER MONROE

Lyman S. Monroe was born on his parents' farm in Lawrence, Michigan, on March 28, 1851. He was the seventh child and fourth son of Judge Jay R. Monroe and Fanny Rawson Monroe. After graduation from high school in Decatur, Mich., he studied at Parson's Business College in Kalamazoo in 1871. He was then employed by his uncle L.T. Rawson in his grain trading business in Decatur.

In April, 1873, Lyman took a job as bookkeeper in the First National Bank of South Haven, which had been founded two years earlier by his oldest brother, Charles J. Monroe, and S.R. Boardman. By 1875 Lyman was assistant cashier. In 1878 he succeeded his brother Charles Jay as cashier when C.J. Monroe stepped up to Vice President. Lyman held this position for twenty-one years. During this time he was the de facto operating head of the bank. Charles Jay Monroe entered the University of Michigan law school in 1879. Beginning in 1883 he served three terms in the Michigan State Senate at Lansing. In the meantime the First National Bank was reorganized as the First State Bank of South Haven in 1889.

In 1899 Lyman resigned as cashier of the bank to devote full time to his large real estate holdings. Like all of Judge Jay R. Monroe's children he inherited a large amount of agricultural land. By shrewd and prudent investment he added greatly to his holdings which included resort cottages, hotels, and town properties. His sixty-acre peach orchard was partially within the village limits of South Haven.

He maintained his connections with the bank, remaining on the board of directors.

In 1902 he organized a private unincorporated banking company, the South Haven Loan & Trust Co., which he operated with a partner, Eugene Allen Hartman. In 1906 he was elected president of the Bank of South Haven when C.J. Monroe was promoted from president to Chairman of the Board.

On May 10, 1876, at the age of 25, Lyman married Carrie J. Curtiss, four years his junior, who was the daughter of George E. Curtiss and Lydia Cornelia Thompkins Curtiss of Kalamazoo.

In 1878, two years after their wedding, Carrie and Lyman Monroe moved into a beautiful large house which they had built on the north side of South Haven. This house in the Victorian style of its time was described as one of the finest and most beautiful houses in South Haven. There their three children were born and their eldest daughter died. For many years they lived a happy affluent life. Devout Baptists, they were known as pillars of the local Baptist church where Lyman served for many years as treasurer. Not active in politics, Lyman, was, like his brother Charles, a registered Republican; his father was a life-long Democrat.

In 1907 a disastrous late spring frost destroyed the crops in southwestern Michigan, including the local peaches. Besides a total loss of his own peach crop and defaulted loans to his private banking company, Lyman Monroe, as a business leader in the community, co-signed many loans on the Bank of South Haven to fruitgrowers in the area. When these loans defaulted as well he made good at great personal cost. This natural calamity did not completely destroy L.S. Monroe's fortune but the bulk of it was lost. After several years of failing health he died on Feb. 7, 1910. He was deeply mourned by the people of South Haven who recognized his strong devotion to the community.

13-8/11-89 JAY RANDOLPH MONROE, JR.

b. 1 Jan. 1859, in the homestead, Lawrence, Mich.
d. 10 June 1888, South Haven, Mich.

The youngest child of Fanny and Judge Monroe, Jay Randolph was born, like all the rest, at the old homestead in Lawrence. A portrait of him made shortly before his premature death in 1888 shows a very good-looking young man. He came to South Haven when he was thirteen to further his studies. He graduated from the local agricultural college and from the University of Michigan, Class of 1880.

Following the path of two of his older brothers, he was employed by the First State Bank of South Haven. It is reported that he took to the banking business with the same great gusto and interest which motivated his brothers Charles Jay and Lyman. After only four years at the South Haven bank, he was offered, in 1884, a banking position in Kalamazoo. When the Kalamazoo Savings Bank was organized soon after he was named Cashier. This appointment to such a responsible position for a youth of barely twenty-five surely indicates his exceptional abilities.

He achieved both business and social success in his few brief years in Kalamazoo. In early June 1888, Jay, Jr., was suddenly seized with a rare intestinal malady which caused a complete stoppage and very severe pain. The promising young banker, who had been described as in the prime of robust manhood just a few days before his sudden illness, suffered greatly before his death. Naturally it was a bitter blow to the family. He was buried in the family plot in South Haven cemetery. In view of his sudden tragic death, the family erected an especially large gravestone inscribed with a cross and the words, "He sleepeth."

14-81-31 JESSE BEERS MUNROE

Jesse Beers Munroe's death records are incorrect and this family has had difficulty with D.A.R. acceptance of applications for membership, because of the following incident.

The wife of Jesse Beers Munroe, Ann Fosgate (Gowing) Munroe, had been up all night looking after her husband in his last illness, and was so worn out from a long attendance upon him, that when at his death in the later hours of the morning, she mistakenly gave the name of Jesse's father, as Jesse, instead of Andrew. The grand-daughters of Jesse Beers Munroe, children of Andrew Brigham Munroe, Clara Hosmer (Family no. 14-81-31-21), Sarah Winfred (Family no. 14-18-31-25) Mary Wiley (Family no. 14-81-31-24), and Anna Fosgate (Family no. 14-81-31-25) all knew about this event, and one of them related to Roy Garland Munroe (Family no. 14-81-31-43) long before members of the family were interested in D.A.R. memberships.

In a letter from Mary Wiley (Munroe) Talbot (Family no. 14-81-31-24), dated 1911, now in the possesion of Roy Garland Munroe (Family no. 14-81-31-43), she says, "Grandfather Munroe (Jesse Beers Munroe) was the son of Andrew Munroe and Mary Beers. Grandmother Munroe (Jesse Beers Munore's wife) carelessly gave grandfather Munroe's father's name, wrong on his death certificate."

The following is a letter from Sarah Winifred Munroe, written at Palmer Lake, Colorado, 14 Aug. 1944.

"To whom it may concern.

I Sarah Winifred Munroe, formerly of N. Reading, Mass., daughter of Andrew Brigham Munroe of that town, and granddaughter of Jesse Beers Munroe of the same town, heard my father make this statement.

"My mother, on my father's death certificate, made a mistake in regard to his father's name."

Jesse Beers Munore was the son of Andrew Munroe and Mary Beers.

I hope this may straighten out the genealogical error.

Signed: Sarah Winifred Munroe
Palmer Lake, Colo."

19-81-62 SAMUEL MONROE

Mr. Monroe resided, all, or nearly all, his life in Chenango County, N.Y. He is listed in the public directory of Chenango County for 1869-70 as a farmer and proprietor of a sawmill in the town of Norwich, N.Y.

Samuel Monroe's family was patriotic. The five brothers, Frederick David, George O., Israel Daniel, Samuel and Charles responded to their country's call to arms and enlisted in Company B, One Hundred and Fourteenth Regiment, N.Y. volunteers, recruited in Chenango County in 1862. Only Frederick David and Israel Daniel, returned. The former was captured and suffered the horrors of an enemy's military prison; the latter was twice wounded in action and twice promoted. George, Samuel and Charles died in the service. Of their sister Mary (Mrs. Sayles), in the announcement of her death that appeared in a newspaper published in Norwich, N.Y., it was said: "She had five brothers, who were Civil War Veterans. She was a devoted Christian and intensely patriotic. She invariably displayed the American Flag on every holiday — Mrs. Sayles will be remembered as an ardent worker in war charity and Red Cross during the World War."

19-11/9-45 GUILFORD DUDLEY MONROE

Mr. Monroe was a farmer and a Republican. He was friends with Chief BawBeese, Chief of the Pottawattamie Indians. "Linus, Guilford's father, pulled a thorne out of the chief's foot that was festering and causing pain." Mrs. Linus Monroe killed a snake 6 feet long. On seeing the snake the Chief, said, "Him bit, no get well." (Quotes from the Hillsdale Co. History) The family attended the Methodist church. Mrs. Monroe was a member of the Ladies Aid Society, So. Pittsford Church.

Guilford and Frances were known by both friends and relatives in the entire community as "Uncle Guilf" and "Aunt Fanny." Fanny was an accomplished seamstress and helped many of the women with sewing especially with making buttonholes, and when there was illness, she was the one they called. She was active in the South Pittsford "Ladies Aid Society" of the South Pittsford Church until her death when she was 85 years old. They were both buried in Maple Grove Cemetery, Hudson, Mich.

1/12-35-39 JAMES MONROE

James Monroe, the youngest of nine children (five sons and four daughters) of Jonas and Alice (Butler) Monroe, was born in Oakham, Worcester Co., Mass., January 25, 1818. His father, the son of Jonathan Monroe, was born in Plainfield, Mass., December 15, 1773. He was a farmer, as had been his father, and forefathers, and a member of the Congregational Church. In 1832 he removed, with his family, from Oakham to Hardwick, Mass., where he died, Jan. 12, 1849, aged 75. His mother, the daughter of John and Grace (Black) Butler, was born in Oakham, June 9, 1775, just nine days before the Battle of Bunker Hill (June 18, 1775). Her father was a man of large mind and means, and of commanding position in society; and, finding few, if any, advantages for a liberal education in the schools then existing, he hired a private tutor to teach his children in his own house, thus giving them the best facilities in his power. His children, in consequence, grew up with an educational training superior for the times. His daughter, Alice, became a woman with few equals in general intelligence and culture. She was possessed of a tenacious memory, and was an indefatigable reader, often spending the whole nights in reading. She died at the age of 82, September 8, 1857, highly esteemed by all who knew her. The minister officiating at her funeral, remarked, "She was the greatest reader in Hardwick; in fact, I don't know but what she was the greatest reader in the County"(of Worcester).

James Monroe possessed a profound veneration, and very tender love for his mother. Only about two weeks before her death, while on a visit to her from California, he, with filial devotion, under her direction, placed a suitable monument on his father's grave, and then, after affectionately watching by her to the last, saw her laid to rest beside his father, and with a sad heart hastened to return to his far Western home. His wife wrote back that he almost daily shed tears in kindly remebrance of his aged mother.

Poverty, in early life, imposed upon him a hard service beyond the lot of most, and was, in part, the cause of his entering College so late in life—his 24th year. With his brother next older, he, in '32, attended the High School in Hardwick, taught by Rev. John Goldsbury, and in '35 the Wesleyan Academy in Wilbraham; in '36 he, at the age of 18 taught in Greenfield, Mass.; in '37 he remained at home most of the time aiding his father on the farm. He conceived, and expressed to his parents, an earnest desire to obtain a collegiate education, in order to fit himself to be a thorough teacher. But the means were lacking. Discouragements environed him enough to have disheartened most; but his mother and an elder sister cheered him in his purpose, by offering each to work and obtain the funds. The sister accordingly, in pursuance of her pledge, entered a tailor shop and worked assiduously and with sisterly ardor to supply him the necessary aid to meet his expenses. So was he enabled to accomplish his aim.

He entered Yale Freshman, and graduated with the Class Aug. 21, 1845. In College he had the honor of being the oldest member of the class. His steady habits, his reliable, manly traits, with a character already mature, won for him the esteem of his classmates. His standing in the Class was somewhat above the average; he was a diligent student, receiving two prizes while in College; a good, but not what might be termed as brilliant scholar. He was, like his mother, an assiduous reader, and well posted in all points historical and literary. He seemed to take particular pains to keep his mind well-informed and free from bias, and was in no sense a hobbyist; yet few in the Class had more decided and clearly defined views. His opinions, especially on religious subjects, were formed, and he allowed them to be changed only on convictions fortified by what he regarded sufficient proofs. His leaning was towards Universalism, or rather restorationism, yet he was liberal and open to conviction, and never disposed to despise any for entertaining views differing from his own.

After graduating he, in the fall of '45 went South and taught as principal in schools in Milledgeville and Macon, Ga., and while there refunded to his faithful sister, the money for which she had toiled to aid him through College. But after two years, his health failing, he was compelled to return to his home in Hardwick, where he spent a year or more in recruiting.

In '49 he resumed teaching, but at Hyannis, Mass., and in '50 at Barnstable, and again at Hyannis in '51. He was principal in every school in which he taught.

In May, 1852, he went to California and settled at Rockville, near Suisun City, Solano Co., Cal., where he was engaged most of the time in teaching in the Academy; but occasionally ( ) also as the occasion offered. While there he attended the Methodist Church, and became in it a prominent leader and an efficient superintendent of the Sunday-school. It was his nature to engage heartily in what he undertook; and hence, whether in teaching or preaching, he was earnest, and others learned to appreciate his sermons.

He was married, in 1860, to Miss Hannah Dean, of Vacaville, Solano Co., Cal., originally from Ohio, and had one child, a daughter, Alice Amelia, named after his mother and sister (Mrs. Alice M. Johnson, of Gilbertville, Mass.) This daughter still survives, as also his wife, who has since been married to a Mr. Bryan, and still resided in Rockville, Cal.

Some time before his death he became a regular contributor and part proprietor of a paper published in Sacramento, Cal., called The Star of the Pacific, and his influence was fast becoming a power in the sphere in which it was felt. His death was in part the result of a singular accident. He was engaged in building himself a neat little cottage, and, being of a practical turn, was aiding in putting the lath preparatory to plastering. The outside of the house was about finished, the floors were laid, the partitions and chimney up, his wife and child in the meantime living in an old part adjoining. His health had been good up to this time—March 9, 1861—better, in fact, than it had previously been, owing, doubtless, to his having recently been actively engaged in outdoor exercise in getting in a crop and improving his homestead. It was about 5 o'clock P.M.: he was engaged in lathing a closet in the kitchen, and while reaching up and stooping repeatedly he suddenly stopped, went into an adjoining room—the parlor—and lay down. His assistant soon missed him, and found him lying in intense pain from the sudden enlargement of an inguinal hernia, which had formerly troubled him some, but of late, till then, had caused him little inconvenience.

A physician was at once sent for from Suisun City, a distance of six miles, and in the meantime Dr. Dean, Mr. Monroe's brother-in-law, happening to be visiting near, came in two hours after the accident, and did all in his power until Dr. Morton arrived from Suisun City, when a consultation was held, and they decided to attempt a replacement of the protrusion by manipulation, under the influence of chloroform, and, if this should prove unsuccessful, then resort must be had to the knife.

Mr. Monroe, being apprised of the decision, at once expressed his conviction that he should die; but for the sake of his wife and child he was willing to abide the decision, and the will of God as to the result. He gave a few directions about his affairs to a friend—Mr. Barbour—and added a brief request in regard to his funeral by the Odd Fellows, of whom he was a prominent member, and requested that the Rev. Thomas Starr King preach his funeral sermon, and called for his wife, and embraced and blessed her—then received the chloroform. For over an hour the doctors worked, until at length they thought they had succeeded in reducing the hernia; but on his recovery to consciousness his sufferings were intense—so much so, as to require the continuance of the chloroform, through the night and next day, to relieve him from pain. The next evening (Sunday, 10th) the doctors decided that resort to the knife was the only available chance of saving his life. Their decision being made known to him, he dictated and signed a will, expressed firm confidence in his faith and hope in Christ, and prayed for his wife and child and friends.

The operation was necessarily delayed till 4 o'clock Monday (11th), when it was successfully and skillfully performed, but it was found to be too late. An intense inflammation was developed, which continued, unabated, with intense suffering on his part, till the evening of the 19th of March, 1861, about 10 P.M., he passed away.

During the ten days of his agonizing sufferings, his anxiety seemed to centre in his wife and child, to whom he was tenderly attached; while throughout, his trust in Christ appeared never for a moment ot waver. He was frequently in prayer, and would often utter ejaculations and expressions such as "Is this death? Christ hath passed through the waters! All is well. A little while it was dark, but now all is clear. I am in my full senses. It has always been my wish through life to die like a Christian. I commend my soul to God and my body to the grave. I forgive my enemies; the pangs of death are ended. It is not hard to die; it is easy to die. The load of death is gone; the mystery is solved; Christ hath gone through the dark valley—all is well; all through the atonement of Christ . . . Love has redeemed me," were his last words.

His funeral was attended, on Wednesday, the 21st of March, 1861, by a large number of citizens and friends, the Odd Fellows, as he had previously requested, attended the body to the burial in the quiet churchyard at Rockville, where his remains still sleep.

He died in the prime of his manhood, aged 43, giving promise of an active future, had he lived to complete the plans which he had formed of earnest service and usefulness. As a teacher his qualifications were superior, whilst his enthusiasm was the life of his school and the delight of his pupils, many of whom still hold in cherished memory the name of James Monroe.

1/12-35-10/8 WALTER MARSHALL MONROE

In 1900, Walter Marshall Monroe has a nervous breakdown, which resulted in his commitment ot the Worcester, Mass., State Hospital, where he died. He made a very remarkable chain from one piece of wood, which was much admired. This chain is now in the possession of Drusilla (Monroe) Calitri, (family no. 1/12-35-10/6-13), daughter of Arthur Monroe, (family no. 1/12-35-10/6-1).

An interesting item: When Walter's father died, (Jonathan, family no. 1/12-35-10/), he left the house of Wire Hill Road to Walter Marshall Monroe, and directed him to give each of his sons and duaghters a certain sum of money except Charles Henry (family no. 1/12-35-10/3), whom he omitted for some reason. When the will was read, Walter Marshall left out the exception, and paid him as the rest, and Charles Henry Monroe never knew his father had intended to have him omitted.

1/12-41-10/8 ORVAN PAYSON MONROE

Mr. Monroe and his wife moved to Liberty Prarie, Ill. 1866, they remained there until 1881, they then moved to Whiting, Kansas. Mr. Monroe was engaged in the cattle business and was the owner of a large live-stock farm in Kansas. In his later years his son, Roy, was in business with him. The educational matters of the community were of great interest to him, and he served on the school board for a long time. When the local telephone company was organized, he was one of the organizers, and for a long time was its president. The Methodist Episcopal Church enjoyed his participation as an active member and he was a trustee for a long period. Orvan Payson Monroe was prominent in the local political activities and was an active and progressive leader, his contemporaries knew him to stand for fearless and energetic progression. Because of his active life he had a large circle of friends, and he was held in high esteem by them. His loss must have been greatly felt in his community.

In January 1965, the compiler of this genealogy was very fortunate to locate Mr. Monroe's daughter, Mrs. Julia Monroe Stevens. Mrs. Stevens assisted in furnishing much additional information about the families of her brothers and sisters.

11-86-17-1 GEORGE LORING MUNROE

The obituary in Oneida Dispatch read, "Oneida lost one of its best known and most respected citizens in the passing of George L. Munroe etc."... While nothing he did rated being carved in stone he was an outstanding success as a human being with a real zest for living.

He fathered six daughters, I was the first grandson, and thru out my childhood my dad was a traveling salesman, only home week-ends, so Grandpa and his "first boy" spent a lot of time together. What memories! The fashion today is to write of a neurotic childhood, mine was a fantastically happy one.

Summers down at Grandpa's farm at State Bridge where he and I would help "Shep" bring in the cows, hunt hen-hawks at the edge of the woods where I'd set on stump holding a pet crow, sticking my finger in its craw so it would Caw and lure the hawks for grandpa to knock down with his shotgun. Going after frogs at the big pond. Frog leg suppers, weine roasts. Wild rides in the buggy as grandpa broke the old frisky colt. I have a picture of old farmhouse with its veranda across the front and down both sides of house, with four generations of us on the veranda...Then there would be interurban trolley rides to Utica or Syracuse for ball games, vaudeville, minstrel shows and circuses or a cottage for a week or two at Sylvan Beach on Oneida Lake. Can still see Grandpa at the roller rink there, a few snorts under his vest with the rink all to himself as he put on a show, how he could skate! He also loved music and my Aunt Pearl at the piano, a colored man who worked for grandpa on the guitar and grandpa with the bones were quite a combo. He had a bag of golf clubs that were well used. Never missed a sulky race in the area. Would go to Boston, New York, Buffalo or where ever Sam Langford fought and have a ring-side seat and a bet riding on his "Boston Tar Baby."

In the fall, winter and spring when he lived in Oneida he went for long daily walks with his morning coat, striped trousers and cane, greeting barber, shine boy, shopkeeper, calling them by name and inquiring about their family. He knew everybody. Also owned quite an extensive library, was well read and vitally interested in world events. An ardent Bull Mooser who could get slightly profane if someone knocked his Teddy Roosevelt.

After he died grandma discovered that for years he had been a contributor to a colored church. He attended their church often. Said they were only people he knew who enjoyed their religion. Whether it was plumbing repairs, roofing, yardwork or what, grandpa would find a colored man to do the job. Guess you could call him the Integrationist ahead of his time...According to family legend, the clan was quite disturbed when he bought considerable U.S. Steel stock at 25c a share. He left grandma an estate up in the six figures, which was money in 1918. And I know he left the world a little better than he found it. Would that my grandsons when they reach retirement age recall me as fondly as I do my Grandpa Munroe. He was a Character.

11-86-17-2 CHARLES IVERS MUNROE

The following account about Charles Ivers Munroe is taken from the obituary notice of the Onieda Dispatch, a newspaper of Oneida, N.Y.

"Charles Ivers Munroe died at his home, 48 Broad Street, at 10 o'clock yesterday morning after an illness of nearly two years. He had been confined to the house for about 14 months, and all that medical skill, tender nursing and devoted care could do was constantly done to alleviate his suffering. He was in his 57th year.

Mr. Munroe was born in Cleveland, Oswego county, Aug. 19, 1851, the son of Loring and Jane Munroe. In 1861 the family moved to Dunbarton, Oneida county, where he attended school until he was 14, when he entered the Dunbarton glass foundry, becoming head cutter. Later he became a member of the firm of Munroe and Co., glass manufacturers, who were known all over the United States. About 25 years ago Mr. Munroe came to Oneida and followed th glass business and afterward for three of four years the real estate business until January 1, 1897, when he formed with Seth D. Baldwin the present well known and successful undertaking firm of Baldwin and Munroe.

Nov. 18, 1874, Mr. Munroe married Miss Barbara Miller of State Bridge, who with one son, Dr. C. Fred Munroe of this city, survives him. Another son, Loring Miller Munroe, died 11 years ago aged 22. He also leaves two brothers, George L. and Anthony B. Munroe of Oneida.

Mr. Munroe was universally respected as a man of the highest integrity of character and enjoyed the confidence and friendship of all with whom he came in contact. He was always courteous, warm hearted and a kind benefactor, and possessed a genial nature which endeared him to everyone. He enjoyed fishing and hunting and outdoor life generally, and possessed a strong sense of humor. Mr. Munroe was a director in the farmers and Merchants State Bank, a member of the first Presbyterian church, the Masons, Odd Fellows, Elks, Knights of Pythias, and the Oneida Chamber of Commerce, and was a trustee of Oneida Chapter No. 21, Order of the Eastern Star.

The funeral which will be private, will be held at the house at 3 o'clock on Sunday afternoon, Rev. George B. Swinnerton officiating. Burial will be made in Glenwood cemetery. Friends will kindly omit flowers."

11-86-17-5 ELLA MUNROE

The following is from an obituary in an Oneida newspaper.

"Death of Miss Ella Munroe—Miss Ella Munroe, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loring Munroe, of this village, died of typhoid fever, on Monday afternoon last, after nearly a month's illness, aged about 23 years. Miss Munroe was a highly accomplished young lady, and her death is severely felt by her parents, who some years since lost two daughters, after brief illness, of scarlet fever. Miss Munroe possessed rare musical talents, and, with her younger brother, who remains at home, was wont to entertain her parents and friends as but comparatively few have power to do. Her death will be deeply regretted by the society of young people in which she moved. The funeral takes place this (Thursday) afternoon at 2 o'clock, from the residence on Broad Street, Rev. S. Jessup officiating, and the remains buried in Glenwood Cemetery. Mr. and Mrs. Munroe have three sons living, two of whom reside at Dunbarton, Oneida County.

11-86-17-6 ANTHONY B. MUNROE

The following obituary is from an Oneida newspaper dated 22 June 1936:

"Anthony B. Munroe, 75, banker here for more than half a century and one of the most widely known residents in this section, died suddenly early Sunday morning in his home, 406 Broad Street. He suffered a heart attack Saturday morning.

Entering the banking field while still in his teens, Mr. Munroe was first associated with the Oneida Savings bank. After the death of his father, Loring Munroe, who founded the Farmers and Merchants bank, he became head of that institution until it went out of existence many years ago.

Becoming a stockholder in the Oneida Valley National bank, he was later named a trustee and then president. He held the latter position until he resigned about four years ago to become chairman of the board of directors of the bank, which office he held at his death.

Interested in Civic Welfare

Always interested in the civic welfare of the city, altho never aspiring to any political office, Mr. Munroe was instrumental in bringing about many public improvements and was prime mover for erection of the present nurses home of the Broad Street Hospital.

Active in the affairs of the first Presbyterian church, he had been a trustee for 25 years. Born March 13, 1861 at Bernhard's Bay, Oneida Lake, a son of Loring and Jane Munroe, he had resided in this city for about 59 years. For some time he conducted a clothing store in Madison Street, but the major part of his life was spent in banking circles.

Mr. Munroe was a member of Oneida Lodge 767 Elks, and a director of the Oneida Savings Bank as well as many other local organizations.

Married 50 Years

He married the former Louise Walrath of this city who survives. They celebrated their golden wedding anniversary about two years ago.

Others surviving are one daughter, Mrs. (Compilers note, she was really "Miss") Marjorie L. Munroe, at home, a son, Stewart Munroe, Sr., of Boston, Mass., and three grandsons, H. Coman, James S., and Stewart Munroe, Jr., all of Boston, and several nieces and nephews.

A private funeral will be conducted Tuesday afternoon at the home, with Rev. Dr. George Brown Swinnerton, pastor emeritus, and Rev. A. David Williams, pastor of First Presbyterian church officiating.

Friends may call from 7 to 9 o'clock Monday night at the home. Burial will be in Glenwood cemetery in charge of Munroe and Dunbar.

11-86-44-2 CHARLES ANDREWS MUNROE

From the Chicago Tribune of Dec. 29, 1957 the following has been taken.

"Chas. Munroe, long utilities official, dies. Began practicing law here in 1897.

Charles A. Munroe, 82, a retired Chicago and New York financier, and public utilities executive, died yesterday in his home in Nassau, Bahama Islands. Of late years he has divided his time between his estates in Nassau and the French Riviera. Funeral services will be in Middlebury, Vt. Saturday.

Mr. Munroe began his business career in Chicago in 1897 as a lawyer, after graduation from Middlebury College in his home town, and from Northwestern University law school.

He became identified with water power development along the Des Plaines river in 1902, and was an executive of the Illinois Valley Gas and Electric Company.

Peoples Gas Executive

From 1919 to 1924 he was vice president of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke Company, and also a vice president of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois. During this time he was president of the American Gas Association.

In 1924 Mr. Munroe acquired control of the Laclede Gas Light Company of St. Louis and was its chairman until 1927. He later became president of the W.A. Harriman Securities Corporation, Northern Utilities Company, North Central Gas Company, and Columbia Oil and Gasoline Company. He was director and executive committee member of Columbia Gas and Electric Company.

Rail and Bank Director

He has also been a director of the Illinois Central Railroad, Yazoo and Mississippi Railroad, the Chicago, St. Louis, and New Orleans Railroad Company, American National Bank in Winter Haven, Florida, and Broadway National Bank in Tampa, Florida.

He was a trustee of Middlebury College and formerly was a trustee of the Chicago Historical Society. He gave Buildings to Middlebury and also to the Choate School, Wallingford, Conn.

His first wife Rhea Logan died in 1933. Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Ann Ditchburn Munroe; two daughters by his first marriage, Mrs. Lawrence D. Elliman and Mrs. Herbert Lloyd, and six grandchildren.

11-10/12-11-2 DENNIS BUCKMAN WINN

The following was written of Mr. Dennis B. Winn four days after he died. "Dennis Buckman came to Winchester with his father when four years old. His father for some years ran an express team to Boston, here he continued in the same business having Edmund Sanderson as a partner. In a few years he took over the whole business and continued until he bought the stable business where with Dennis he remained until 1888 when he retired and Daniel Kelly entered the firm. For years this stable has done a profitable and popular trade with an extensive class of patrons. Around the stable order and promptness have been manifest. The credit of this firm is No. 1, Dennis pleasant and when in health at the post of duty. His mother a smart and genial lady of business ability had schooled him in economy and industry to earn and save."

He and his wife moved about a great deal hence they resided in some of the various places now mentioned: Bombay and Fort Covington, N.Y.; Summitt, Wisc.; for a while in Illinois; and the following Wisc. towns: Beaver Dam, Berlin, Washburn, Bayfield and various others. Mr. Willey was a Methodist and his wife a Congregationalist.

NELSON P. WILLEY PASSED AWAY LAST SATURDAY

March 25, 1904

Nelson P. Willey, one of Washburn's best known citizens, died at the home of his son C.L. Willey.....

Nelson P. Willey was born at Ogdensburg, N.Y. on Sept. 5, 1819. He resided with his parents at the place of his birth until the year 1835 when he with his father and two brothers drove from Ogdensburg to Chicago with two teams and two wagons.

The life of the old gentleman reads like a romance from this on. Chicago was at the time only a small hamlet on the shore of Lake Michigan. Here Mr. Willey took up a homestead on a hay marsh on which the principal business section of the city of Chicago now stands (The Loop as now known). His residence at this point extends over a period of two years. During this time he drove stage coach and carried the mail between Chicago and Galena, Illinois.

In 1837 he moved to Summit, near the site of the present city of Milwaukee after having sold his Chicago homestead of 40 acres for $40.00. He was engaged in teaming work in his new location. Mr. Willey's father died while they were residents of this place. After a residence of several years at this place Mr. Willey moved to Beaver Dam where he kept the famous "BUCK HORN TAVERN" for some time.....After leaving Beaver Dam his place of residence changed quite frequently until 1883 he went to Bayfield where he built the ISLAND VIEW HOTEL and operated it for seven years when he went to live with his son C.L. Willey.....

Mr. Willey had the distinction of living to a ripe old age and having seen the progress and development of the U.S. through out the most important and critical stages of tis growth. At the time of his birth, the great West had not been discovered in the real sense of the word. At the time of his death the West is the granary of the world and the greatest portion of the U.S. The city in which he held a homestead of forty acres of marsh land is now a place of millions and the second in the country. Not to many men is it given to see such important and far reaching changes in his lifetime....

Reform Club, Technology Club and was a past president of the Lexington Historical Society.

In 1907, he was appointed a member of the Mass. Commission for the blind and served as chairman. He was a trustee of the George O. Smith Fund and served two terms on the school committee.]

In 1900, James Phinney Munroe wrote an eighty page book called, A Sketch of the Munro Clan, also of William Munro who, deported from Scotland, settled in Lexington, Mass., and of some of his Posterity. He also assisted Alexander MacKenzie in Mr. MacKenzie's book, History of the Munros of Fowlis: his assistance to Mr. MacKenzie's book was supplying him with information about the Lexington, Mass., Munroes. MacKenzie's book deals in the most part with the Munros of Scotland.

In the preface of James Phinney Munroe's Sketch of the Munro Clan, he says, "Learning that this (MacKenzie's History of the Munros of Fowlis) History of the Munros was in preparation, I entered into correspondence with Mr. MacKenzie, and was so far fortunate as to induce him to include in his genealogy as many of the American branches of the Munro Clan as the limited time before publication would permit us to follow up." Mr. MacKenzie's, History of the Monros of Fowlis was published in 1898 at Inverness, Scotland.

13-41-22-1 GEORGE THOMAS MONRO

When only nine years of age his mother placed him under the care of Captain Norris of Bristol, R.I. (probably of kin) to go to sea as a cabin boy for discipline. At age 19 he was captain of his own ship. On marrying his wife she persuaded him to give up the sea. He studied medicine of the Hahneman method and supposedly began practice but a directory of Brooklyn, N.Y. 1849-1850 lists him as a "Painter." By 1855 he had moved to Greenport, L.I. where he did practice medicine successfully, but also taught navigation although in a census report of 1860 he listed himself as a "Mariner." He also used the spelling MONRO but in later years may have added th "e." When his wife was burned to death from the explosion of a lamp he soon moved to Penna., to join his kin but took the four younger children, George, Hezakiah Usher, Emily E. and Clara M., to Bristol, R.I. The youngest, Joseph H. was adopted by people named Jackson in Greenport. He later married in Penna.

13-41-28-1 GEORGE PETER MONRO

George Peter Monro, farmer and postmaster was born in what is now North Towanda Township, Bradford County, son of Peter and Lavinia (Pettibone) Monro, natives of Bristol, R.I. and Bennington, Vermont. George's paternal grandfather, Thomas Monro (13-41-2), settled in Columbia Township, Penna., in 1823, and partially cleared the farm now owned by the heirs of Henry Card (13-41-21), and died there. Thomas Monro's wife (13-41-2) was Sybil Borden, by whom he had 12 children, all of whom grew to maturity.

George Peter Monro was reared in Columbia Township; he received an elementary school education. He was with his father in the store they operated in Sylvania for twenty-seven years, and during this same period he was Postmaster, having been appointed 8 May 1858. After resigning as postmaster on 1 Oct. 1885, he engaged in farming.

Mr. Monro was a member of the Unversalist Church, a charter member of Sylvania Lodge, No. 926 I.O.O.F. In politics he was a Republican, and in 1860 was appointed assessor of the U.S. Internal Revenue, a position he held for two years.

13-84A-11-1 FRANCIS JAMES MUNROE

The Boston Directory of 1848-9 shows him as an actor living at 10 Tileston Street. In 1851 he is listed as a comedian, but later directories show that he studied law and became a councilor and lawyer. In the early 1860's he appears to have been in partnership with a man named Hahn. He had several business addresses in Boston and East Boston, with residence on a number of East Boston streets, including Everett, Monmouth, Lexington, Chelsea, and Meridan. He died 11 June 1893 while living on Webster Street, aged 68 years, 3 months, and 6 days (Mass. Deaths 438-244). He had a wife named Lucy who was born in Maine, and the following children listed below.

13-84A-11-2 WILLIAM HENRY MUNROE

He grew up in the North End and attended the Eliot School there. Later he went to Andover Academy and Trinity College in Hartford, Conn. and completed his study for the ministry at the Alexandria, Va. Theological Seminary. He was ordained in 1856 by Bishop Eastburn and his first church was Trinity in Melrose, Mass., where he stayed for six years. The next four years he spent at St. Stephen's Church in Beverly, N. H. and then he went to Immanuel Church in the Kensington District of Philadelphia, Pa. for eight and a half years, where his work was among the poor. Following this service he spent three years at St. Matthias Church in Philadelphia. He then received a call from St. John's Church in East Boston and was there until 1 Dec. 1881 when he became rector of Christ Church(the Old North Church). There he remained for the rest of his life. He was an active Mason and was Captain of the Grand Lodge at the time of his death. The Boston Directory of 1880 is the earliest to include him and lists him as "Rev., " living at 171 Brooks Street, East Boston. He later lived on White and Meridian Streets before moving to Chelsea in 1885 where his house was no. 132 Bellingham Street. He died there in 1892 (Mass. Deaths 429-504). Mr. Monroe was buried in Garden Cemetery, Chelsea, Mass. His obituary in the Boston Transcript of 15 Sept. 1892 says that he left "a widow and two adult children." They probably were: Ernest V. Munore, listed in Chelsea Directories as a lawyer, and William W. Munore, shown in 1888 Chelsea Directory as having removed to Bennington, Vt.

13-87-10/4-4 CHARLES FRANCIS MONROE

A book could be written about this man. He was a talented stone mason, wood carver and at age 81 was making pony harnesses. He could play the piano (no formal training) and sing. He would make up a song for an occasion on the spot. He wrote a column for the Lansing, Mich., newspaper for many years. He always headed a parade in Lansing on his beautiful horse. When he became old and couldn't get on it he was hoisted on the horse with a block and tackle. He was one of a kind. He had a pet pig (575 lbs.) that he would lead to town on clothesline leash. He had a pet squirrel that always looked for peanuts in his pockets; a quail that perched on his shoulder; a rooster that followed him to put the dogs and cats out; and a toad that hopped out and crocked a "good morning." Both Alice and Charles are buried in Webberville Cemetery.

13-87-13/1-4 HENRY WIRT MONROE

The family moved from Michigan to Wisconsin when he was four years old. He was known as a kind and cheerful man. He saw the best in life for himself in the life of his friends. He said,"I have made some mistakes but I always meant to be helpful." His children knew him as one whose counsel they could always seek. He enjoyed in return having the confidence of his children. He wrote many lovely poems, but it appears that he was anticipating his death for he copied the following and headed it "An Epitaph."

"Under our brilliant starlit sky
Dig my grave; there let me lie
Glad did I live and gladly die;
And I lay me down with a will."

13-8/11-82-1 STEPHEN BLACKMAR MONROE

Stephen Blackmar Monroe was born on his parents' farm in South Haven on June 1, 1869. He was named for his maternal grandparents, Stephen Morehouse and Lucy Blackmar Morehouse. He attended local schools. In 1891 he graduated from the University of Michigan Law School which his father attended in 1879. S. B., after graduation, began a legal practice specializing in probate, financial, and real estate matters.

In 1901 he moved to Kalamazoo to enter the employ of the Kalamazoo Savings Bank which Charles J. Monroe had founded in 1884. He became a director of the bank two years later. Stephen B. Monroe spent the rest of his life in Kalamazoo. He played a large role in the industrial and commercial life of that city. It was stated at the time of his death that the important business and manufacturing concerns of which he had been interested added up to more than a score.

In due course, S.B. succeeded to the presidency of the Kalamazoo Savings Bank. Serving with him in the institution was Charles A. Peck. Charles Peck and his brother Horace were older men who recognized in S. B. Monroe a keen business acumen. They were engaged in the financing of fledgling industries and were happy to find a younger man to help them carry on. Another young man who became associated with the Peck brothers at about the same time was Alfred B. Connable from the village of Petosky in northern Michigan. A.B. Connable married Horace Peck's daughter.

S.B. Monroe and A.B. Connable began an association which lasted until S.B. died in March 1946. Together, and in association with C.A. Peck, Ralph Emery, and some others, they provided the original capital for the Monroe Calculating Machine Co. which S. B.'s younger cousin Jay Randolph organized in 1912. S.B. Monroe and A.B. Connable served on the board of that company for many years until they retired. Their sons, two in the case of S. B. and three in the case of A. B., all played important roles in the Monroe Calculating Machine Co. in later years.

13-8/11-82-2 GEORGE C. MONROE

George C. Monroe.—Industrial an business life in this country is full of mutations. The ground beneath our feet perpetually rocks and heaves, throwing up new eminences and opening chasms where heights have lately been. New opportunities are ever coming to the wary and making new demands upon the capable. The young man who enters upon the stage of action at twenty as a farmer, trader, doctor, or something else, will not unlikely be found pursuing a very different avocation at forty, so numerous and various are the currents of activity in this electric age and in a land of such multitudinous interests as ours possesses and demands attention.

George C. Monroe, of South Haven, where he is one of the leading business men of the community, furnishes in his career a striking illustration of these facts. He began independent exertions for his own advancement as a surveyor of land and a fruit grower. Yet for many years he has been almost exclusively engaged in banking and other occupations kindred to or allied with this interesting but exacting pursuit. But, although he has changed his business, he has not changed the seat of his operations. His energies are employed now where they first found service, and have always been devoted to the place of his birth and its vicinity.

Mr. Monroe's life began in South Haven, Michigan, on February 20, 1871, and in that city the whole of it to the present time (1911) has been passed, except the period spent by him at college and the years 1896 to 1899 when he lived in Covert. He is a son of Hon. Charles Jay and Hattie (Morehouse) Monroe, a sketch of whose lives will be found in this work. He attended the public schools in his native city to obtain the basis of his education, and the State Agricultural College to get instruction in the more advanced staged of his mental training.

After leaving college he engaged in surveying land and raising fruit for the markets seven or eight years. But his mental bias was toward business and its leaning was decidedly in the direction of banking. And what nature had implanted in him was bound to come out, whatever might be his zeal and industry in other directions. On Dec. 1, 1899, he accepted the postion of cashier of the First State Bank of South Haven, having had almost a full year's experience in the banking business as the president of the Bank of Covert, which he helped to organize under the auspices of C. H. Monroe Sons & Company on January 12 of the same year.

Mr. Monroe is a son of one of the founders of the Kalamazoo Savings Bank and is now a large stockholder in that institution. In addition he is a secretary of the Hotel Columbus Association and the South Haven Hospital Association, of the latter of which he was one of the organizers. In 1906 he gave up the cashiership of the First State Bank, being promoted to the position of vice president in its directorate. His interest in the institution has never waned, however, and his influence has been at all times, from the beginning of his connection with it, potential in helping to give it standing in the community and increase the volume of its business and its popularity among the people.

On February 14, 1893, he was united in marriage with Miss Helen Smith, a native of Emden, Germany. Three children have been born of this union, George S., Helen L., and Randolph B., all of whom are still members of the parental household and elements in its attractiveness to the numerous friends and associates of the family. These make its home a frequent resort, and always find it a center of mental and social culture and refined and gracious hospitality.

Mr. Monroe is an enthusiastic Freemason, and has ascended all the rounds of the mystic ladder in the York rite and to the thirty-second degree in the Scottish rite. He holds memberships in Star of the Lake Lodge, No. 155; Royal Arch Chapter, No. 58; and South Haven Council, Royal and Select Masters, No. 45, having presided over all three bodies in South Haven; Malta Commandery No. 44, Knights Templars, at Benton Harbor; Saladin Temple, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, at Grand Rapids; and DeWitt Clinton Consistory, Scottish Rite Mason, at Grand Rapids. He is also a member of the Grand Council of Royal and Select Masters of the state, and in addition belongs to Hamilton Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, and the Order of the Knights of Pythias and several insurance orders.

In the affairs of his city and county he has a deep and abiding interest and manifests it by actively supporting all commendable undertakings for their improvement and the betterment of their residents. In political faith and allegiance he is pronounced Republican, not with a view to securing public office, which he never desires, but because he believes in the principles of that party and thinks their prevalence in the government, local, state and national, would be beneficial. But he does not allow partisan considerations to outweigh his sense of duty to his community in local affairs, and always gives that sway without regard to personal or partisan claims of any kind.

Their first child was George Smith, 3 years older than Helen. George entered the United States Army in 1917 and was killed in France. He is buried in the Military Cemetery at Oise-Aisne, France. Since he was the first South Haven boy to be killed in the Great War, the American Legion Post in South Haven is named for him.

13-8/11-85-2 ARTHUR D. MOORE

Arthur D. Moore was six years old when David F. Moore, his father, was killed in 1886 in a tragic accident involving a horse-drawn vehicle. Arthur grew up on the shore of Lake Michigan where his parents had built a beautiful large house in the Victorian style next door to his mother's brother, Lyman S. Monroe. Lyman's second daughter Louise was only one year younger than Arthur. Louise's brother, Jay Randolph, was two and one-half years younger. These three neighboring first cousins grew up nearly like siblings. They remained life-long friends.

Arthur attended the local schools in South Haven. He played football at South Haven high school. In the 1890's it was a game far rougher than today's version. Arthur took law at the University of Michigan. His mother Eunice, however, wanted him to run the hardware business founded by his father. Jay Monroe, seeing his very well liked and capable cousin as an ideal calculating machine salesman, persuaded Arthur to briefly try his hand at selling.

Like so many of his Monroe relatives, Arthur Moore made his career in banking. He became a director of the First State Bank in 1918. In 1922 he was made assistant cashier. He became executive vice-president in January, 1933. He was elected president in 1937 and served until the First State Bank was merged with the Bank of South Haven in 1943. He was vice president and director of the latter bank until his death in 1950.

During World War II Arthur was chairman of the South Haven draft board. He was a very patriotic person but he had deep compassion for people. He took his job very seriously. When some of "his boys" became casualties the effect on him was extremely severe, affecting his health. When he died on June 9, 1950 the whole city of South Haven closed down in mourning for its most beloved son. Arthur Moore was not forgotten. More than thirty years after his death, Wayne Works who had married Arthur's granddaughter, Jane Skeen, won an election to the South Haven City Council. Mr. Works reported that he won the senior citizen vote overwhelmingly on the Arthur Moore connection.

13-8/11-87-2 MARY LOUISE (MONROE) BREEDING

Mary Louise Monroe grew up on South Haven and attended local schools. Following graduation, she went to Stetson University in Florida where she studied music.

In 1905 she married William Penn Breeding, son of Elbert Tibbles and Anna Matilda (Jackson) Breeding. William P. spent his early years in Philadelphia, Penn., where his grandfather and namesake, William P. Breeding, owned a shipbuilding business.

Following their marriage, the youg couple remained in South Haven where William P. managed the Marsland Hotel and served as President of the South Haven Loan and Trust Company.

William P. Breeding, one of the founders of the Monroe Calculating Machine Company, moved to New Jersey in 1918 with his wife and two young daughters. He was an officer of the Company until his retirement in 1929 and served continuously on the Board of Directors until his death.

13-8/11-87-3 JAY RANDOLPH MONROE

Jay Randolph was the third child and only son of Lyman S. Monroe and his wife Carrie Jane Curtiss. He was named for his grandfather Judge Jay R. Monroe, the founder of the town of South Haven, Mich., and for his uncle Jay R. Monroe, Jr., a banker in Kalamazoo, who died at an early age. Jay grew up on the shores of Lake Michigan where he first took an interest in sailing.

He attended Stetson University in Florida and Kalamazoo College in Michigan. In 1906 he graduated from the University of Michigan law school and was admitted to the Michigan bar. He did not, however, pursue a legal career nor enter the family banking business but went to work for the Western Electric Co. in Chicago. Assigned to the accounting department, he first became acquainted with the then rather primitive adding and calculating machines which were at that time just coming on the market. Interested in things mechanical, he was fascinated by these machines and began to develop ideas for improvements. In 1907 a disastrous spring frost ruined the fruit corp in southwestern Michigan, causing Jay's father, Lyman Monroe, to suffer grave financial losses which nearly wiped out his fortune. Jay who had been brought up in relative affluence was on his own. That same year the Western Electric Co. transferred him to Pittsburgh . There he met Bette Belle Baughman, daughter of Jerome Baughman and Florence Barger Baughman, who had moved from Youngstown, Ohio, a few years earlier.

On August 22, 1908, Bette and Jay were married. Western Electric again transferred Jay in 1910; this time to New York City. The young couple settle in East Orange, N. J. In East Orange Jay Monroe met Frank Stephen Baldwin who had invented a remarkable calculator in 1874. Baldwin had made vigorous efforts to commercialize his invention but had been unsuccessful. It was said that the machine was ahead of its time. When Jay saw Baldwin's latest model of 1908 he realized that this machine with improvements would have a great potential.

Frank Baldwin was seventy-three years old when the two met in 1911. He was delighted that Jay, aged twenty-eight, recognized the worth of his machine. Jay left Western Electric and worked with Baldwin to perfect the machine which would perform the four rules of arithmetic in a manner so straightforward and simple that it could be operated by the average person without the necessity of special training.

Frank Baldwin and Jay Monroe became close friends. Baldwin gladly sold his patents to Jay who assigned them to the newly organized Monroe Calculating Machine Co. which was incorporated in April, 1912. Jay's first cousin, Stephen B. Monroe, and a group of his associates in Kalamazoo, Mich., provided the original capital.

The company was begun on a very small scale. It was an enormous effort to organize production and to set up a sales force. The first years were difficult and discouraging. By 1915 the corner was turned. The famous K model introduced in 1921 became a world-wide success. This was followed by a full line of automatic calculating machines which became the leaders in the industry.

Jay R. Monroe pioneered many innovations in enlightened industrial relations. He was greatly respected and loved by his employees who numbered nearly 3,000 at the time of his death. He has been characterized as an industrialist with a heart. His motto: "The pursuit of a definite ideal" resulted in the Monroe spirit which is still very much alive today in the company he founded. A devoted husband and father, Jay Monroe had more than this share of grief. His first-born son, Jay Randolph, Jr. (IV), died at age three in 1914. Nine years later in 1923 his first wife Bette died at age 34. His second wife Edith House Montgomery died in 1931.

After his company was well established, he was advised for health reasons to seek outdoor exercise. Golf became his great interest. He played well. he became a close personal friend of Bobby Jones, Clif Roberts and other well-known figures in the golfing world. He was one of the founders of the Augusta National Golf Club and a member of several golf clubs, including Baltusrol, Canoe Brook, Essex County, the Knoll and Pine Valley in New Jersey, and many others. He had a reputation which lived on for decades after his sudden death in 1937 as the nicest guy to caddy for in New Jersey.

In 1932 Jay married Ethlyn Wheeler of Proctorsville, Vt. Ethlyn played the difficult role of stepmother very well. The happy home life was brought to an abrupt end in April, 1937, when Jay died of a massive cerebral hemorrhage.

His untimely death at age 54 was a bitter blow not only to his family but to the company he founded as well. There was a struggle for power ensued which lasted for ten years

Jay R. Monroe was a man of sterling character, upright and honest in all his dealings. These qualitites were happily recognized in his lifetime. He was a natural leader who was looked up to by all who knew him. In 1958 his widow and son established a modest charitable foundation in his memory so that his generous spirit could be perpetuated.

U. S. S. Wyoming at Yokahoma
Japan. July 23, 1863.

Dear Jim,

I have received your letters up to April and I did not answer them because I knew that I would not be on the station long enough for me to get an answer, as we have been under orders for home nearly a month. But the way things look now I think we will have to stay in Japan for 6 months longer. You will have received the news of our ( ) here before you do this letter most likely and of course will be anxious to hear from me. About a month ago a small American steamer called the Pembrook left this place for Shanghai via the Inland Sea and Nagasaki after arriving in the sea and going as far as Shimonoseki Straits she anchored one night about ten o'clock. After she let go a Japanese steamer and brig came out from Shimonoseki Straits and anchored along side of her and the other just astern. She lay til 1 ( ) when both of the vessels opened fire on her. She then left as soon as she could and went outside to our consul and he sent word here to our minister, and the second after we had got our coal in and started for the place. We arrived there on the 16th inst. As soon as we entered the straits the Japs fired three signal guns to let the Batteries and ships know of our arrival. They had been expecting us from the looks of things. We went in without our flag hoisted and when we got abrest of the first battery (a masked one) they fired three shots at us, carrying away some of our main rigging and killing one marine. As soon as the shots were fired we hoisted our colors and opened fire ( ) return with the 11' shell and broadside guns on the Stbd side. We kept going all the while for three vessels. The steamer brig and a bark, which lay off the town and pass the batteries. The vessels had Japanese colors flying all the time. In passing the bark she poured a broadside in to us (she being on the stbd hand) and we gave a her as good as she sent in larger pieces. In passing the brig exchanged broadsides with her and gave the steamer the 2 port 32 Pounders. We passed along and turned ship around, giving them the shot and shell all the time. The Japanese steamer had in the meantime slipped ( ). We got two 11' shell into her one went through her boilers and blew her up and the other into her counter, she stopped and drifted ashore, the shell that struck her boilers went right through her and into the town knocking 2 or three houses down. We then steamed by the brig and bark firing in to them with our port battery and sending a few shell into the shore batteries. We were struck several times by the ships and batteries going but when we came out we were not struck anywhere to hurt us. All their shots going over us. Two of the batteries did not fire when we came out, they were stopped while we went in. There were 6 batteries all together firing at us beside the signal one. We left the brig sinking she had settled about two feet when we came back. Since I commenced this the French ship came in He would not get into the straits but lag outside and landed men and took one battery the small French vessel lost her ( ) mast.

The French Admiral confirms on acct and saw the topmasts of the brig over water, the steamer had been got off and towed out of sight. I will send you a paper with a map and a very good acct of the fight. I am all right and enjoying good health. The English will have the next turn and they will use them up ( ) only wish we had about 5 ships the same size of us here we could show them all the way. Give my love to all and expect to be home in about a year.

Your affectly.

14-1/10-22-3 CHARLES EDWARD MUNROE

Munroe, Charles Edward, Chemist, was born at Cambridge, Mass., 24 May 1849, s. of Enoch and Emeline Elizabeth (Russell) Munroe. William Munroe, his first paternal American Ancestor, came from Inverness, Scotland, in 1652 and settled at what later became Lexington, Mass., the descent from him and his wife Martha George being through George and Sarah Harrington: William and Rebecca Locke: William (who fought in the battle of Lexington in the Revolutionary War) and Abigail Harrington, and William (A soldier in the War of 1812) and Lucy Frost, who were grandparents of Charles E. Munore. His father was a master wheelwright. Munroe was graduated B.S. summa cum laude at Harvard University, in 1871 and received a Ph.D. degree from Columbia (later George Washington) University, in 1894. During 1871-74 he was assistant in chemistry at Harvard, where he established the first course in chemical technology (1872) and the first summer school in chemistry (1873). He was professor of chemistry at the U.S . Naval Academy during 1874-86 and chemist of the U.S. Naval War College and Torpedo Station at Newport, R. I., during 1886-92. In 1892 Munroe began a service of a quarter of a century with George Washington University as professor of chemistry. During 1892-98 he was also Dean of the Corcoran Scientific School from 1893 to 1917 he was Dean of the faculty of graduate studies which he established. In 1918 he retired with the title of Professor and Dean Emeritus. From 1906 to 1919 he was consulting chemist on explosive effects and from then until 1933 was chief explosives chiemist of the U.S. Bureau of Mines. He was a member of the U.S. Naval Academy in 1898; organizer and director of a volunteer torpoedo corps on Analostan Island in the Potomac River and consulting expert to the engineering board on defense of Washington in 1898; expert special agent in charge of industries of the U. S. for the Census 1900, 1905 and 1910; consulting expert for the U.S. Geological Survey, Bureau of Mines and the Civil Service Commision; Chairman of the Advisory Committee of the American Railway Association for the drafting of regulations covering the transportation of explosives in 1905; superintendent of the denatured alcohol exhibit and member of the jury on chemicals at the Jamestown (Va.) exposition in 1907; chairman of the committee on explosives investigations of the National Research Council from 1918-1928, and consulting specialist on explosives for U.S. Forest Service from 1934 until his death.,

In 1889 Munroe started experiments with smokeless power used by the U.S. Navy for large guns. While at Newport station he also discovered the "Munroe effect," by which letters sunk in a gun-cotton cube are indented on a steel plate when the cube is detonated against it, or if the letters are raised above the surface of the cube and placed in contrast with the steel plate at detonation they are reproduced in the plate in relief. The "Munroe effect" threw light on the nature of the detonation wave. In addition to his invention of indurite, Munroe originated the porous cone for filtration, the platinum filter, or the Munroe crucible, used in atomic weight determination and other precise works, and a method for the preparation of catalysts. Recognized as a leading authority on explosives, he was the author of more than 100 books and papers in the field. He was an Honorary Fellow of the American Institute of Chemists, a Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; Chemical Society of London, American Academy of Arts and Sciences and Society of Chemical Industry of Great Britain, charter member of the American Chemical Society (president 1898-99), and a member of the American Society for Testing Materials American Philosophical Society, American Academy of Arts and Sciences, Washington Chemical Society (president, 1895-96) and Washington Academy of Sciences. Munroe was also a member of the Cosmos (president, 1913), Chevy Chase and Harvard Clubs of Washington, D.C., the University, Metropolitan and National Arts clubs of New York City, Reading Room of Newport, R. I., the Boston City and Papyrus Clubs of Boston, Sons of the American Revolution and Chi Sigma. He was made a commandant of the order of Mejidieh by the Sultan of Turkey in 1901 and an officer of the Order of Leopold of Belgium in 1920. The honorary degree of L.L.D. was conferred on him by George Washington University in 1912. In 1900

he was appointed by the Swedish Academy of Sciences to nominate a candidate for the Nobel prize in chemistry. In religion Munroe was a Unitarian and in politics he was a Republican. His love for his profession and for his fellow men and his unfailing consideration for others were his dominating personal characteristics. For recreation he enjoyed tramping, camping and riding.

15-21-34-1 RALPH MIDDLETON MUNROE

Since early youth Ralph M. Munroe had a great interest in the sea. In 1847 he helped a friend, William Andrews, to develop a wood carving machine and after about one year the friend threw in the sponge and told Mr. Munroe to help himself to what tools he wanted, in lieu of better pay. During this episode he also worked in his spare time with two German machinists named Newman. They were experts in developing and perfecting intricate patterns; so Ralph M. Munroe gained much knowledge from these men.

In 1875 Ralph M. Munroe became engaged in a business venture with the Elmira Seamless Keg Company, whereby only one keg of each size could come from one log, upon this problem the venture came to grief.

Shortly after the beginning of the Civil War Mr. Munroe went to Boarding School, at the Eagleswood Military Academy. This school was situated about a mile and a half west of Perth Amboy on the Raritan River. Before going to this school he visited his grandfather in Concord, Mass., and visited the old pencil shop of William Munroe which was still in operation. (See family no. 15-21-3) Also during this visit he met the daughter of Ralph Waldo Emerson, Ellen, she was credited with bringing into this country a new game, croquet, from England. In Concord he also became acquainted with the Alcotts, Frank Sanborn, the Barretts, William W. Weildon, Horace Mann, the Hosmers and others. Across the way from his grandfather lived Judge Rockwood Hoar who later became Attorney-General under Grant.

When Staten Island became his father and mother's permanent home he was sent to a second school. A private school on New York Avenue, opposite St. John's Church, run by Isaac Holden.

In 1888 Mr. Munroe became a permanent resident of Cocoanut Grove, Florida. He was one of the early settlers of this place, lived there until his death.

From Nov. 1889 to June 1891 he tried various experiments at sponge culture and tried to have a bill introduced in to the State Legislature to have a small area reserved for experiments, set aside by state law. Politics played havoc with this worthwhile idea and the outcome was that the bill was thrown out.

Ralph M. Munroe was well known for his superior skill at designing sail boats, he designed nad built many boats for his friends and many well known people of his day. He was the originator of the Sharpie, a sail boat.

For many other interesting facts about Ralph Middleton Munroe one can read his book, "The Commodore's Story" printed in 1930, Munroe and Gilpin.

19-81-43-5 WILLIAM HENRY HARRISON MONROE

An educator, soldier, pioneer oil producer, church organizer, and civic leader, William Henry Harrison was born in Mogadore, Ohio, and attended public school there. At the age of 15 he passed an examination for teaching certificate and taught three terms of elementary school.

He entered Hiram College, where he studied under James A. Garfield, then a professor who later became president of the college and in time, President of the United States. In 1861, Monroe and other classmates enlisted in the 42nd Ohio Volunteers of the Union Army, a regiment under the command of Garfield. Monroe fought in the battles of Shiloh, Corinth, and Chickamaugua, then later was assigned to a hospital ship on the Mississippi River. Before the Civil War and throughout the conflict, as well as during Garfield's presidency, Monroe and Garfield were close friends. Among his diaries are personal letters signed by Garfield.

After the war Monroe was attracted to the excitement of the oil boom in Pennsylvania, became an oil well driller, and in 1879 purchased and began to develop oil property in Venango County, Pennsylvania. It was here, in Oil Creek Township, that he raised his family and continued to make his home until his death in 1933.

In 1880, through his untiring efforts a Sunday School and Church were started in the oil boom of Shamburg, securing the services of evangelists at Hiram College for revival meetings. In 1900, again under his leadership, the Shamburg Christian Church was chartered and in 1913, the present church building was erected, to a large extent by volunteer labor.

Interested in education, Monroe served for many years as one of the school directors of Oil Creek Township. He was active in the G.A.R. Post of Civil War veterans in Pleasantville, Pa., until he reached the age of 93 years and was the last surviving member. A short time before he died he led the Memorial Day service at the Pleasantville cemetery, which he had been doing for years. (The above was abstracted from an article in the "Titusville Herald" newspaper in Titusville, Pa., dated April 23, 1984.)

1/12-35-10/6-1 ARTHUR MONROE

Arthur Monroe, lawyer and judge was educated in his preliminary education at Spencer High School, he graduated from Amherst College A.B. in 1897, he next took a two year law course at Harvard University during 1897-99. He received his M.A. degree in 1911 in history and international law, from Clark College at Worcester, Mass. He was interim professor of international law at Clark College in the early 1900's. After he completed his studies at Harvard, he returned to Spencer, Mass. and worked in the law office of Albert W. Curtis, a judge, working in this office until admitted to the Mass. Bar in 1900. In the latter part of the year 1900 he commenced his own law practice in Worcester, and two years later opened another office in Spencer. In 1937 he decided to close the office in Worcester. In 1927 the governor of Mass., Alvan Fuller, appointed Judge Monroe special justice of the District Court of Western Worcester. He kept this appointment until 1942 and resigned to resume his private practice in Spencer, which he maintained until his death. He was treasurer of the Taylor Woolen Co., of Spencer from 1905-07 and also of the Wicks Manufacturing Co., of Spencer during 1906-07. Another Spencer Co., of which he was president from 1906-08 was the Priscilla Mills Co.

Judge Arthur Monroe was a Republican, chairman of the Spencer Republican Committee during the early 1900's. Serving on Spencer town council from 1927 to 1951, in 1951 he asked not to be reappointed. An active member of the sinking fund committee for many years, and up to the time of his death was a member of the town finance committee. During the Second World War he was chairman of the district advisory board under the Selective Service System. About 1912 he was the first president of the Spencer Farmers and Mechanics Association, which conducted the Spencer Fair, continuing to the head of the association for two years. He was once active in the Spencer Board of Trade, a commissioner of the Drury Fund.

He was a member of the Spencer Methodist Church, served as a trustee and legal advisor and member of the building committee for the new church dedicated in 1955. Also, he was a member of the Worcester County Bar Association, the Knights of Pythias, Grange, and the Delta Upsilon fraternity. His special interests were gardening and bird lore.

Dr. Orin A Stevens, a distinguished scientist in the fields of botany, entomology and ornithology, retired in 1956. He removed from Kansas to North Dakota in 1909 where he was employed at the North Dakota Agricultural College as a seed analyst and botanist.

He holds the titles of Botanist Emeritus and curator for the North Dakota Institute for Regional Studies. Dr. Stevens is still at his work even though retired, caring for the extensive herbarium of the Dept. of Botany, which he developed. He answers voluminous correspondence with people in N.D. and from all over the world on scientific subjects within the broad field of his knowledge.

A handbook, first published by Dr. Stevens in 1950, has gone into several printings, his collection of over 10,000 specimens of bees and wasps, most of which were taken in N. D., is in the Americana Museum of Natural History in New York City. Dr. Stevens is a world authority on the Hymenoptera, the order to which these insects belong, and about a dozen species have been named in his honor.

He has published hundreds of scientific papers in the fields of his major interests, including historical papers on early plant explorers. His former students from all over the world still keep in touch with him....

His wisdom and knowledge are freely given by him whenever called upon, in the best tradition of a true scientist.

1/12-10/2-47-1 FRANK WILLIAM MORRISON

He was graduated from Stanford University of Palo Alto, Calif. class of 1896, B. A. Economics, he majored in Law and Mining, received his law degree in 1897. Mr. Morrison had attended Vermont Academy and graduated in 1892, he was a member of the Baptist Church, in politics a Republic, and was briefly in the National Guard in W. W. I. His hobby was farming, he had Brown Swiss Breeding Stock which he sent all over the U. S., S. America, Cuba and Africa. At one time he owned nearly 1000 head.

As a lawyer he was called the Dean of the Worcester County Bar Assoc., was on the Library Board of Uxbridge, Mass. for many years 1898 to 1911, he was a gold miner in Alaska, he practiced in the U. S. Supreme Court as well as in Mass. courts.

Mrs. Morrison attended Vassar and the University of Boston but did not graduate from either, she was majoring in business, she did graduate from Vermont Academy in 1892, was a Republican in politics, a member of the Christian Science Church, a member of Debra Wheelock Chapter of D. A. R. and was its Regent for one term.

(The following excerpt has been taken from the book: In Quest for the Golden Cloak, by Alvin Seal, 1946)

"Great Gold Discovery in the Klondyke! It was January 1898. The San Francisco papers were black with heavy type telling of the great riches to be found. My roommate at Stanford, F. W. Morrison became infected with the gold fever, 'Let's go,' he said, 'it will be a great adventure_____.'

Fortunately we had sufficient funds to provide a good outfit a plenty of food.

We boarded the steamship Discovery filled to overflowing with gold seekers, gamblers, dogs, and supplies. We had been able to secure a small cabin—a dog team occupied the deck just over our heads. All was noise and excitement.

After five days along the smooth inland passage lined with snow covered mountains—we arrived in what was to be Skagway in the future. There was no wharf and the town was made up of about of half dozen cabins with a winding main street cluttered with the stumps of trees, several saloons and dance halls, all in tents—with a shop or two and tents mostly tents, that was all. The beach was piled with supplies and freight.

No one paid any attention to just two boys. We went a few hundred yards through the town toward White Pass, selected a place for our tent and pitched camp. The next thing was to get our supplies up to our tent.

My partner, Morrison, had been a farm boy in Vemront. He was a graduate of Vermont Academy, had a good business sense and a Yankee's keeness at getting things accomplished. His eyes alighted on "Buck" a gentle ox, that someone had brought in, perhaps for food. Morrison had driven oxen in Vermont so he purchased Buck at once with feed enough to see us through to Lake Bennett. Two long, Klondyke sleds, were purchased and in a short time Buck had pulled all our possessions up to our tent. We were two busy boys for a week getting everything in shape for the hard trip ahead over White Pass.

We witnessed interesting and tragic things take place. One cold windy day we saw three men embark in a small canoe to go to the upper end of Lake Lunderman. When they were about five hundred yards from shore, we saw the canoe upset. Morrison and I jumped into a boat and rowed as fast as possible, we got the two men who were holding on the the overturned canoe and then looked for the other man who had started to swim to shore, but he had gone down. We finally got him up but two hours of attempted resuscitation failed to show a spark of life.

Eventually after much difficulty, as the snow had begun to melt, we arrived at the summit of White Pass with all our supplies intact. From this point the remaining to Dawson was all by water.

In Dawson Morrison made quite a success in mining_____."

11-86-17-22 DR. CHARLES FREDERICK MUNROE

Charles Frederick Munroe was a Dentist and Funeral Director, he and his family resided at Oneida, N. Y., he attended the University of Buffalo, N.Y.

He loved both hunting and fishing and at one time was considered one of the best fishermen on Oneida Lake. Rain or shine he would be on the lake at daybreak and back on shore about 9:30 a.m. only to repeat the process again at 4:00 p.m. until dusk. His daughter, Barbara (Family no. 11-86-17-22-2), who furnished this account in November 1965, says "I can still remember meeting him at the shore with a dishpan, which he would fill to the brim."

Dr. Munroe belonged to many organizations, but never went to the meetings. He went to bed too early to attend the meetings. One of his greatest pleasures was to go to the movies at every change.

A most generous man, his word was as good as his bond. He helped many people along the way in life, but this was kept to himself, an excellent Mortician yet he loathed to practice it, which probably explained some of his nervousness and short temper. He must have felt trapped in this business, for he had given his word to his dying father that he would continue the business, which he did.

11-86-17-61 MARJORIE LOUISE MUNROE

The following account was taken from the Oneida Daily Dispatch of Friday, Feb. 1, 1963. This account gives us a very vivid picture of Mrs. Munroe.

The account starts with this statement by Mrs. Murnoe, "I love Oneida. I can't think of any place else I would rather be. This is my town and I guess I feel sort of responsible for it." The article then goes on, "And Mrs. Marjorie L. Munroe, the great-granddaughter of the first settler of Oneida James Stewart, has proven in her lifetime that these are the words which she has lived.

Mrs. Munroe, in her mid-70s, broke her hip and severely injured one foot last year. Since then, she has been confined to her huge four-poster bed in her home, getting around only with the aid of a walker.

But while she may be confined physically, her wide-spread interests and activities continue as usual. A telephone sits by her hand and rings constantly.

The bed itself is covered with books, magazines and newspapers. If there is a meeting she should attend, the other members of the group come to her home and the meeting is held in her bedroom.

She was born in Oneida the daughter of Anthony B. and Louise Walrath Munroe, both native to Oneida. Mrs. Munroe was educated in Oneida and then attended National Park Seminary in Forest Glen, Maryland. After that she took up singing and, among others, studied with Herbert Witherspoon, head of the Metropolitan Opera Company. A dramatic soprano, she gave concerts in Kenwood, Utica and Syracuse.

During World War I, she was instrumental in establishing a chapter of the American Red Cross in Madison County. Mrs. Merchant B. Hall, now living in Florida, and Mrs. Munroe are the only two living members of the original founders of this chapter.

Also during World War I, she started in on her pet project—the establishment of a library in Oneida. Before a library was even built, she was passing the hat at meetings and at one meeting of the Women's Civic Club, she collected the sum of seven dollars, she reports.

When the new Hand-Barker Library was completed, she says that she felt that she had done one real thing in her life. As administrator of the money left by Mrs. Elizabeth Barr for the construction of the library and for an endowment fund, she spent many hours working on this. Mrs. Barr was born in Oneida, the daughter of Theodore Hand.

During World War II, Mrs. Munroe was the head of the Women's Volunteer Service with an office in the Post Office building. She also served on the rent control board and was chairman of book collections for the U.S.O. She personally delivered hundreds of books to the headquarters in Syracuse. Somehow she found time to take jigsaw puzzles down to the railroad station to distribute to soldiers on trains passing through Oneida.

While she never participated in Girl Scouts, she was always interested in the organization. Several years ago, she donated the house next to her home to the Madison County Girl Scout Council for the use of Oneida Girl Scouts and as a business office for the council.

Mrs. Munroe is a member of the First Presbyterian Church, the Art Club, the Progress Club, a trustee of the Oneida Library and of the Sylvan Springs Water Co. She is a former member of the Morning Musical, the junior board of the Old Ladies Home and the City Federation of Women's Clubs.

She is constructive in more ways than civic projects Liking to make things with her hands, her hobbies are flowers and embroidery, she can't say which order. After a visit to her home, it would seem that the former has preference. Her house is full of flowers, real ones in each room and every windowsill full of African Violets, and flowered wallpaper in all bedrooms.

She collects buttons, old lace, shawls and fans. She says she doesn't have much of a collection as yet but at least has made a start.

A great reader, she has what she calls, "lying down books" and "sitting up books." The former are mainly mysteries where the action is fast and her attention is taken off herself. In the "sitting up" category, she might be found reading anything—from history to biography to the latest best seller.

An outspoken authority on the early history of Oneida and Madison Counties, she is in dispute with several of the local "historians" on certain facts. Among other contentions, she claims to be the only one who knows the exact location of the Council house in the six nations, since her grandmother was born in it.

An odd paradox she has concerns color. She loves it and her house is full of it. But a color or shade that she can wear, and often does, she will not tolerate in her home as she can't live with it.

Since her accident, she has had a bird feeding station built in her back yard and part of her daily exercise is to go down the hall with her walker and watch the birds. She says she can identify only about five species but, with her curiosity, it probably won't be long before she is an authority on all kinds.

Mrs Munroe has a great compassion for people but no tolerance for insincerity or dishonesty. By her own admission she would never hurt anyone unless they were doing something dishonest.

While, like everyone else, she must have made some compromises in her life, it is hard to imagine. She is a blunt forthright person of great sincerity and honesty. Anyone who manages to achieve what she has, must be controversial. But, with her or against her, like her or not, her accomplishments command the admiration of everyone.

In 1950, she was one of the "Roses to the Living" recipients of the Oneida Rotary Club. Her citation read:

"In recognition of a life of outstanding achievement which was inspired by a fine sense of duty, coupled with a genuine desire to render helpful assistance and to promote the best interests of your community, Oneida Rotary Club salutes you as one who has exemplified the virtue of service above self in all your contacts and activities. May the Rose of Rotary presented to you today encourage you to render the same full measure of service in the years to come."

Certainly, no one will deny that she has rendered "full measure" in the twelve years since that award.

The compiler of this genealogy and his wife, Marjorie Munroe, had the pleasure of spending an overnight visit with Mrs. Marjorie L. Munroe on 8 July 1964. I can certainly vouch that the above account of Mrs. Munroe is very true. A lot of the information from her grandfather, Loring Munroe, to the present day was supplied by her.

Although the above account speaks of her as Mrs. Marjorie Munroe, we must remember, that she was born Marjorie Louise Munroe, and after her divorce, she was and has been known as Mrs. Munroe.

11-86-17-62 STEWART WALRATH MUNROE

The following write up from a Syracuse, N. Y. newspaper gives the reader a little biography about Mr. Munroe.

"S.W. Munroe, Auto Sales Chief, in City"
"Chrysler Official, Oneida Native, Attending District Parley"

"Stewart Walrath Munroe of Detroit, Mich., general sales manager of the Chrysler division of the Chrysler Corporation, and a native of Oneida, was in Syracuse today to attend a district sales meeting of his firm.

Mr. Munroe, whose appointment as general sales manager on Nov. 15 climaxed a long career in the automotive industry, attended grade and high school in Oneida before entering an automobile school in Detroit.

He is a son of the late A. B. Munroe (family no.11-86-17-6), for many years president of the Farmers & Merchants Bank of Oneida, and later chairman of the board of directors of the Oneida Valley National Bank and Mrs. Munroe, who lives in Oneida with her daughter, Miss Marjorie Munroe (family no. 11-86-17-61).

Mr. Munroe has been interested in the mechanics of automobiles nearly all his life. It is said that as a youngster he took apart his father's first "horseless carriage" and put it together again, the car operating better afterward. (Compiler's note: this statement was also furnished by his sister Marjorie).

He married the former Harriet Coman, daughter of the former State Supreme Court Justice, Henry Coman of Oneida. The couple have three children, Henry Coman, James Stewart, and Stewart Walrath."

* * * *

The above account must have appeared sometime after 1936, as it speaks of Mr. Munroe's father as the late A.B. Munroe. Mr. A.B. Munroe died in 1936. Stewart Walrath Munroe attended Philips Andover Jr. College in 1909.

11-10/5-63-12 ROBERT CLIFFORD MUNROE

Robert Clifford Munroe began his long association with the G. and C. Merriam Company during the fall of 1898, starting in the shipping room stuffing circulars into envelopes. In 1904 he became advertising manager and started traveling extensively for the company. Covering all parts of the country for many years, he made personal contact with the book trade. Elected to the board of directors in 1919, in 1922 he became clerk of the corporation, finally he became its president in 1934. During his long association with G. and C. Merriam the famous unabridged Merriam-Webster dictionary grew from a publication of 175,000 entries at the turn of the century to the current edition containing over 600,000.

He played an important part in the preparation and sale of successive editions of Webster's Collegiate Dictionary, and, several years ago, guided the successful launching of Webster's Dictionary of Synonyms and Webster's Biographical Dictionary, both of which became best sellers in their fields. In 1940 one of his fondest dreams came true, when the company moved into its new office building at 47 Federal Street, Springfield, Mass. Mr. Munroe was chairman of the building committee.

A hobby of Mr. Munroe was stamp collecting and he was a prominent figure in the philatelic world. Another hobby was drawing or pencil sketching, at which he had a natural talent, the compiler of this genealogy is fortunate to possess five of the sketches. He served as a member of the board of vice-presidents for the American Philatelic Society and was honored, in 1948, by being selected as a member of the jury of awards for the International Philatelic Exhibition in New York. Collecting Indian arrow heads was one of his early hobbies and some of this collection is now in the possession of his daughter, Ann Morton Munroe. Aside from being president of the Merriam Company, he was president of the H.R. Hunting Company, library binders and was a director of numerous business, civic, historical, and educational institutions in Springfield and suburban Longmeadow.

He graduated from Central High School, Springfield, Mass., and was a native of Holyoke, Mass.

Mr. Munroe's funeral service was conducted at the South Congregational Church, of Springfield, on Saturday, 17 January 1959 at 2:00 p.m. and he was buried in the Longmeadow Cemetery.

13-87-13/1-45 VERA VIOLA (MONROE) SCHULTZ

Vera was very active in humane work primarily on the animal level. In Wisconsin she was known statewide for her work and received some national acclaim from humane organizations. She worked for humane legislation, established an "Animal Welfare" organization and worked for the construction of a fine shelter and later established a pet cemetery which after her death was named "Vera V. Schultz Memorial Pet Cemetery." We are proud of her dedication to the rights of animals and all the many causes which she championed. She established hot school lunches (which at that time were a new concept) for the children and arranged payment of lunches for those unable to pay. As she often said, "For some children it was the only good meal they would get."

13-87-13/3-11 REMINGTON JAMES MONROE

When Remington was drafted into the Army in World War I in 1918, his mother gave him a little Bible which he carried overseas in France until his Honorable Discharge in 1919. His family were devout Baptists. His mother was a devoted mother and raised her children within a Christian atmosphere. Remington informed his children that upon his death, he wanted a flag on his casket, which was provided, and also the little Bible in which he had written his pledge to God was used by the minister officiating at his funeral. His Bible that was given to him on his eighteenth birthday by his Grandmother and Grandfather Monroe, and all the letters he received from his family and friends while he was in the service of his country will be preserved and cherished by his children and grandchildren.

13-87-13/5-14 ILA VERLE (WHALIEN) GRICE

Ila and Duane (better known as DB) lived in Grenville, S. D., for a short time after marriage, but spent about 24 years in Fairmont, N.D., and about 24 years at Enderlin, N. D., where they had a 40-acre "ranch" as DB called it.

Internment was at Fort Snelling National cemetery, Minneapolis, Minn. In spite of DB's injured ankle, D. and Ila won several prizes (local) for waltzing; they were very beautiful on the dance floor. Ila was a Registered Nurse, graduated from Swedish Hospital in Minneapolis in 1921. She met Duane there when he was hospitalized for a broken foot and ankle that was pinned and always gave him trouble. He had fallen from the tender on the railroad engine.

Ila had gone to Valley City Normal for one year and then taught school long enough to earn the tuition for nurse's training, which was her real profession. Over the years she did much special duty nursing. After her three children were grown, she ran a little maternity home in her own home for three or four years. Ila was a worthy matron of the Order of the Eastern Star at Farimount and a District Deputy for the OES for N. D. She was active in County Home Extension, sang in a church quartet and for OES, she did much embroidery, knitting and crocheting, making most of the clothes for her family.

Duane was a railroad engineer for the Soo Line on the Fairmount and Veblen branch line of the Soo. After 42 years, he retired on his 65th birthday. They lived on a little 40-acre ranch. All three children learned to ride horses and train dogs for field hunting. They also had a cottage during the 1930s for about ten years on Big Stone Lake (S. D. and Minn.) so we all learned to swim. He was a great organizer, very active in the Masons and American Legion and V. F. W. He joined the Masons in France in World War I (here he was a line sergeant); he taught English, French, and German.

13-8/11-82-11 CHARLES JOSHUA MONROE

Charles Joshua Monroe was born 25 Feb. 1901, in South Haven, Mich. He was the oldest child of Stephen Blackmar and Albertina Schmidt Monroe. In 1901 the family moved to Kalamazoo, Mich.

Charles attended the Kalamazoo Public Schools. In 1918-1919 he was enrolled at Kemper Military School, Booneville, Mo., and was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1924.

He married Katherine Swayzee in Kalamazoo on June 17, 1925. Two children were born of this union.

From 1925 to 1927 Charles was with the General Electric Co., Schenectady, N.Y., Office of Auditor of Disbursements; took general accounting courses with General Electric. In 1928 he joined the Industrial State Bank of Kalamazoo. In 1935 he was elected President and in 1952 became Chairman of the Board. He retired from the bank in 1964.

He had served on the Board of Directors of ten local corporations, as well as the KVP Company, Ltd., Espanola, Ontario, and the Monroe Calculating Machine Company of Orange, N.J. Charles was involved in many local clubs, organizations, and societies.

He endowed the Stephen B. Monroe Chair of Money and Banking at Kalamazoo College in memory of his father.

Charles died December 15, 1978, at his home in Richland, Mich.

13-8/11-82-12 GEORGE EDWARD MONROE

George Edward Monroe was graduated from Kalamazoo Central High School in 1924. He earned his bachelor's degree at the University of Michigan and graduated from Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration with a Master's degree in 1930.

He was a life-long resident of Kalamazoo, Mich., where he was active in the manufacturing and banking community of the area, being director of various companies, including Allied Paper Company, Ampco Twist Drill Co., Kalamazoo Stove & Furnace Co., Bond Supply Co., Kalamazoo Manufacturing Co., Monroe Calculating Machine Co., Home Savings Bank of Kalamazoo, Interlake Tissue Mills of Canada. When the Monroe Calculating Machine Co. was merged with Litton Industries of Los Angeles, California, he continued as a director of that corporation for many years.

George was an active member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity and the University of Michigan Alumni Association, receiving distinguished service awards from both organizations. He was an avid world traveler—several shikars and safaris to South Africa and India; a tour of old world ports on the Pacific Ocean and the continent of Europe; took wonderful movies on his various trips.

13-8/11-82-13 ALBERTINE HARRIET (MONROE) BROWN

Albertine Harriet Monroe was born at home in Kalamazoo, Mich., on 15 Feb. 1907. She was the third child and only daughter born to Stephen Blackmar and Albertina Schmidt Monroe. Her mother was born in Emden, Germany, on 14 Feb. 1873, and came to America with her sister Helen and brother Henry. They were adopted by an aunt and uncle, Joshua and Louise Schmidt. They lived in Chicago, Ill., until 1888, when they moved to South Haven, Mich. The aunt and uncle became proprietors of the resort, Sleepy Hollow, which is still in existence today.

In South Haven Albertina met Stephen Monroe and her sister Helen met Stephen's brother George. Albertina and Stephen were married in South Haven on 11 Jan. 1899. In 1901 they mvoed to Kalamazoo, Mich., where Stephen was employed by the Kalamazoo Savings Bank, which his father, Charles J. Monroe, had founded in 1884.

Albertine attended the Kalamazoo Public Schools, Knox College in Cooperstown, N.Y., Kalamazoo College, and the University of Grenoble in Grenoble, France. Albertine and her double cousin, Helen Louise Monroe, went to France together. Albertine was active in various service organizations as a volunteer worker.

On Nov. 1935, Albertine married Robert J. Brown at the bride's home in Kalamazoo. Robert was graduated from the University of Michigan and was an All-American football player, serving as captain of the team during his senior year in 1925.

Albertine died of cancer on 19 Feb. 1959, in Kalamazoo, Mich.

13-8/11-82-21 GEORGE SMITH MONROE

George was the firstborn of C.J. Monroe's nine grandchildren. He grew up in South Haven where his father, George C. Monroe, was one of the leading citizens. When the United States entered World War I, George was turned down when he attempted to enlist in the U.S. Army because of poor eyesight. Determined to serve his country, George memorized the chart. He was accepted. He was assigned to Battery F 119th Field Artillery.

With that unit he arrived in France in 1918 to take part in the great Allied offensive which broke the power of the Imperial German Army in the summer and fall of 1918. On August 22, 1918, George was struck by a German projectile at Les Cruaux, France, during the advance from Chateau Thierry to Fismes. George was the first soldier from South Haven to be killed in the war. His death at age twenty-three was a family tragedy. A large stone in the family graveyard at South Haven records this sad story.

13-8/11-82-22 HELEN LOUISE (MONROE) PUTTKAMMER

Helen Louise Puttkammer was the second child of George Monroe and his wife Helen Smith. She went to school in South Haven, and then had two years at Kalamazoo College. She finished her degree at the University of Michigan (1920). She returned to South Haven and taught school. One of her assignments was to teach economics, and she remembers having to be tutored by her banker-father while they walked to and from home for the noon meal. She must have been a pretty good teacher since one of her students was young Ludwig, the local fisherman's son and Mr. Ludwig is now one of the richest men in the world!

Helen Louise went to Europe to continue her study of French, and traveled with her double first cousin Albertine. Albertine and her brothers George and Charles were the children of Stephen B. Monroe and Albertine Smith and lived in Kalamazoo. Helen Louise received a degree in France, and on her return to the United States she continued to teach French, in Jackson as well as in South Haven.

In 1929 she went to Chicago. She was encouraged to do so by Dr. and Mrs. Baum, Chicagoans who spent their summers in South Haven. She taught school briefly, and then went to work for Marshall Field and Company. The Baums introduced her to a young professor of law at the University of Chicago, Ernst Wilfred Puttkammer. They were married on November 28, 1931, in her parents' home in South Haven.

They had two children, Helen Lorna Puttkammer Straus and Charles Wilfred. (There is a tradition of naming the first daughter Helen, that we believe goes back several generations in the Smith family in Germany. Helen Lorna's daughter is named Helen Elizabeth Straus.) Helen and Wilfred Puttkammer lived in Hyde Park, near the University of Chicago. Summers were spent on Mackinac Island, in northern Michigan, where the Puttkammer family started going in 1891. Helen was busy with many civic committments, especially including long service to the Chicago Child Care Society. Wilfred taught criminal law at the University, for 36 years. Following his retirement in 1956, they raveled a great deal, including many trips to Europe which they both loved, and to Africa. A notable trip was one driving across North Africa, from Morocco to Egypt. It is a trip no one would dare to take now. Wilfred died in 1978, in the Indian Ocean while they were on a world cruise. He is buried on Mackinac Island. Helen still lived in their house in Chicago, and spends her summers on Machinac.

13-8/11-82-23 RANDOLPH BLACKMAR MONROE

Randolph B. Monroe was born in 1906, the third child of George C. Monroe and his wife Helen Schmidt. Randolph graduated from South Haven High School and the University of Michigan Law School in 1935. Randolph carried on the Monroe family tradition in South Haven established by his forebears. He practiced law alone at first, and after 1950 with Louis Chappell as a partner. In 1951 Harold Neal joined the firm which was operated as Monroe, Chappell and Neal until Randolph's retirement in 1955.

Following his retirement in 1956, they traveled a great deal, including many trips to Europe which they both loved, and to Africa. A notable trip was one driving across North Africa, from Morocco to Egypt. It is a trip no one would dare to take now. Wilfred died in 1978, in the Indian Ocean while they were on a world cruise. He is buried on Mackinac Island. Helen still lives in their house in Chicago, and spends her summers on Machinac.

In the family tradition Randolph served on the Board of Directors of the First State Bank of South Haven, founded by his grandfather Charles Jay Monroe and of which his father was also president. He operated a fruit farm on land originally owned by his great-grandfather Judge Jay R. Monroe near Maple Grove east of South Haven.

In 1938 Randolph married Ruth Kimberly in Omaha, Neb. There were three children: Randolph Kimberly, Cynthia, and George.

Ruth and Randolph bought a winter home in Tucson, Arizona, in 1955, hoping the move would alleviate the respiratory problems that forced an early retirement from his law practice. He joined the faculty of the University of Arizona to teach banking courses in the Business School. He and Ruth continued to travel extensively until his unexpected death from respiratory complications in Tucson on November 10, 1960. Ruth died a few months later from cancer.

Randolph B. Monroe was highly regarded in South Haven where he was a greatly respected leader in the industrial, civic, and religious life of the community. Each Fourth of July Randolph and Ruth held their annual picnic and Monroe family reunion which were greatly enjoyed by all who attended.

13-8/11-82-51 CHARLES SEAVER MONROE

Charles S. Monroe, a South Haven High School graduate, became a prominent free-lance writer. He graduated from the University of Michigan and then studied at Yale University, from which he graduated with a Master's degree in fine arts in 1933.

He went to New York City, planning to enter the lighting field in Broadway theater. Instead he turned to free-lance writing for magazines, having gained writing experience on the Tribune, the newspaper of which his father was editor. He also worked in summer stock painting scenery, as a stage manager, a business manager and a publicity director. His free-lance works included "Lux Radio Theatre" and "Columbia Workshop."

In November 1942 Charles was offered a position as a CBS staff writer. In 1949 he was made head of the program writing department of CBS. In 1948 he wrote one of the documentaries on schools, starring Fran-chot Tone. While employed by CBS, Charles continued to do free-lance work. Among his writings were "The Edge of Night," "Studio One," and a two-part version of "The Space Merchants" for television.

In 1955, he was presented with an individual "President's Prayer Award," which is conferred on individuals for outstanding service in behalf of U.S. Savings Bond drives. He was a member of the First Congregational Church of South Haven.

13-8/11-83-12 GENEVIEVE (HARTMAN) HAWKINS

The younger daughter of Fannie Maria (Monroe) Hartman and Eugene Allen Hartman, Genevieve, from the time of her childhood, was very intellectually inclined. She graduated from Barnard College in New York and enjoyed a career as a teacher of English. She became an expert on the works of Shakespeare.

On August 24, 1922 she married Ira Alden Hawkins, Jr., a successful New York lawyer. After living in Manhattan for some years they moved into a charming house in Bronxville, New York. Ira Hawkins played a very active role in the Society of Alumni of Williams College. He and his wife were very pleased when all three of their sons followed their father to Williams. They each did extremely well academically.

Genevieve did some very important original genealogical research, tracing the ancestry of Fanny Rawson Monroe, her great-grandmother, and of Mary Sweetser, her great-great-grandmother, back to the early settlement of New England.

13-8/11-84-41 HOWARD SHEPARD MONROE

Howard S. Monroe was the oldest child. He had one brother and two sisters. His father died in 1918 when he was five years old. His mother reared her four children in the country on a farm of 80 acres.

Howard attended the "little red country school house," named Monroe School. His ancestors had given the land to build the school on. He used to swim in the Paw Paw River, near their house, in the summer and skate on the flats, frozen over, in the winter. He graduated from Lawrence High School. While going to high school he was on the basketball and baseball teams. He had to walk 3½ miles home every night after practicing for sports and then do the chores, including cutting wood for fuel.

Howard started working at the King Paper Mill, Allied (SCM) Division. The mill closed down after many years and he was transferred to the Bryant Paper Mill, Allied Division.

His family was in many activities. His sons were in Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, Little League Baseball and competitive sports. His wife was a den mother and he, a Scout Master. They were in P.T.A. and Mothers Study Group, kept busy and interested in their school activities. Howard felt it kept them young. He helped coach a Babe Ruth baseball team, and became President of the Babe Ruth baseball organization. That year the team won the state title in Detroit. What a thrill! He became manager of a Connie Mack baseball team. Later he joined the Little League baseball organization. He managed many Little League baseball teams, spending 14 years in Little League.

The family belonged to the Sunnyside United Methodist Church. Howard retired at age 65. He had worked 40 years in the paper mill. He goes fishing, hunting, and attending sport activities. He and his wife see their grandchildren and are busy with birthday parties, picnics, reunions, Thanksgiving, and Christmas get-togethers. In the winter they go to Panama City Beach, Florida, for three months but also have a cabin up north for summers.

Howard has tried to be a good husband, father, and to serve his community well. What more could anyone ask of one person.

13-8/11-84-43 JEANNETTE PEARL (MONROE) BUSS

Jeannette was born on a farm in Lawrence, Mich., on 6 April 1916. She attended Monroe District School through eighth grade and then graduated from Lawrence High School in 1933. She took a secretarial course at Parsons Business School in Kalamazoo for one year. Jeannette worked in Kalamazoo for several years and in April 1946 married Harley Buss, carpenter in mobile home manufacturing business. They lived in Parchment, Mich., for three years. Their daughter, Bette Joyce was born January 8, 1947. In 1950 they bought their family farm at Lawrence and built a home. Jeannette's and Harley's farm is part of the original Monroe farm. In 1957 Jeannette began working at the Home State Bank at Lawrence and was there for twelve years.

13-8/11-84-44 FLORANCE LUCILE (MONROE) HUTCHINS

Florance was born at the country home of her father's parents in Van Buren County, the youngest of four children. She attended a one-room country school, Monroe district, for the first six grades. The school was so named as the land was given by the Monroe family to the district. Florance graduated from Lawrence High School in 1935. She also completed a course in Cosmotology and worked until 1940.

In 1938 she married Leland Hutchins. In 1940 they purchased a home in Arlington Township which was the former home of Leland's grandparents, the grandfather had come here as a young man. Leland was a farmer at heart but worked many years off the farm, mostly building mobile homes. Florance was busy working where needed on the farm as well as being a homemaker.

13-8/11-84-61 CARRIE EMMA (MILLS) McCOMB

When Carrie was two years old, the family moved to the Monroe Homestead at Lawrence, Michigan, in 1924. After graduating from Lawrence High School in 1940, she worked for a local businessman as a secretary. During World War II she worked at the Willow Run Bomber Plant at Ypslanti, Mich., in the office of the printing department.

She married Edwin Luther McComb in 1944. After the war they made their home in Lawrence, where Edwin was a warehouse supervisor for the Lawrence Packing Co. After their children entered college, Carrie started working as an accountant for the Ford Sales at Gobles, Mich. Later she worked as a church secretary for the Lawrence United Methodist Church.

In 1977 Edwin's work took them to California and Texas for two years. They spent nine months in California and enjoyed traveling throughout the state. They returned to Lawrence in October 1979. Both went back to school and received their real estate licenses. Edwin continued working for Robert's Movable Walls as draftsman and Carrie entered into the real estate business. She is also an active member of the Methodist Church.

They both retired in 1985 and plan to do some traveling with a fifth-wheel trailer.

13-8/11-84-62 MONROE SIDNEY MILLS

Monroe Sidney Mills was raised with his older sister Carrie Emma Mills and younger brother Earl Sidney Mills, Jr., at the Monroe homestead in Lawrence, Mich. The homestead was built in 1837 by Judge Jay R. Monroe on his nine-hundred-acre farm. When the judge died in 1876 his third son Isaac inherited the property. Monroe Mills' mother, Fannie Lucille Mills, the sixth child and third daughter of Isaac Monroe and his wife Carrie J. Cook, married Earl Sidney Mills in 1920. When Isaac Monroe died in 1924 he left the old homestead to his three daughters: Fannie, Lida, and Pearl. Lida and Pearl died childless. Fannie's three children then inherited the farm. Monroe Mills, interested in working the land, bought out the shares of his sister and brother after his Aunt Pearl's death in 1957.

Monroe Mills attended the Monroe country school nearby and graduated from Lawrence High School. He spent three and one-half years in the Army Air Force in World War II as a pilot. He was discharged as 1st Lieutenant. On Sept. 12, 1948 he married Donna Mae Kroshinsky. Donna was born Dec. 4, 1928 in Benton Harbor, Mich. She was the middle child of five who grew up in Lawrence and graduated from Lawrence High School. She was employed at Home State Bank before her marriage.

Monroe Mills was employed by the United Postal Service for twenty-seven years. Donna was a substitute mailcarrier for ten. Monroe, now in partnership with his third son Jonathan, operates a dairy farm with a fine head of Holstein cattle on the land which his grandfather Isaac Monroe and his great-grandfather Judge Jay R. Monroe worked before him.

Monroe and Donna Mills lead a very active life in the charming old farmhouse with its historic family connections. Donna does part-time work as a typesetter for a newspaper. She makes quilts, sings, reads, sews, cooks, and all those things. She loves being a grandmother. Donna and Monroe entertain frequently. An annual tradition is the family reunion when many of Isaac Monroe's numerous descendants come for a family picnic in August.

13-8/11-84-63 EARL SIDNEY MILLS

Earl S. Mill's mother, Fannie Monroe Mills, died a few days after his birth in August 1929. He was brought up at the old Monroe homestead in Lawrence, Mich., by his father and his aunt, Pearl Monroe.

He was employed first as draftsman at the Faunsnaugh Engineering Company in Kalamazoo. While there he studied at Western Michigan University and received a drafting certificate. Earl worked his way up in business in Kalamazoo. He became senior designer at Hapman & Dutton Co., process engineer for Kalamazoo Stove Co., project engineer for Ingersoll Kalamazoo division fo Borg-Warner and finally plant manager of that company from 1962-64.

Deciding to secure more formal education, Earl returned to Western Michigan University where he received a B.S. degree in 1965 and Master's degree in 1968. In 1971 he was awarded a doctorate from Wayne State University with a major in industrial education and a minor in instructional technology. He has had teaching experience at Central Michigan University at Mt. Pleasant, Mich., besides Wayne State where he got his doctor's degree.

In 1978 he was appointed assistant dean continuing education, Charleston University, Charleston, West Virginia. Since 1979 he has been Vice President of Institutional Advancement and Planning, Liberty University, Lynchburg, Va.

Dr. Mills has published many learned works in the field of industrial education. He has been active in the field of rehabilitation, in vocational education and other related subjects. From 1980 to 1984 Dr. Mills served as executive director of the Transnational Association of Christian Schools. He is today (1985) serving as treasurer of that organization.

13-8/11-85-21 ELIZABETH (MOORE) SKEEN

Being second in line of Eunice Monroe's grandchildren, Elizabeth Moore Skeen is the historian of that branch of the family. Growing up in South Haven she has wonderful memories of her cousins who lived there and of those who came to visit their families. She enjoyed her father's aunts and uncles, hearing their reminiscences at family gatherings. She had the distinction of being the last great-grandchild that Fanny Rawson Monroe actually saw and held. Elizabeth was two months old when Fanny died in October, 1907. Elizabeth was a near neighbor and good friend of her second cousin Charles Seaver Monroe. She remembers an amusing school incident when she deliberately tripped another second cousin Randolph B. Monroe, who, like Charles, was near to her in age. When Elizabeth attended Kalamazoo College she became friendly with another second Albertine Monroe who later married Robert J. Brown.

On October 20, 1934 Elizabeth married Joseph A. Skeen in Utah. Joe Skeen for many years worked for Babock & Wilcox. His job entailed many moves around the country. When he retired he and Elizabeth settled in Huntsville, Utah. He died there in 1979.

13-8/11-87-21 JANE MONROE (BREEDING) PRING

Jane was the first of six grandchildren of Lyman S. Monroe and Carrie Jane Curtiss Monroe. She was the only one her grandfather Monroe ever saw, the younger five having been born after Lyman's death in February, 1910. It was reported that little Jane, who was born on June 1, 1908, was a source of great comfort and joy to her grandfather in his last difficult years.

Jane's father, William P. Breeding, was one of the founders of the Monroe Calculating Machine Company, having served on the Board of Directors from the company's inception and subscribing to the original stock. He was elected to the office of Treasurer on May 1, 1918. As a full-time officer of the company he moved his family from South Haven, Mich., to Maplewood, N.J., close to the company's main office at Orange. The Breedings were for eight years very close neighbors of Jay R. Monroe and his family. Mary Louise Monroe Breeding and her younger brother Jay Monroe were devoted siblings. The Breedings and Monroes spent much time together.

Jane went to three well-known schools: Dearborn Morgan in Orange, N.J., the Knox School in Cooperstown, N.Y., and Pine Manor in Chestnut Hill, Mass.

Jane's parents had a beautiful summer cottage on Lake Sunapee, New Hampshire, where she spent many happy vacations. In 1926 the Breedings moved to Seven Oaks Park in Orange, N.J. There Jane married Kenneth F. Pring, the son of Caroline (Jaeger) and Frederick Pring in 1934. Kenneth F. Pring graduated from Carteret Academy in Orange in 1918 and from Williams College in Williamstown, Mass., in 1922. He was a member of the Chi Psi fraternity. He made his business career in real estate. For many years Jane and Kenneth lived in Short Hills, N.J., where their two children were brought up.

After Kenneth Pring retired they divided their time between Harwichport on Cape Cod, Mass., and Springfield, N.J.

Florence Anne Breeding grew up at her family's home at "Seven Oaks Park" in Orange, N.J. She attended the Beard School in Orange from the elementary grades through high school. While in her teens, she traveled to Europe with her family and following graduation studied music.

In 1937 Florence Anne married James E. Barton, son of James Christopher and Mary (Berkeihiser) Barton. James, a native of Coatesville, Pa., graduated from Colgate University (B.A.) and Fordham Law School (LL.B.).

During his business career, James worked in the field of Trusts and Estates. He was Trust Officer at the National Commercial Bank, Albany, N.Y., and at the time of his death had recently retired as Regional Director for Management Planning, Inc., Princeton, N.J. He was a member of the Colgate Alumni Association and Sigma Nu Fraternity.

13-8/11-87-31 JAY RANDOLPH MONROE, IV

Known as Randolph, the firstborn child of Jay R. Monroe III and Bette B. Baughman was named Jay Randolph Monroe, Jr. His father did not use number III because his grandfather Judge Jay Randolph Monroe died in 1876 and his uncle Jay Randolph Monroe, Jr., died in 1888. To avoid confusion, numbers have been assigned by the present writer.

Randolph was born just at the time when his father became acquainted with Frank Stephen Baldwin and was working with him to develop the Monroe calculating machine. Randolph showed great promise. He gave every appearance of a superior intelligence. His sudden tragic death was a crushing blow to his parents.

Early in December, 1914, Randolph caught broncho-pneumonia for which at that time no cure was known. Dr. A.W. Bingham was called on December 12. Despite his efforts little Randolph died at the family home at 55 New St., East Orange, at 1:00 a.m. on December 26. It was a sad Christmas. It was said that for the rest of his life, Randolph's father did not enjoy the Christmas celebration.

Instead of burying his son in the family graveyard in South Haven, Mich., where Judge Monroe and his wife Fanny Rawson and most of their descendents lay buried, Jay R. Monroe III chose to buy a plot in Rosedale Cemetery in Orange, N.J., where Randolph was buried on December 28, 1914. The stone reads "J. Randolph Monroe, Jr. 1911-1914."

13-8/11-87-32 MARJORIE BELLE (MONROE) D'APRIX

From the time of her birth until she was approximately two years old, Marjorie lived with her family in East Orange, N.J. The family moved to Maplewood and remained there until Marjorie was thirteen years old. Her mother, Bette Belle Baughman, died when she was ten years old. Her father remarried and the family moved to South Orange, N.J. She attended and graduated from Beard's School in Orange, N.J. At age twenty-two she was married to Donald R. D'Aprix in June 1935. During her marriage to Donald R. D'Aprix she had three children. She was divorced from Donald R. D'Aprix in 1950 and subsequently married Paul Aaroe in 1952. She was divorced from Paul Aaroe in 1957. She presently resides in Upper Montclair, N.J., and is very active in assisting recovering alcoholics through her support of the National Council of Alcoholism and the Alcoholic Treatment Unit at Mountainside Hospital.

13-8/11-87-33 MALCOLM MONROE

Malcolm Monroe, third child and only surviving son of Jay R. Monroe, III, and his first wife Bette B. Baughman, was born in Maplewood, N.J., April 29, 1917. He attended Williams College where he achieved a high scholastic average and showed an interest in pursuing an academic career. The sudden death of his father, the founder and majority shareholder of the Monroe Calculating Machine Co., in 1937, made it imperative for Malcolm to devote his efforts to the management of that company.

In 1941 as a result of a court action, Malcolm's family lost numerical control of their father's company. From 1942 to 1945 Malcolm served as a Pfc in the U.S. Army. He took part as a combat infantryman in the battle of northern France. After the war Malcolm formed an alliance with the Connable family, the second largest shareholders in the Monroe Calculating Machine Co., which in 1947 took control of the company.

Besides his responsibilities for the overall management of the company, Malcolm was especially concerned with the company's expansion in worldwide markets. Under his direction Monroe sales and manufacturing subsidiaries were opened in Europe, Canada, and South America. By 1957 Malcolm and his family realized it was no longer realistic to try to perpetuate a family-owned mechanical calculating machine company in an electronic age. The merger with Litton Industries on January 1, 1958, was a success.

Malcolm happily relinquished his management responsibilities in 1959. Together with his stepmother, Ethlyn W. Monroe, he set up the Jay R. Monroe Memorial Foundation in memory of his father. Malcolm spends much time making 16mm historical travelogues which combine his lifelong interests in history, geography, travel, symphonic music, and photography.

In December 1941, Malcolm married Dorothy A. Wheeler of Ludlow, Vt. Malcolm and Dorothy have two children and four grandchildren.

13-8/11-87-34 MARILYN MONROE

Marilyn was sixteen months old when Bette Monroe, her mother, suddenly died in May, 1923. She was too young to comprehend the tragedy which had such a profound effect on the other members of the family. In 1926 Marilyn was not quite five when her family moved from Maplewood, N.J., to South Orange. She attended Miss Beard's School in Orange, Fermata School in Aiken, South Carolina, and Holmquist School in New Hope, Penn. She was a good student and had a talent for painting in oils.

After Jay R. Monroe, her father, died in April, 1937, she lived with her stepmother, Ethlyn W. Monroe, and her brother in East Orange, N.J. In Nov. 1939 while attending a football game at Williams College in Williamstown, Mass., Marilyn was taken suddenly ill. Her sister and brother-in-law, Marjorie and Donald D'Aprix, and her brother, Malcolm, took her to the guest house where she was staying for the weekend. She never regained consciousness but died within a few hours.

Marilyn was the most attractive of Jay and Bette Monroe's children. Her death was a devastating blow to her family. When Norma Jean Baker, a popular motion picture actress, took as a stage name that of his sister, Malcolm was not pleased.

14-81-31-41 HERBERT MICAJAH MUNROE

Mr. Munroe was a graduate of the Denver, Colorado Public Schools. He was enrolled at Old Whittier School the first day of its opening in 1883; an officer graduate at East High School class of 1891. He is well remembered with an outstanding record of school leadership in scholastic and athletic achievement. He was a debater, football and baseball captain and Cadet Officer.

He became Assistant Attorney for the Denver Board of Education in 1897. At the death of the Honorable William B. Tebbetts in 1904, he was appointed Attorney, in which capacity he served until 1932.

For a period of 35 years, which covered the time of the incorporating of the City and County of Denver, with the separation from Arapahoe County, forming and enlarging the present School District No. 1, Mr. Munroe was an important link of continuity between the administrations of a number of successive Boards and Superintendents. It was his hope to see the future high schools located next to the city parks. When the new West, East, and South High Schools were built adjacent to city parks, it was understood that this had resulted from his urging and planning.

Herbert M. Munroe gave his time to the problems of underprivileged boys, orphans and members of minority groups. Active in many youth-building organizations, including the Old Timers Baseball Association, the Big Brother Movement, the Y.M.C.A., and patriotic speaking and essay contests of the Sons of the American Revolution. He died on 22 Feb. 1950, while serving as Referee for the Colorado State Industrial Commission, highly regarded and respected in that position.

19-83-29-64 CLIFFORD MONROE ALLEN

Clifford spent early years in Lena, Miami Co., Ohio, a small village on the coast-to-coast highway No. 36. After his father died, he moved to Troy, Ohio, to finish school. About 1910 he went to Dayton, Ohio, to be with his brother Frank. They worked at Kroger Grocery Bakery and also learned to dance and they had a dance routine in vaudeville for a short time. They spent many free days going to the airfield to watch the Wright Brothers take people for rides in their new airplanes. In 1912 he moved to the rapidly developing city of Detroit, to live with a cousin from Troy, Ohio.

He was a member of the Methodist Church in Detroit and in Birmingham, Mich. He joined the Christian Science Church in Birmingham after his wife had a marvelous healing. He was a member of the Masonic Lodge in Detroit. He and his wife owned and operated Margie Allen Pastry Shop, which was located first in Detroit and from 1926 through 1933 in Birmingham, a suburb north of Detroit. He assisted the Detroit Board of Education in Baker Apprentice Program, connected with Chadsey High School.

1/12-35-10/3-11 HENRY STONE MONROE

A submariner, Henry Stone Monroe participated in twelve war patrols during World War II, and for his outstanding service during the war was awarded two Silver Star Medals, the Navy and Marine Corps Medal, the Bronze Star Medal with Combat "V", and the Army Distinguished Unit Badge.

Born in Somerville, Mass., he graduated from the Naval Academy with the Class of 1933 and subsequently served, 1934-1937, on the battleship Tennessee and the destroyers Lea and Reuben James. Completing submarine training in 1938, he joined the USS Tarpon. In Nov. 1941, a month prior to the United States' entry into World War II, he joined the USS Permit to serve as First Lieutenant and Executive Office on six war patrols. He next commanded the USS S-35, 1942-1943 during four war patrols, and in Dec. transferred to command of the newly-commissioned submarine Ronquil. After a period of shakedown and trials he commanded her for two successful patrols.

He was attached to the Bureau of Ordnance, Navy Department, between 1945 and 1947, after which, for a year, he served as Operations Officer on the Staff of Commander Submarine Squadron TWO. From June 1948 until June 1949 he was Commander Submarine Division Twenty-One and following a tour of duty as Assistant Officer in Charge of the Submarine School, New London, Conn., reported in Feb. 1952, for instruction at the Armed Forces Staff College, Norfolk, Virginia.

In July 1952 he assumed command of the attack cargo ship Warrick, which operated in the Korean area of hostilities, and in Oct. 1953 became Assistant Director for Production in the Material Division of the Bureau of Ordnance. In that assignment he was a student for three months (advanced management program) at Harvard University. He next served as Chief of Staff to Commander Cruiser Division ONE and in Oct. 1957 he became Commanding Officer of the Naval Underwater Ordnance Station, Newport, Rhode Island. In Oct. 1959 he became Commander Service Squadron SIX (Commander Service Force, Sixth Fleet), and in Nov. 1960 reported as Chief of Staff and Aide to Commander Sixth Fleet. His selection for the rank of Rear Admiral was approved by the President on 14 July 1961.

In April 1962 he became Assistant Chief of Naval Operations (Naval Reserve), Navy Department and served as such until ordered detached in Aug. 1964 for duty as Commander Amphibious Training Command, Pacific Fleet.

In May 1943 Lieutenant Commander Henry Stone Monroe received the Navy Cross for heroic action in saving his submarine and crew during a fire that raged on board for three days. He brought his ship and crew home safely although himself disabled.

1/12-41-10/2-14 ANNABEL (MORGAN) HONEYWELL

Annabel Morgan was born at 11:45 p.m. on 31 Dec. 1887, in the Thaddeus Munroe House on the east side of Munroe Hill in the part of Hillsborough known as Concord End, see family no. 1/12-41. The bricks for this house are said to have been made on the premises soon after Mr. Munroe's discharge from the Continental Army. The farm is now owned by George Edwards.

Annabel attended the local school and the Hillsboro High School, where she graduated as valedictorian in 1905. She hoped to attend college, but family circumstances would not permit. After a year of teaching in a public school, she enrolled in the nurse-training school of Wesson Memorial Hospital, Springfield, Mass., and graduated in 1909. While living in Wellesley, Mass., she took courses at Boston University. In 1963 she took especial satisfaction in establishing a trust fund in Hillsborough in memory of Dr. and Mrs. B.D. Peaslee to aid needy graduates of her old school to go to college.

Until 1922 she did private nursing or served the Good Cheer Society of Nashua, New Hampshire, making her home in the city until 1916, afterward in Hudson, N.H. On 19 April 1922, she was married to Roy J. Honeywell at Hudson. Except for brief intervals elsewhere, they made their home in Wellesley, Mass., Winsted, Conn., and Bethesda, Maryland. Annabel died at Bethesda and interment was in Plot No. 2 of the Arlington National Cemetery.

13-87-13/5-14-1 ELAINE (GRICE) GRUYS

Elaine graduated from Fairmont High School, N.D., June 1942. One year at State School of Science, Wahpeton, N.D.; Swedish Hospital Nurses Training but left to join the WAVES 8 Aug. 1944, Hunter College, N.Y.—Brooklyn Navy Hospital, St. Albans Navy Hospital, and Sampson Naval Hospital—all in N.Y. Rate PhMC 3/c. She also is OR Tech as far as the Navy is concerned. Discharged 4 June 1946, N.D. State University, Fargo—College of Med Tech 1947 and 1948. That is where she met Dick. Lived in Minneapolis first two years and lived in Elk River, Minn. area since Labor Day 1951. Worked for several different doctors and now (1983) has 17¼ years with the State of Minn. in state hospitals—11 years at Onoka State Hospital, Minn. and is still at Cambridge State Hospital CLA (ASCP), and has been very active in the American Assn. of Medical Assistants, where she was instrumental in forming a second chapter in the state so they could join National, has been county President in Hennepin Co., twice, in "Stearns, Sew, Wright" and through this organization earned the certificate—Certified Medical Assistant—Administrative and Clinical (CMA-AS). She has been active in OES, Past Worthy Matron in Elk River, County Home Extension, Job' Daughters, 4-H, and taught Sunday School in United Church, Elk River. Kindergarten class and later 7, 8, and 9th grade girls, including some of her own. She is a great collector—some antiques with personal history, about 100 plates, bells, and spoons—many Rockwell plates—started with the doctor and the doll—has all the Readers Digest Condensed books from 1951 up to the present (1983). She had cancer in 1969-56 days in ICU—went from 133 to 85 lbs. unconscious for 7 days, about 50 blood transfusions—but she is great today, only has changes in some philosophies of life.

13-87-13/5-14-3 DUANE DOUGLAS GRICE

Duane (Bud) was in the service (USE-R) from fall of 1946 to Dec. 1948. Went to Billings, Mont. and lived and worked with the Editor of Bit and Spur , a western magazine. He worked on a ranch around there and through the Bridle and Saddle Club met Roberta (Bert) who is an excellent rider. They managed a riding academy in South Bend, Ind., for a year. They were called back when Bert's father died and she was needed to help with the business, the rural fire department for rural Billings, which Bert's maternal grandfather started. Bert and Bud worked hard and built up the business. Bert's two brothers, Brian and Douglas, were also involved. Before all of this, Bud worked in the laboratory for Conoco Oil Co., for several years but he became tired because of changing shifts and all-night hours. Now (1983) Bud is back to his first love—horses. He is a judge for Quarter Horse shows (AQHA) and travels all over the country for shows. He is a registered Furrier SP (Show horses). He is on the road a lot.

13-87-15/3-44-3 CAROL MAE (JOHNSON) FREEMAN

Carol attended the community schools in Winthrop, Minn., had nurses aid training, sales training for clerking. Went to Tom Fairfax and Gaylord, Minn., schools. Carol is a very outgoing person. She manages a convenience store and enjoys working with the public. She has worked with the public most of her working years. She is head-strong leader instead of a follower. She loves public speaking organizing committees and projects; loves to restore old things; is very much into history—not one to go to coffee parties in the neighborhood. She would rather read or go biking or talk to the Lord and let Him use her to help others who are down and out. Her children are very important in her life. They are her best friends. She is a very traditional person—holidays are for family, and they always are together then. Her independence has rubbed off on her daughters. They have tried more things as equals instead of say, "I'm a girl, I can't do that." Her sons are both outgoing—Dean more so than Duane. They are a loving family who care about people's feelings.

13-8/11-82-13-2 ROBERT MONROE BROWN

Robert Monroe Brown attended the Kalamazoo Public Schools. During junior high school and high school, Robert was very active in sports, playing varsity football, basketball, and track, earning seven varsity letters. He graduated from Kalamazoo Central High School in 1957 and went to Mercersburg Academy in Pennsylvania for one postgraduate year. He followed in his father's and previous ancestor's footsteps by enrolling at the University of Michigan as an engineering major. Bob played football at the university and, like his fater, was elected captain during his senior year. This is the only father-son combination in the history of the University of Michigan football. Bob also played basketball for the university and earned six varsity letters. Bob graduated in 1963 with a B.S. in Engineering. He attended Harvard Business School from 1963 to 1965 and received his Master's Degree.

Bob has inherited his grandfather Monroe's business ability and is now president of Monroe Management Company, a firm which deals with real estate development and venture capital investments.

On 31 Aug. 1963, Bob married Susan Noyes Crumpacker in Hammond, Ind. Susan attended the Hammond Public Schools and Rogers Hall in Lowell, Mass., graduating in 1959. Bob and Susan met at the University of Michigan. Susan received a B.A. in Liberal Arts and graduated with honors in 1963. She has raised four children and operates a successful interior decorating business.

13-8/11-82-22-1 HELEN LORNA (PUTTKAMMER) STRAUS

Helen Lorna Puttkammer Straus was born February 15, 1933, in Chicago. She is the first child of Helen Louise Monroe and Ernst Wilfred Puttkammer. Their other child is a son, Charles Wilfred, born in 1935.

Helen Lorna has always been known as Lorna, since her mother was known as Helen. She grew up in Hyde Park, the residential community surrounding the University of Chicago where her father was on the faculty. She went to the University's elementary and high schools, and had the last two years of high school in the University's College during the Hutchens era of early college admission. She then went to Radcliffe College, in Cambridge, Massachusetts. At Radcliffe she majored in French History and Literature and received her degree Magna Cum Laude in June of 1955.

While at Radcliffe she met Francis Howe Straus II, son of Francis Howe Straus and Elisabeth Kales. He was also from Chicago, and following his graduation from Harvard in 1953 he entered the University of Chicago Medical School. They were married June 11, 1955, and have lived in Hyde Park ever since. Francis completed medical school in 1957, then undertook a residency program in pathology at Chicago, and following completion of the residency he joined the faculty. He specializes in surgical pathology and became a full professor of pathology in 1977.

Lorna was first employed at the University and then began graduate work in anatomy. She received her PhD in 1962, joined the faculty of the University in 1964, and became a tenured member of the faculty in 1973. She is in the Anatomy Department and teaches anatomy and biology; in the College; she received the Quantrell Award for Excellence in Undergraduate Teaching in 1970. In 1968 she became Assistant Dean of Students in the College, in 1971 she began 11 years as Dean. Between 1975-80, she also served as Dean of Admissions in the College.

They have four children: Francis Howe Straus III, born in 1959, Harvard '81; Helen Elisabeth, 1962, Chicago '84; Christopher Monroe, 1966, Chicago Class of 1988; and Michael Wilfred, 1970. They lost a daughter, Catherine Kales, to sudden infant death syndrome in 1969. It should be noted that they have retained the family tradition of naming their first daughter "Helen"—Lorna remembers her grandmother Monroe saying that she was either the 5th or 6th generation to have that name.

The Straus family has a summer home on Mackinac Island, Michigan, next door to the home built by her Puttkammer grandfather in the 1890's. Francis spent his summers on a farm near Three Rivers, Michigan. Nearby was the farm owned by his aunt and uncle, Anne and Miles Cowles. The Cowles were good friends of George Monroe of Kalamazoo (Lorna's mother's first cousin). Another connection between our two families!

13-8/11-82-22-2 CHARLES WILFRED PUTTKAMMER

Charles Puttkammer grew up in Chicago with an early summer two weeks with grandmother ("Mama Roe") in South Haven annually. ("Mama Roe" was Helen Catherine Smith who married George C. Monroe on 14 Feb. 1894.) Many hours were spent in Maple Ridge Farm of Randolph Monroe (Uncle Owl and Aunt Ruth) and with cousins, Randy, Cynthia and George. I'd work with Randy in the vegetable garden for 10 cents an hour. Lots of cherries in June and peaches and Mackintosh apples in the early fall. Mama Roe was nice but rather distant to me—much closer to Lorna. I remember once my mother got very angry with her—only time I can remember—because Mama Roe wanted Billy Conn to beat Joe Louis because he was a white man. Mother said she would not stand having prejudice against a Negro express to her kids.

Charles graduated from Princeton in 1958, served in the U.S. Army 1958-60, and got a master's degree in public administration in 1960-62 from Harvard. He married Cordelia Herrick Hartwell on 12 July 1962 and they spent the next nine months going around the world. Lots of time was spent in Asia, India, and Africa. They traveled light after taking third-class trains or busses and going where the road went rather than a predetermined normal tourist route.

From 1963 until 1969 he held various government jobs in Washington, most interesting of which was the War on Poverty. In 1969 the family departed for India where for four years Charles was in charge of AID's nutrition programs. They were happy years indeed. Their youngest child Meta was born in New Delhi.

Cordelia ("Cordie") is an occupational therapist who has done graduate work in early child development. She taught that subject at Harvard University for several years but for some years now has evaluated very young infants with birth defects to see what specific exercise and learning programs their parent(s) can appropriately adapt.

Charles is the owner of three businesses—one makes hardware moldings for picture frames, architectural and furniture uses; a second sells hardwoods to hobbyists and small contractors and makes fine cabinets; the third, India International, advises American clients as to how to best do business in Indian. He travels back to India about once a year. In India, he also owns a 1934 Packard touring car, and back in Washington, D.C., a 1930 Buick coupe and a 1921 Cadillac touring car.

13-8/11-82-23-2 CYNTHIA (MONROE) KIRK

Cynthia was the middle child and only daughter born to Randolph B. Monroe and his wife, Ruth Kimberly. Raised on Maple Ridge Farm east of South Haven, she moved with them to Tucson, Arizona, in 1955 where she graduated from high school and made her debut in 1960. Recognizing her parents' health problems, the decision was made to enter the University of Arizona for her freshman year. Both Randolph and Ruth died of unrelated causes a few months apart. The children maintained their parents' home for the duration of their school years.

Cynthia was President of Kappa Kappa Gamma and graduated from the University of Arizona in 1964 with high honors, Phi Kappa Phi. After a year of teaching in Denver, Colorado, she continued her education, earning a M.A. from Stanford University where she met her future husband, Gary V. Kirk. They were married at the home of her paternal aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. E.W. Puttkammer, in Chicago in December 1966.

Gary graduated from Stanford with an MBA in 1967. After two years in the Public Health Service in Washington, D.C., they returned to establish their home in the San Francisco Bay area.

In 1971 Gary became one of the first partners in the new West Coast investment banking firm of Robertson, Colman and Siebel (now Montgomery Securities). In 1978 he left RCS to become co-founder of Siebel Capital Management, an investment advisory firm, with his friend and partner, Ken Siebel. At that time, Cynthia and Gary left their home in Atherton to move to Marvin County where the new firm would be headquartered. The firm has prospered, currently managing over one billion dollars. In 1984 the firm was sold to Equitec Financial Group, with the partners agreeing to stay on for at least five years.

Cynthia has been involved with many communtiy activities and boards, including the Junior League of San Francisco, Executive Ministries and Bible Study Fellowship. The trauma of her parents' untimely deaths at age 17 brought her to a life-changing faith in Jesus Christ and she gives praise and thanksgiving to Him for the care and blessings to her and her family since that time.

13-8/11-82-23-3 GEORGE EDWIN MONROE

The age of ten George moved with his family from Maple Ridge Farm to Tucson, Ariz. His parents were charter members of Rincon Congregational Church. George has continued this involvement as president of the high school youth fellowship and later by serving on the Deaconate, trustees and currently as treasurer.

Graduated from the University of Arizona in 1967 as an accounting major with membership in the accounting honorary. Attended Bangor Theological Seminary, Maine, Near East School of Theology, Beirut, Lebanon and was graduated from Pacific School of Religion, Berkeley in 1970 with a Master's of Divinity. Worked as director of Christian Educational First Congregational Church in Houston, Texas, after a winter as caretaker of the Dillion High Country Center, Colorado Conference of the UCC. Enjoys skiing and hiking.

George married Catherine Stegenga on December 27, 1971, while working in Houston. He sailed with Cathy's brother from Maui to Tahiti as part of a one-year camping honeymoon. They moved to Albuquerque in 1973, refurbished a house and then in 1975 purchased a 39-ft. sloop in Florida. They extensively prepared the boat and sailed slowly through the Bahamas to the Virgin Islands. George worked for a season for St. Tropez yacht charters; then visited the Leeward Islands, sailed to the San Blas Islands, through the Panama Canal and on up to San Carlos, Mexico, where the boat is presently on a mooring. He lived with Cathy on the boat for 4½ years and then moved to Tucson in April 1979. He joined his brother in his auto repair business.

13-8/11-84-62-1 PAUL EDWARD MILLS

Paul E. Mills was b. 8 Feb. 1950, 28 minutes before his twin brother, Phillip Arthur Mills. He weighed 3 pounds, 10 ounces, and Phillip weighed 4 pounds, 10 ounces, so together they amounted to one good-sized boy. They spent several days in an incubator (their father still says they were half-baked) until strong enough to leave and join their parents on the farm. Living seven miles outside the small village of Lawrence, Michigan (population: 700), they had few neighbors in the farm country, and none their age, so the twins played together a lot and grew close. He can remember being small and sickly during winters, mostly colds and flu. Although he was smaller than his twin (they were fraternal, not identical twins), people always confused their names. For years their mother dressed them alike, which probably made correct identifications even more difficult. They celebrated their birthday with their grandfather, Earl Sidney Mills, who had the same birthdate. The cake always had lots of candles!

They began kindergarten at the age of 5 at the Cross Country schoolhouse, about a half mile from the farmhouse. There were about 6 children in the class. The teacher, Mrs. Koege, ran the one-room building for children up through the eighth grade. She thought they learned so quickly that she moved several of them through the kindergarten and first-grade materials in the same year. From then on, Phil and Paul, and another student were always the youngest in the classes. During the winter several heavy storms threatened to cancel classes, but the neighbors brought the children to school on horseback, plowing through the tall drifts with ease. On those days the children enjoyed breaks from regular classroom routines, having spelling bees and other activities which lightened the dreary weather outside. After third grade, the country school consolidated, and they attended Lawrence Elementary, and later high school. Classes had as many as thirty students! Hour-long bus rides were necessary to get to and from school, so lots of talking and reading were common the rides. In seventh grade Paul won the high school spelling contest, and since no other contests were held, he thinks he is still the reigning title-holder.

Phil and Paul went out for football in ninth grade, encouraged by their cousin Bruce McComb, who had played for several years already. Phil was bigger and stronger and played more often, but Paul had some moments as a 125-pound (with pads) linebacker and fullback until a knee injury as a junior caused him to leave the team. They rarely had winning seasons with him or without him.

Because the school was small, students had opportunities to participate in numerous activities. Paul was parlimentarian and president of the Future Farmers of America chapter of Lawrence; a member of the Future Teachers of America chapter; joined the Latin Club; served on the staff of the school newspaper and the yearbook; and acted in the senior and junior plays. He was a charter member and first president of the Lawrence chapter of the National Honor Society.

While both Phil and Paul had these activities and schoolwork to keep them busy, they were both working morning and night on the farm to help with the chores. This helped to teach them discipline and planning their time, so their studies didn't suffer. Upon graduation, Paul was valedictorian and Phil salutatorian. Paul received scholarships from the Kalamazoo Science Foundation and from Alvin M. Bentley Foundation to attend Michigan State University, having received high grades and also scoring well on the Scholastic Aptitude Test and the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test.

Paul graduated in December 1971 with a B.S. degree in Biochemistry, and took a job with Garrett Laboratories in Niles, Michigan, in February 1972, as a chemist and microbiologist. He was responsible for customer contacts, picking up samples, and arranging their analysis at the lab. The job often required him to drive over 17 hours throughout lower Michigan and upper Indiana, collecting the work to be analyzed. The pay was low, but all the foods and dairy products tested could be eaten after analysis (pizza, milks, ice creams, frozen pies, salads).

He enrolled in the master's program at MSU that fall for microbiology and public health, which was a way to use the biochemistry degree and apply it practically in a laboratory. He continued to work part-time for Garrett by picking up samples for testing at least once a week. The next summer he worked part-time and also for the county full-time as a mower, then returned to school part-time while working full-time for the State of Michigan as a chemist in the Water Pollution Control Lab.

He finished the course work at night for a master's degree in microbiology and public health, but did not complete the research and thesis requirements. By that time he had transferred to the Air Pollution Control Lab of the State of Michigan, and become interested in management. He applied for admission in MSU's graduate business school program for the MBA, passed the tests and was accepted two weeks before his marriage.

Paul met Shireen while at college, dating for about ten months before deciding on marriage. She came from Sri Lanka (formerly the British colony of Ceylon) to teach in the East Lansing Montessori school [preschool]. Since her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Bede Karunaratne, were half the world away, they made their own wedding arrangements. Her mother was able to attend the wedding on April 12, 1975, in East Lansing, Michigan.

Paul finished all but one term of his MBA while working full-time as a chemist and attending classes full-time at night. Fall term, 1976, he took day and night classes to complete the degree requirements, so he left his job. Degree requirements were finished during the winter and a degree granted March 1977. One term in the Ph.D. program for management was completed when a job offer from the USEPA came to him. He decided to leave Michigan for the position in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Paul was the Quality Assurance Officer for the USEPA's engineering research laboratory there; its mission was to develop and test pollution control technologies for industrial applications. He helped monitor the analytical work performed in-house and contracted out to make sure that the Agency's quality standards were maintained. The family moved in 1980 to the USEPA's lab in Las Vegas, Nevada, for the next year where he assisted in the establishment of the Agency's QA program for hazardous wastes. From there they moved in 1981 to Durham, N.C., where he served as Quality Assurance Director for CompuChem Laboratories two years. His third year there he was EPA Scientist, a liaison with the lab and its EPA customers.

In February 1985, he accepted a position with IT Corporation as Director of Quality Assurance/Control of their six laboratories. Shireen and Paul had started their own Montessori private school in Durham, N.C., for 1½ years, but closed it when they moved to Knoxville. Shireen enjoys being "retired" for now, after a total of twelve years of teaching in Michigan and North Carolina.

Paul enjoys reading, lifting weights, softball, and general outdoor activities with his family. Shireen and the boys like to swim, and they frequently attend local health clubs to get their exercise.

13-8/11-84-62-2 PHILLIP ARTHUR MILLS

Phillip Arthur Mills was born in the Watervliet, Michigan, Hospital, thirty minutes after his twin brother, Paul Edward Mills.

Phillip attended Cross Country School for three years from Kindergarten through third grade. (In first grade, Phillip, Paul and another student were promoted to second grade in the middle of the year.) Fourth through Sixth grades were attended at the Lawrence Elementary School. He graduated from Lawrence High School in 1967, second in his class to his twin brother, Paul.

From 1967 through 1971 Phillip attended the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, receiving a B.A. degree in Political Science. One of his part-time jobs during college turned into a full-time job after graduation, working with a local real estate company, managing rental housing.

In the fall of 1972, Phillip moved to Boulder, Colorado, and worked in the construction industry, becoming foreman of a concrete form-setting company. In May 1976 Phillip obtained his Real Estate Salesman's license and joined the firm of Garrett-Broomfield and Company of Denver, as a property manager. Three years later the firm split up and Phillip went with VanHolt Garrett, Jr., to form Garrett Realty Investments Co. Phillip is currently the Executive Vice President of the company with offices in Denver. He currently holds a Colorado Real Estate Brokers license, the Certified Property Manager designation from the Institute of Real Estate Management and is active in local real estate affairs as a guest speaker.

His hobbies include skeet and trap shooting, hunting, reading, and mechanics. The family lives in Aurora, Colorado.

14-19-32-21-3 WARREN MUNROE FISKE

He attended Tufts College Engineering School and was a brilliant student, president of his class for three or four years and manager of the baseball team. As an engineer he worked in and around Sao Paulo, Brazil, for The Brazilian Traction Co., their main office Toronto, Canada.

He served in World War I and here follows a copy of an affidavit about his war service.

"State of Texas
County of Dallas:

On or about the 7th day of November, 1918—the exact date at this time having slipped my memory—"E" Battery of the 314th Field Artillery, under command Captain Warren M. Fiske (then Lieutenant Fiske) was in position in the woods just in the rear of the crest overlooking the Meuse River and the towns of Meuzay, Sassey and Milly.

About dusk on the day in question Captain Fiske was at the observation post right on the edge of the before-mentioned crest, and observed a German Battery in action across the Meuse River. This enemy battery was firing for destruction at a rapid rate of fire.

Captain Fiske immediately called the undersigned, who was the executive officer at the battery position and ordered fire to be opened on the enemy battery; giving his commands by the usual methods contained in the United States Field Artillery regulations. After three salvos of adjustment Captain Fiske reported that the target had been hit and for the battery to take up the continuous fire of destruction under the corrections given in the last order by him. This was done and probably thirty rounds were fired in accordance with his orders. The order was then received to cease firing and relay an S.O.S.

I did not see the effect of this firing, but Sergeant Wolfe, Chief of the first gun section made a trip on November 12th, to the position of the enemy battery and reported to me that, as a result of our firing two pieces of the German battery had been destroyed and that numerous dead German soldiers and horses were still at the position. He also stated that the evidence showed that the two remaining pieces of German battery had made a very hasty exit from their position leaving behind many articles of equipment of both men and guns.

Captain Fiske's orders were clear and decisive and the results obtained were evidently quite destructive. As a result of this fire "E" Battery received a few shots of counter fire and then our position was unmolested for a day.

Joseph W. Baily Jr.
First Lieutenant
Executive officer
Battery "E", 314th Field Artillery

Sworn to and subscribed before me on this 31st day of March A.D. 1921.

Winifred Coulson
Notary Public, Dallas County, Texas."

Mr. Fiske also received the Silver Star Citation, a copy of the letter for this follows:

14-81-21-27-3 DR. ROBERT TAYLOR MOULTON

Dr. Moulton was a very successful pediatrician. He had a very large practice in Salem, Mass. and the vicinity. He resides with his family in Salem.

Robert T. Moulton attended Harvard University, where he was graduated A.B. in 1930, and Harvard Medical School where he was graduated M.D. in 1934. He served his internship and residency at Infant's Hospital and Children's Hospital, Boston, Mass., during 1934-37 and was an exchange resident at New York Babies' Hospital in 1936. Specializing in pediatrics, he established a private practice in Salem, Mass., in 1938, which he maintained until the close of his life. At the time of his death he was chief of pediatrics at the Salem Hospital, vice-president and chief of the medical service at North Shore Babies and Children's Hospital, visiting pediatrician at Boston (Mass.) Lying-In Hospital, consultant in pediatrics at Cable Memorial Hospital, Ipswich, Mass., and Addison Gilbert Hospital, Gloucester, Mass., and associate physician at Children's Medical Center, Boston. From 1938 to 1949 he was also assistant physician in the outpatient department at Children's Hospital, Boston. He was instrumental in the establishment of a special nursery for premature babies in Salem Hospital, an innovation which was responsible for saving the lives of many such infants.

In the late 1940's, with Harry Loud, he performed in Salem Hospital, the first exchange transfusion on newborn babies ever conducted outside Children's Hospital in Boston. In addition to his private practice and hospital associations, Moulton was on the faculty of Harvard Medical School from 1930 to 1963, serving first as an assistant and later as an instructor in pediatrics. Moulton was the author of an article entitled "Erythroblastosis Foetalis of the Icterus Gravis Type" in collaboration with Donald A. Nickerson (New Eng. Jour. Med., 1943). He participated in numerous health improvement projects for the community, serving as chairman of fund raising campaigns on many occasions. A president of the medical advisory board of the North Shore United Cerebral Palsy Association, he was a leading force in the establishment of a cerebral palsy clinic in Salem. At the time of his death he was also chairman of the medical advisory board of the Massachusetts Mental Health Association for the North Shore and the Essex County chapter of the National Foundation of Infantile Paralysis and medical director of the Salem Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis.

Additionally, from 1947 to 1961, he was a member of the board of trustees of the Tower School in Marblehead, Mass., having served during this period as secretary and vice-president. At one time he was a member of the Colby College Leadership Conference for the Ford Foundation challenge campaign. Moulton was the recipient of the distinguished service award from the United Cerebral Palsy Association of Massachusetts in 1956, and he was honored by Harvard University with a Harvard chair and nameplate in 1962 in recognition of his service to the university. He was a diplomate of the American Board of Pediatrics and the National Board of Medical Examiners and a fellow of the American Academy of Pediatrics.

Moulton held membership in the New England Pediatric Society, the Massachusetts and Essex South District medical societies, the medical advisory committee of the district housing committee of the Women's Friend Society, the Children's Friend Society, Boston Children's Hospital Alumni Association (pres. at time of his death), the Children's Medical Center Alumni Association (pres. at time of his death), the Salem Fraternity, House of Seven Gables Settlement Association, Essex Institute, and North Shore Harvard Club. His religious affiliation was with the Grace Episcopal Church, which he served as a vestryman and member of the finance committee. In politics he was a Republican. For recreation he enjoyed gardening.

13-41-22-14-11 JOHN USHER MONRO

Prepared for Harvard College at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., class of 1930, was graduated Harvard class 1934. During World War II he served from 1941 to 1946, Pacific Area on the Aircraft Carrier Enterprise. He began with Harvard New Office in 1935. From 1946 to 1958 he was with the Veteran's Program, Director of Financial Aid, he was later in charge of this office. On Dec. 1, 1958 he was appointed Dean of Harvard College. Served as advisor for National Merit and also General Motor Scholarships. Founder and first Chairman of College Scholarships Service of the college board. Life member of Clan Munro Association.

John U. Monro resigned in 1967 as Dean of Harvard College to accept a position advising freshmen at a small Negro College in Birmingham.

Miles College, affiliated with the Christian Methodist Episcopal Church, has a student enrollment of some 900 (about one-fifth of Harvard College's), and is one of approximately 121 colleges in the United States enrolling a predominance of Negro students.

Dean Monro has spent three summers teaching and advising at Miles College, and has made trips there at other times as well. His basic reason for making the break with Harvard, it was learned, was that he felt he could not do both jobs at the same time and felt the one at Miles College was, in a sense, more important.

He has been Dean of Harvard College since Dec. 1, 1958, and once said his aim was to get all of the brightest and ablest young people into college somewhere, whether or not they could pay. He worked out charts, which were adapted for national use, for judging ability to pay. This brought scholarships and grants closer to actual need and so freed money to help others.

At Harvard, he was in charge of nearly $2 million a year in scholarships, loans and part-time work for some 1500 students a year. At this time also he became a member of the board of trustees of the National Scholarship Service and Fund for Negro Students. Meanwhile he found time to teach freshman English for six years and serve on the Athletic Committee.

On Dec. 1, 1958, Monroe became the eighth Dean of Harvard College.

13-41-22-13 GEORGE ELLERY MONROE

Captain George Ellery Monroe, 58 years of age, residing at 85 Scenic Avenue, passed away at an early hour this morning after having been confined to his bed for the past several weeks with a stroke of paralysis.

Captain Monroe, as such he was known to his many friends, on account of having followed the sea for more than twenty years during which time had circumnavigated the globe twice, was born in Brooklyn, N.Y.

Monroe came West when still in his "teens" at which time he started his career before the mast of a tramp windjammer which plied up and down the coast.

After serving the required number of years on the vessel Captain Monroe then secured a berth as mate on one of the Standard Oil tankers gradually working his way up until a few years ago he was placed in command of Barge No. 91.

During the seven years the Captain Monroe has piloted the steamers bearing the big white "S" by which Standard Oil tankers are designated he has not once suffered a disaster where there was a single life lost which is a record that is hard to beat for mariners plying in the coastwise trade.

From the day that he was first forced to his bed his strong constitution has gradually weakened until this morning when the sudden relapse which he suffered proved too great a strain on him and he passed away, on June 4, 1914. The deceased is survived by a wife, Catherine, two sons, George and Harry and two daughters, Emily and Clara.
